XMAS LIGHTS TURNED ON TONIGHT

Permanent Organization Planned To Back Council

MEETING TO BE HELD IN CITY HALL

TO NAME OFFICERS

Committees Also to Be Appointed at Conference To Be Held On Saturday

PERMANENT organization of an aesociation to support the city council in the recall fight instituted by the Citizens league will be made at a meeting of interested persons to be held at the city council chambers at 8:30 a. m., tomorrow, it was announced today by William Tway, secretary of a temporary organization created at a recent meeting of a group opposing the recall.

Appointment of a campaign committee, finance committee, executive committee and publicity committee will be made following permanent organization, Tway said. He added that volunteer subscriptions amounting to approximately $1000 already had been made to aid in the campaign against success of the recall.

Following the creation of the several committees, organization work will involve the assistance of several hundred prominent men and women of the city, the secretary stated.

Headquarters, it is expected, will be established at the corner of Main and second street, in the Builders Exchange building, and a full office staff will be organized to carry on the program of the association, according to the secretary.

Pointing out that at a meeting for temporary organization, Jules Markel was made temporary chairman; J. P. Baumgartner temporary treasurer, and himself temporary secretary, Tway said today that a number of residents had volunteered their services on various committees, among them being Alex Brownridge, A. J. McFadden, Mrs. Fannie Reeves, Dr. C. D. Ball, J. A. Smiley, Bob Fernandez, B. V. Curry, Harry Westover and Mrs. Fay Spangler.

"Agitation over the recall already has split the city and we feel that

16 PERSONS INJURED IN BOMB EXPLOSION

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 (UP).—A terrific explosion, which police said was caused by the most powerful dynamite bomb ever exploded in Chicago, roared through a big southside store and apartment building last night, injuring 16 persons, one possibly fatally, and doing $50,000 damage.

Police blamed labor racketeers for the blast but were unable to name the "racket" since tenants of a drug store, a cleaning and dyeing establishment or a barber shop might have been the intended victims of the terrorists.

Families living in apartments above the stores ran screaming to the street as the blast sent shattered window glass, chunks of plaster and other debris flying through the rooms.

LEAGUE READY TO BRING SUIT AGAINST CITY

Sufficient Money on Hand Says Secretary to Proceed with Action

WITH A generous response to a recent appeal for finances, the Citizens league today was in financial position to proceed with its plans for the filing of a suit asking a court order restraining the city council from proceeding with its program for opening of Santa Ana boulevard, according to Wayne Goble, secretary of the league.

The league's attorney was instructed today to proceed with the preparation of the complaint, Goble said, and it is expected completion will be made in time for filing within the next two or three days.

"Our appeal for financial help brought us money sufficient to carry on the injunction suit, but we still need funds with which to carry on our campaign," the secretary stated.

It has been intimated that possibility of construction of the proposed wooden bridge across the Santa Ana river would create a menace to property in the vicinity of the river will be one of the points upon which the complaint will be based.

"We didn't go into this fight with the idea of replacing any of the members of the city council, but to halt the body in its plans for opening the boulevard," Goble commented. "We have not and are not suggesting the names of men who may form a Citizens league ticket to replace the council members in event they are recalled. It is possible that when the proper time comes we may take such action. In the meantime we would be glad to receive suggestions as to persons who would be deemed good material for councilmen."

PAST COMMANDER OF LEGION DIES

PRESCOTT, Ariz., Dec. 6—(UP)—Paul W. Geary, past state commander of the American Legion and member of that organization's national executive committee, is dead at Whipple government hospital here following an operation.

Geary was a native of Leominster, Mass., and was educated at Cushing academy at Ashburnham, Mass., and Boston University Law school. During the World war he served in the judge advocate general's department, and was located at Fort Sam Houston, Texas and Fort Sill, Okla.

Man Convicted Of Murdering Wife Is Given Insurance

FLORENCE, Ariz., Dec. 6.—(UP)—Granville W. Johnson, serving a life sentence in the Arizona state prison for the murder of his wife in 1926, has won a legal battle for the dead woman's insurance and possible freedom.

Attorney L. C. McNabb of Phoenix, had entered suit to collect from the Kansas City Life Insurance company the $5000 policy carried by Mrs. Hazel E. Johnson before she was found dead in an automobile camp in Williams, Ariz., three years ago.

A jury in Judge E. L. Green's court here ordered that the sum be paid to the prisoner. The verdict will be used by his attorney in an effort to obtain a pardon.

Death Of Anaheim Man In Car Crash Held Accidental

VENTURA, Calif., Dec. 6.—(UP)—A verdict of accidental death was on file here today in the case of Paul Gloriosco, of Anaheim, fatally injured Tuesday when an automobile in which he was riding collided with a truck on the Roosevelt highway near Pt. Mugu. A Mannino also of Anaheim, was driver of the car. He suffered a fractured knee.

Prospects For Rain In State Remote Today

Showers In Sacramento Valley Thursday of Short Duration

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—(UP)—Outlook for rain on the parched agricultural lands and depleted reservoirs and lakes of the Pacific coast appeared more remote than ever today.

Light showers Wednesday in the northern Sacramento valley brought rejoicing to farmers in that region, but changed to bitter disappointment when the capricious winds carried the rain clouds into the northwest.

As the rain began to fall in Seattle and Tacoma, both of which cities have suffered serious power failures, cheering crowds appeared on the streets, but merriment was short lived when it became evident that the showers were of short duration and were not the predecessors of a deluge.

Efforts of the city of Tacoma to obtain the use of the generating plant of the U. S. S. Lexington continued, as street cars ceased operating save during rush hours, and houses remained lit by kerosene lamps.

Serious industrial shutdowns faced the city, and labor leaders were appealing to Washington to hurry approval of the Lexington plan.

The short lived rains passed over Seattle to Vancouver, B. C., but failed to reach the lakes that supply power for that city.

California yesterday experienced its hottest day since 1871, the mercury reaching 74 degrees. The weather bureau announced that no rain was anticipated earlier than Monday, and that there was only a remote possibility for precipitation then.

The sole hope of rain lies in the approach of a new pressure area now 1800 miles out in the Pacific, which, forecasters say, may never reach the coast.

DWIGHT MORROW ON WAY TO WASHINGTON

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 6.—(UP)—United States Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow was enroute to Washington today for conferences with President Hoover, Secretary of State Stimson and other administrators, and while there is expected to decide definitely regarding his political future.

The main objects of the ambassador's conferences will be to discuss acceptance of the New Jersey senatorship to succeed Sen. Walter E. Edge and the question of how long he will continue at his post here.

Body Of Airplane Pilot Taken To New Jersey Home

CLEVELAND, Dec. 6.—(UP)—The body of Thomas P. Nelson, mail pilot killed in the crash of his plane last Monday, will be taken to his home in Plainsfield, N. J., today.

The body was found yesterday by two hunters a few feet from his plane. Coroner Lester T. Reynolds of Geauga county pronounced death was due to exposure.

WILLIAM S. VARE DENIED SEAT IN UNITED STATES SENATE BY 58-22 VOTE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(UP)—William S. Vare, the Philadelphia Republican leader, was denied a seat in the United States Senate today because he spent $785,000 to get the Pennsylvania senatorial nomination in 1926.

The Norris resolution was adopted by the Senate, declaring the expenditure of such a large sum of money, together with charges of fraud, corrupted the credentials of the Pennsylvania senator-elect.

The seat he has never been able to occupy was thereby declared vacant.

William S. Vare

The preamble of the Norris resolution charged there were "numerous and various instances of fraud and corruption" in Vare's primary campaign. It contended the money expenditure represented a prima facie case "contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the dignity and honor of the senate, dangerous to the perpetuity of a free government."

The vote was 58 to 22.

The charges of fraud were mostly inferential. Much was made of the fact that no votes were counted for Vare's opponent in many Philadelphia districts. It was contended also that the Philadelphia practice under which candidates employ watchers at the polls was only another way of buying votes legally.

The resolve portion of the resolution merely adopted the report of the senate investigating committee and stated "that the said William S. Vare, be, and he is hereby denied a seat in the United States senate.

Vare sat dejectedly in the first seat on the Republican side of the chamber while the vote was taken. At his side sat his physician, Dr. John Shaw, with a worried expression, watching to see the effect of the balloting upon his patient.

Vare's ruddy face paled slightly as the "ayes" were announced one after the other in favor of the resolution which deprived him of his seat.

The senate scene was staged in all the official splendor of a great event. The galleries were filled with distinguished officials of government and their wives, beautifully gowned. In the first row of the senators' gallery was Mrs. Vare in a brown dress with light tan hat and beside her were their two daughters, Beatrice and Mrs. William Kipp. Nearby was the family friend, Leopold Glass, municipal court judge of Philadelphia.

Thus ended the three-year-old fight which has cost Vare a substantial fortune and his health.

Aside from his personal expenditure of $71,436 in the primary, he spent a large sum in his election and then was forced to make other expenditures to defend himself against the contest brought by his election opponent, William B. Wilson, Democrat. He will be reimbursed by the senate for most of the contest expenditures, but his friends say his personal loss will

BANDITS KILL MESSENGER

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6.—(UP)—Cameron Cook, a bank messenger employed by the Philadelphia Title and Trust company, was shot and killed today by three bandits, who escaped in a closed automobile.

Cook was on his way to a branch of the bank and was believed to have been carrying a large payroll for a textile mill in the northeast section of the city.

GLORYETTA IS VOTED IN AS PART OF CITY

Annexation Vote Is 17 to 10 in Favor of Joining With Santa Ana.

TERRITORIAL LIMITS of Santa Ana today had been extended south and east as the result of two annexation elections held yesterday.

Gloryetta (Delhi) was annexed by a vote of 17 to 10 in favor of annexation, and a parcel of land 150x450 feet on East Seventeenth was annexed by the vote of Mr. and Mrs. John Magold, the only voters in the territory.

The latter election was one of the most unique, perhaps, in the annals of annexation ballots. Mr. and Mrs. John Magold wanted to avail them-

DIEGEL TWO UP ON HAGEN AT 18 HOLES

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente star and defending champion, was two up on Walter Hagen as they finished the first 18 of their 36-hole semi-final match play in the National P. G. A. tournament at the Hillcrest Country club here today.

Hagen, five times a A. P. G. tournament winner, shot par golf over the distance but that was not good enough against the brilliant Diegel who was three under par for the 18 with a 68. Hagen took a 71.

Sen. Brookhart To Take Lead In Opposition

Minority May Attempt to Block Passage By Use Of Debate Rules

BY WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The administration's plan to make a $160,000,000 Christmas present to American income taxpayers in the form of tax reduction faced opposition in the senate today, after the house had enthusiastically endorsed it by an overwhelming vote.

Although Republican and Democratic leaders alike in the senate have pledged their support to the measure, a determined minority may attempt to block it by making use of the unlimited debate rules of that body.

The tax reduction resolution was passed by the house after three hours and a half debate on the fourth day o fthe new session—a record even for the house where the power of leaders and the rules make possible much faster action than in the senate.

Sen. Brookhart (R) of Iowa today appeared to be the leader of the senate opposition, and he predicted that he would gain much Progressive support. Sen. Norris (R) of Nebraska, a power among the Progressives, has indicated that he would not oppose it.

The Iowan declared that he would fight the plan on the ground that the treasury can not stand the cut and provide adequately for the farm board and meet the export debenture plan written into the tariff bill by the senate.

HOME GUARDED AS BABY THREATENED

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—(UP)—Police guarded the home of Mrs. John Einartt here today after the woman reported she had received an extortion letter threatening the life of her one-year-old child.

"Unless you leave the money, your bay will die at midnight," the letter read. The letter demanded that $25 be placed under a doormat.

Police were inclined to believe the letter the work of small neighborhood boys and questioned a number of youths.

As a precautionary measure, however, they announced a "temporary" guard would be established over the Einartt home.

Chinese Soldiers Revolt; 2 British Boats Fired Upon

SHANGHAI, Dec. 6.—(UP)—Rebellion of troops outside of Pukow, across the Yangtze river from Nanking, the seat of the Chinese central government, has served as the spark that has fired similar revolts along the river towns as far as Ichang, 800 miles away.

The situation along the river from Hankow to Ichang, a distance of approximately 400 miles, is reported serious, and two British gunboats of the Yangtze patrol have been fired upon.

Despite reports that 30,000 rebels have been disarmed, the Pukow revolt has spread rapidly, regardless of countermoves by the government.

REPORT $2378 DONATED IN SEAL CAMPAIGN

THE FIRST reports made by officials in the Christmas Seal campaign revealed today a total of $2378.15 for the county and $1270 for the city of Santa Ana.

Considering the fact that the remittances reported have been received in the first three days of the sales campaign, the report was considered by headquarters as indicating success of the movement to raise $35,000 in the county for the Orange County Tuberculosis association.

It was reported that 2713 letters, containing seals, were mailed and that 489 had been returned for better addresses.

Pointing out that the Tuberculosis association is doing a vast amount of good work in the county and that the Orange County Health camp, in Santiago canyon, is conducted as one of its activities, H. A. Lake, president, today said that interest in the work of the organization in the prevention of tuberculosis in the county indicated that the drive would be successful.

PLAN TRUSTEESHIP FOR FOX CONCERNS

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.(UP)—The Motion Picture News said today that William Fox has consented to the formation of a trusteeship committee to control his extensive motion picture interests.

The committee, the article said is composed of Harry Stuart, of Halsey, Stuart and company; John E. Otterson, of Electrical Research Products, Inc., and Fox.

"This move," the Motion Picture News said, "culminates the flood of rumors rampant in the industry regarding the financial status of the Fox companies.

"The situation is entirely under control. The Fox companies are today enjoying the biggest business in their history. Fox Film will show a profit of between $13,000,000 and $15,000,000 for 1929."

$450,000 YACHT OF EDSEL FORD ON REEF

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Dec. 6 (UP).—Edsel Ford's new $450,000 yacht Sialia, launched only last month at Neponset, was hard aground today on a reef near Hens and Chickens lightship about four miles off Horseneck Beach.

Ford was not aboard but Capt. Oscar Anderson and a crew of 17 men were taken off the stranded craft by the crew of coast guard patrol boat 287, which had been dispatched to the scene. Another patrol boat, No. 281, was standing by.

The Sialia went aground early today. Her plight was noted by the steamship George Washington, which radioed the coast guard station at Chatham. It, in turn, relayed the message to the Woods Hole base, and the patrol boats were dispatched.

ALLEMAN ELECTED REALTY PRESIDENT

Herb Alleman, who has officiated as secretary of the Santa Ana Realty board, was elected president of the organization at the meeting of the board at noon today.

Other officers chosen were John Knox, W. L. Salisbury, W. B. Marin, vice presidents; Floyd Croddy, secretary; M. J. Oleson, treasurer (re-elected); Asa Hoffman, F. C. Pope, Carl Mock, Charles Aubrey and Leon Lauderbach, directors.

The new officers wil ltake their positions on January 1. The inaugural banquet and dance of the board will be held in the Santa Ana Country club on January 14.

SANTA CLAUS WILL PARADE S. A. STREETS

Windows of Merchants Will Be Illuminated and to Be Exhibited at 7 p. m.

DRUM CORPS PLAYS

Police Chief Makes Plans To Take Care of Huge Crowd on Local Streets

WITH CHRISTMAS lights flashing on at 7 o'clock, four Santa Clauses distributing good cheer, and windows of merchants brilliantly lighted and artistically decorated, Santa Ana's first annual Christmas illumination promises to attract thousands of local and county residents to this city tonight.

Buglers stationed at French and Fourth and Ross and Fourth will "sound off" at 7 o'clock, when the lights in the Christmas trees strung along various streets of the city will be switched on.

The American Legion drum corps and the Santa Ana high school band will parade the streets, starting at 7 o'clock. Merchants will keep their stores open until 9 o'clock and will officiate as hosts to the thousands who are expected to line the streets or drive over the lighted area.

Merchants today had their display windows covered in preparation for the unveiling scheduled for the hour when the lights are to be turned on. It is anticipated that the windows will contain the best displays appropriate to the season ever before presented. Operation of the stores for the one evening, it was pointed out today by Earl Ruddy, secretary of the Business Men's association, which has developed the program, is a concession for the benefit of men and women who may want to make early purchases and for persons who are unable to shop during the day time.

"The merchants are bearing the expense of the Christmas lighting program and they are offering it as an expression of their appreciation of the generous patronage of the year," Ruddy said.

L. C. Rogers, chief of police, announced that he had made provision for controlling automobile traffic, and that several officers would be assigned to street intersections to direct traffic in order to prevent jams.

It is anticipated all the kiddies in the city will be down on the streets to see St. Nicholas in his characteristic garb and to receive from him gifts that the business men have provided.

Fitts Believed On Way By Plane With Papers For Vernon

AMARILLO, Tex., Dec. 6.—(UP)—Buron Fitts, district attorney of Los Angeles county, was reported en route to Amarillo today via Western Air Express with extradition papers from the governor of California to the governor of Oklahoma for Tom Vernon, wanted for train wrecking.

Fitts will take a train here tonight for Oklahoma City, according to Air Express officials here. Governor W. J. Holloway of Oklahoma has announced he will hold a hearing as soon as he has the papers rrom California. Wyoming also wants Vernon and has a sheriff in Olkahoma with the papers.

CHILDREN OF SANTA ANA TO BE GUESTS OF REGISTER

Children of Santa Ana who have been following the exciting trip made by Captain Kleinschmidt to the far away north pole tomorrow morning will see the actual pictures of the traveler as he makes his way to the place where Santa Claus and his gnomes have been busily making toys for all of the little boys and girls in the wide world.

The pictures are to be shown at the Fox Broadway and the show will open at 10 o'clock and will last until noon. All children are to be welcomed to the theater to see the picture. It will take 25 minutes for the brave Captains' adventures to be shown on the screen.

The thrilling moment when Captain Kleinschmidt and Santa Claus meet and every step of the journey of the two over the land of ice and snow to the land of sunshine and flowers, has been pictured in the most interesting way imaginable. Never before has so popular a personage as old Santa been the hero of so exciting a film as that which the children will see at the Fox Broadway theater tomorrow morning.

SETTLEMENT IN LAGUNA BEACH DEAL REACHED

Many members of the congregation of the Santa Ana Unitarian church, at Eighth and Bush streets, planned to attend a meeting which was to be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon, to hear Dr. Louis Cornish, president of the National Unitarian association, who is making his first official visit of the year to the Pacific coast.

Dr. Cornish is a public lecturer of note. His home is in Boston, Mass. He was to be accompanied to Santa Ana by his wife and Dr. Berkely B. Blake, of Berkeley, Calif., who is field secretary of the Unitarian church.

F. L. Carrier, instructor in the Orange high school, is acting pastor of the Santa Ana church and was to preside at the service. Col. H. C. Akin, church secretary and treasurer, was to meet Dr. Cornish and his party and escort them to the church.

18 CLASS C PLAYERS TO RECEIVE LETTERS

Eighteen boys at Santa Ana high school will receive monograms for playing on the Class C football team, it was announced today by Coach Clyde Cook, who selected the players to receive the awards.

Cook had 11 men who played practically every quarter of every game but the other six boys merited monograms and there was little to pick between them. The 11 regulars were George Lawrence and Alex Clark, ends; George Huntoon and Guy Purinton, tackles; Gilmer Laub, guard; F. Holderman, center; Herb Meyer, quarterback; Hugh Brown, "Red" Harden and W. Wright, halfbacks and Captain H. Cochems, fullback.

The other boys who received letters were James Sussdorf, George Lackaye, M. Kistinger and "Chuck" Denio, all guards; Bill Clark, center; Raymond Cartwright, end and Jack McCarty, manager.

PLACENTIA THIEVES GET 120 CHICKENS

A total of 120 chickens were reported stolen from two Orange county ranches last night.

That a gang of chicken thieves operated in a drive against the two places was evident, according to Jess Buckles, deputy sheriff, who found the tracks of more than four men around the pens.

Seventy-nine chickens were stolen from the pens of D. L. Glenn, on the James Tufree ranch, in Placentia, and 41 chicken were stolen from the place of R. W. Burns, of Placentia.

The chickens were taken after being gassed, it was believed.

SYMPHONY PLANS FINANCIAL DRIVE

Plans were discussed at a meeting of the Santa Ana Symphony association, at the Y. M. C. A., last night, for conducting a campaign to raise a fund of $2000 to provide for the four concerts which the Santa Ana Symphony orchestra will present early in the new year.

Decision was made not to launch the campaign until after the holidays. The orchestra will present one concert each month in the first four months of the year.

selves of some of the services offered by a city, and petitioned for annexation of a portion of their home property at 1701 E. Seventeenth. They constituted the election board and were supplied with all the supplies that would be required for a precinct of several hundred times the number of voters in the district.

Twenty-seven of the 28 registered voters in the Gloryetta district cast ballots in the election there, with the majority favoring the program. The territory, roughly, extends from Delhi road south to Dyer road, and from Main street east to the east line of the Emmett addition. Police, garbage, water and other services will be accorded the district as soon as plans can be executed, following completion of legal steps in the annexation proceedings, it was said.

SUPPORTERS OF CITY COUNCIL TO FORM BODY

success of the movement would create a situation from which it would take years to recover, and it is in the spirit of maintaining the city in its progressive advancement that a group of local people have taken upon themselves the task of developing an organization and fighting to maintain the present council in its entirety," Tway said, in explaining the reason for creation of the proposed organization.

Ed Vegely, city clerk, said today that contrary to reports, it would be impossible for him to complete a check of the signatures of the recall petition in time for presentation to the council next Monday evening with certification that the number of signatures is sufficient to make the recall effective.

"I will complete the check within ten days from the day of filing of the document at my office, but it would be utterly impossible to check it in time for filing with the board next Monday evening," the city clerk said.

At the same time he announced that signers wishing to withdraw their names from the petition may do so at any time before the petition is officially before the council on Monday evening, Dec. 16.

U. S. To Continue Use Of Volstead Law, Doran Says

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(UP)—The federal government will not seek to take advantage of state law which makes buyers as well as sellers of liquor liable, Prohibition Commissioner Doran said today, commenting on the successful test of Alabama's law affecting purchasers of intoxicants.

Major liquor offenders apprehended by federal officers will continue to be tried under the Volstead act, Doran said.

Encouraged by the Alabama decision, Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, prepared to ask the senate judiciary committee to act on his bill to incorporate the word "purchase" in the Volstead law along with the words "sale" and "possession."

Sheppard pointed out the number of recent court decisions holding liquor can be purchased under existing state law.

WILLIAM VARE DENIED SEAT IN U. S. SENATE

be upwards of half a million dollars.

Vare's physicians say his physical condition is dangerous. Victim of two paralytic strokes he appeared in the senate Wednesday, to plead his own case in dramatic fashion. He charged his accusers with unfairness, contending he had always stood for justice in elections.

His paralyzed left arm was stuck limply in his pocket and he was unable to talk without twisting his mouth. He said the strain of the election battle had brought on the attacks of paralysis.

Former Governor Gifford Pinchot, $187,029.

Vare-Beidleman, $785,934.

Fisher and Beidleman were running for the Republican gubernatorial nomination associated with the senatorial tickets.

The expenditures were uncovered by a special investigating committee appointed by the senate after rumors had been spread that it was the costliest primary in the history of the country. The investigation was led by former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri.

The committee also developed expenditures of about $450,000 by Frank L. Smith of Illinois who also was denied a senate seat. The Smith case, however, was based more upon the proposition that he received contribution from public utilities interests than on his expenditures.

The Vare case marks the first time in history a man has been barred from the senate primarily because of the large sum of money he spent to get a seat therein.

The house held only a brief session before adjourning in respect to Representative Griest, Republican, Pennsylvania, who died yesterday in Michigan.

Charge Misuse Of Word 'Realtor' In Recall Petition

Albert G. Deihl, Santa Ana real estate broker and one of the circulators of the petition for recall of the city council, may have to face court action for writing the word "realtor" after his name in signing the petition.

Possibility of action charging violation of the regulations governing the use of the word was referred to B. Z. McKinney, attorney for the board, and to the National Association of Real Estate Boards at a meeting of the Santa Ana Realty board at noon today.

At the meeting it was pointed out that "realtor" is a word coined by the National association to characterize real estate brokers who are members of local, state and national organizations of realty men.

It was asserted at the meeting that Deihl is not a member of the Santa Ana board and therefore cannot classify himself as a realtor.

Famous Singer Loses Hat In Santa Ana

Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heinck was a visitor in Santa Ana last night, but Santa Ana probably never would have known it had not the famous singer lost her hat here.

She reported at the city police station at 9:15 last night that a hat-box, containing a hat, had been lost from the running board of her machine at Seventeenth and North Main streets.

Officers had not located the hat late this afternoon. Schumann-Heinck asks that she be called in Coronado if the hat is found.

CITRUS SHIPMENT IS SEIZED, BURNED

In accordance with the state quarantine against citrus fruits from the Gulf states to protect California against the invasion of citrus canker, Jerome Walden, inspector on the staff of County Agricultural Commissioner A. A. Brock, today confiscated an express shipment of fruit from Texas in Placentia.

The shipment, which consisted of oranges, tangerines and grapefruit, was burned at the county insectary, on Vermont avenue, in Anaheim.

All shipments of fruit and plants into this state must be held by express and postal authorities until inspected and released by officers handling the quarantine restrictions.

SMELTZER

SMELTZER, Dec. 6.—Kenneth Beck, young son of Mrs. Ione Beck, who has been ill with pneumonia, is convalescing satisfactorily and Mrs. Beck has returned to her work at the Smeltzer Lima Bean Growers' association house.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Lewis have returned from Hemet.

Kenneth and Dawne Moore motored to Los Angeles to attend the Southern California - Washington State football game and were accompanied by their sister, Miss Muriel Moore, who was returning to the University of Southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred St. Clair arrived home the first of the week from Mr. St. Clair's former home in Arkansas. Mr. and Mrs. St. Clair were called home by the illness of his father ,who passed away the same day the St. Clairs left for the east. A sister, Mrs. Nannie Hill, who preceded them east, returned with the St. Clairs to California.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. McClary and daughter, Patricia McClary, of Hollywood, spent two days as house guests in the home of their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Applebury. Mr. McClary is an uncle of Mr. Applebury.

Mr. and Mrs. George Applebury, of this place, who are on an extended visit to their former home in Missouri, are having a delightful time and do not speak of setting a date for their return as yet. They are at Bogart, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Gourney Stanley, of Long Beach, visited this week in Smeltzer with relatives.

UNITARIAN HEAD DELIVERS TALK IN S. A. TODAY

Details of a settlement between Seamans, Lasby and Crawford and the bankrupt Skidmore Brothers' corporation, were announced today by A. J. Lasby, of Santa Ana, who said that a previous announcement of a compromise was erroneous.

All unsold lots in Coast Royal go to Seamans, Lasby and Crawford. The contracts on sold lots go to John D. Beyers, trustee for the bankrupt corporation.

The water system from the pumping plant to the tract will be improved and all improvements promised by the Skidmore Brothers' corporation will be completed, Lasby said.

The new owners, Seamans, Lasby and Crawford, will handle all sales in the tract, with the usual courtesy to agents.

HUNTINGTON BEACH

When a stranger appeared at the front door of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Manning, Monday, and began to shake Manning's hand warmly, the Huntington Beach man was polite but puzzled. The stranger announced himself as Baden Manning, brother of the man he had called to see. The brothers had not met in 30 years. Baden Manning comes from Rockford, Ill., and will spend a few days here. His visit was a surprise which was complete as Ed, who is a pioneer resident and former mayor of this city, failed to recognize his relative.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Mills and family left Monday for Detroit, Mich., to spend a year. Mills was formerly in the men's furnishing good business in this city. He recently disposed of this business. The Mills, senior, expect to return to California at the end of a year. The son, C. J. Mills jr., was formerly in the drug business in this city and has many friends who regret the departure of himself and his family. He expects to locate permanently in Detroit.

DAMAGES OF $1000 DEMANDED IN SUIT

Property and personal damages, totaling $1000.10 and court costs are asked in a complaint filed in superior court here today by Carl E. Frocht and his wife, Ruth, against Harold F. Waltz, a minor, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Waltz.

The action is based on an automobile accident, which occurred near Fullerton, on the Fullerton-Brea road, on Jan. 19, 1929, which, the piantiffs allege, was due to the careless and negligent operation of the Waltz car.

Damages are itemized as $352.10 for damage to the Forcht car, $180 for loss of the use ofthe car for 13 days while being repaired; $500 for personal injuries to Mrs. Forcht, and $18 for medical expenses.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

An ingrowing sense of inferiority is a frightful arraignment of the God who made you. The notion that your abilities are contmptible in the sight of others is equivalent to assuming that God is a bungling workman.

The quality of the capacities of various men differs as does their sphere of activity but no other man's talents and service are of greater moment in God's sight than are yours.

With His help you are big enough to fulfill the great tasks he has opened before you even while your heart aches. He needs what you alone can do.

HEINRICI—In Santa Ana, Dec. 5, 1929, Albert B. Heinrici, age 49 years. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Catherine Heinrici and one daughter, Mrs. Helene Witty of Santa Ana. DRIVER INJURED AS TRUCK OVERTURNS

M. Flores, 22, of Costa Mesa, a truck driver, was seriously injured at 4:30 yesterday afternoon, when a truck, loaded with vegetables, which he was driving, turned over near Wintersburg. A report of the accident was filed at the sheriff's office by A. L. Steward, deputy sheriff, who investigated.

Steward reported that the truck was top heavy and that when Flores attempted to go around a curve the machine swerved and turned over. Vegetables were spilled all over the road.

Flores suffered a concussion of the brain. He was taken by passersby to the Huntington Beach hospital and later brought to the Santa Ana Valley hospital, where it was said today that he would recover.

OLLIMAE ENLOW MATTHEWS PRAISES ENGLISH SINGERS; TO HEAR THEM SECOND TIME

"I certainly am going to hear the English Singers in the high school auditorium tonight," declared Ollimae Enlow Matthews, prominent Orange county violinist, today. "It is a rare treat for Santa Anans to be able to hear such world famous artists and the songs that they sing are lovely and unusual.

"People crowded to hear them in New York when they appeared in St. John's cathedral, where I heard them first. They were invisible then, singing from the organ loft, but the combination of their voices was flawless and the ensemble so perfect that they created a sensation. As far as I know it is the only organization of its kind in the world and a concert by the English Singers is an unique and unforgettable experience."

Many others who are true lovers of the best in music are planning to attend the concert in the Santa Ana high school auditorium tonight. The English Singers will present the first program of the International Artists Series, is being given here under the auspices of the Ebell Society. Miss Lulu Minter has been in charge of all arrangement.

Gathered around a table, as was the custom in Queen Elizabeth's time, the Singers, without ceremony, pour forth the gay light-hearted folk-songs, madrigals and carols of the happy days that made their country famous as "Merrie England." It is said to be the finest choral singing possible, providing an entertainment which baffles description "because the captivating spirit of it cannot be reduced to words," according to the New York Sun.

It was learned today that tickets for the single concert tonight still can be obtained and reservations for the performance made in the Santa Ana Book store. There are a few choice seats left. A limited number of student tickets also are on eale.

ALLEGED LOOT UNCOVERED IN THEFT INQUIRY

The sheriff's office today announced that it was completing its case against three men, being held in the county jail in connection with at least a dozen burglaries reported in the county during the last several weeks.

J. R. Pike, one of four men arrested yesterday for investigation of the burglaries, was released when officers satisfied themselves that he was not wanted. Those being held are Percy F. Hall, 33, salesman, of 1628 West Fifth street; Walter Christopher, 47, of 1809 West Eighth street, and Joe Hall, brother of Percy Hall.

F. W. Howard, chief criminal deputy sheriff, who yesterday reported that Percy Hall had admitted two burglary jobs, those in the Day store, in Westminster, and the Hodges store, in Newport Beach, said today that on further questioning Hall had refuted his former statement and now denies all knowledge of the burglaries.

Some of the loot said to have been taken from the Garden Grove high school, including sweaters and a basketball, was found at the place of Joe Hall, Howard said.

At the home of Christopher, officers reported that they found a plane and a saw, believed to have been stolen in some school robbery reported during the last several weeks. At least five school burglaries have been reported in the last 60 days.

According to Howard, the last statement made by Percy Hall was to the effect that his brother was not involved in the robberies. He said that he had left the basketball at his brother's house after buying it for $2 from Christopher.

Howard and Carter were going to the Imperial valley this afternoon in search of some property stolen from several places here and in the west end of the county.

Joe Hall, one of the trio held, is a "two time loser," according to Howard, having been sent to two state prisons, San Quentin and Folsom, once on a check charge and once on a charge of stealing an automobile.

Local Briefs

A crew of five men from the staff of the county agricultural inspector's office left early today for Los Angeles harbor to assist federal officers in conducting an inspection of baggage of passengers on the S. S. City of Honolulu, scheduled to arrive from Hawaii today. A strict search was to be made for all tropical fruits which are hosts for the fruit fly, melon fly, pink boll worm and sugar cane borer.

NEW GOODRICH STATION OPENS ON TOMORROW

Formal opening, tomorrow, of the new service station of Goodrich Silvertown, Inc., on the northeast corner of Broadway and Fifth streets, will be featured by several innovations, according to announcement today by Lyle "Andy" Anderson, manager.

At the same time Anderson announced affiliation of his company, the Select Tire Service, Inc., formerly located at 613 West Fourth street, with Goodrich Silvertown, Inc., the new retail division of the Pacific Goodrich Rubber company. Ralph Irwin, of Fullerton, and H. O. Wallace, of Orange, also have affiliated with Goodrich Silvertown giving the organization three stations in the county, Anderson revealed today.

Anderson has arranged an interesting program for the opening, including distribution in the afternoon, by "Miss Silvertown" and her three assistants, of balloons, candy, and souvenirs to patrons and visitors, a bomb salute in the afternoon by four planes from the Martin airport, and music by the Joe Anderson orchestra, from 5:30 to 8 p. m.

"We are going to have some important announcements to make to Santa Ana motorists in connection with the opening and we are making preparations for receiving a large number of visitors," Anderson said.

RECREATIONAL DAY PLANNED BY CHAMBERS

The first annual recreational day of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange County will be held at the Santa Ana Country club on Thursday, December 16, it was announced today by G. C. Macleod, secretary.

Golf in the afternoon will be one of the features, with trophies for the winners, the secretary said. He asserted that the members of the board of supervisors would participate in the golf tournament and that there was a probability that Harry Hale and Stuart Lucas, who were on opposing sides in the water conservation program, would oppose each other on the course.

Dinner and dancing in the clubhouse will follow. Ross Shafer, chairman of the recreation committee, is arranging details of the affair.

Macleod said that there would be no attempt to transact business and he emphasized the point that the gathering would be strictly of a social nature. The meeting is programmed to give opportunity for delegates to become acquainted and for their families to mingle in a social way.

POWERFUL KILLER

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Prof. Leonard Hill recently told the Sanitary Inspectors' Association of a powerful powder, produced by a baccillus, a mere pinch of which would kill a million men. "The toxin produced by this baccillus is powerful enough that one gram of the dry toxin would suffice to kill a million," Hill said.

'Things Of Unseen World' Topic For Placentia Sunday

PLACENTIA, Dec. 6.—The Rev. Charles E. Fuller, pastor of Calvary church, Placentia, has announced that he will begin a series of messages on "Things of the Unseen World" next Sunday night at Calvary church. The first of the series will be "Spiritualism." This will be a study of Satan and his system. There will be a baptismal service and the Calvary quartet will sing. Sunday morning will be Communion Sunday and reception of members. There will be a short communion message, "A Pelican in the Wilderness." Ira W. McNames will sing.

FARM ADVISOR SCHEDULED FOR FOUR LECTURES

The Orange county farm advisor, Harold E. Wahlberg, has been scheduled by the University of California to give two lectures in connection with the citrus growers' short course, in session this week in Fillmore, Ventura county. He will speak on the status of the citrus industry in California and also on the value of windbreak protection for citrus groves.

Wahlberg will address the annual meeting of the citrus growers' department of the Santa Barbara County Farm bureau Friday night, discussing the value of production cost records for citrus growers. The cost studies conducted by the agricultural extension service in Orange county have gained statewide recognition, being the most extensive survey of its kind in California.

The California Teachers' association also has asked the farm advisor to present the methods used in making the economic study of the citrus industry. He will address the association on Monday, December 16, in Los Angeles.

BEEKEEPERS TO STUDY ORANGE COUNTY COSTS

A number of Orange county beekeepers will attend the annual meeting of the California State Beekeepers' association, in San Diego, next week, according to L. B. Bell, chairman of the beekeepers' department of the Orange County Farm bureau.

The sessions will start Monday and continue for three days.

P. L. Crump, prominent Santa Ana honey producer, will present cost data on honey production in Orange county, which has just been completed by Farm Advisor Harold E. Wahlberg. His talk will be illustrated with charts embracing cost figures on capital investments, labor and material costs, interest, depreciation and taxes.

R. K. Bishop, county bee inspector, also will appear on the program.

MICHAELI WILL ASK NEW TRIAL IN DAMAGE SUIT

Notice of intention to file a motion before the court for a new trial was filed yesterday afternoon by attorneys for John F. Michaeli, against whom judgment for damages was entered by the court, November 26, following the trial of two complaints against him. The notice specifies that the motion will be based on a number of charges, including misconduct of the jury in the trial which went against Michaeli.

In the previous trial damages were awarded William J. McCullough and his wife, in the amount of $1025, and Charles Cashdollar, in the amount of $500. The suits had been brought for $35,250 and $10,300 respectively, as the result of injuries sustained in a motor crash, for which the McCulloughs and Cashdollar claimed Michaeli was responhible.

Some of the grounds listed in the notice as the basis for the motion for the new trial were as follows: Misconduct of jury; newly discovered evidence for the defendant; insufficiency of the evidence to justify the verdict and judgment; claim that the verdict and the judgment are contrary to law; an error in law occurring at the trial and excepted to by the defendant.

TIME FOR STORY HOURS ANNOUNCED

A story hour for children will be held once every two weeks in the children's branch of the Santa Ana public library, it was announced this morning by Miss Mary Bowyer, head of the department.

At 10:30 tomorrow morning, Miss Bowyer is to explain how she made the little marionettes which entertained the boys and girls during Book week. Pinocchio, one of the most popular of the little figures, is to tell how he was fashioned out of plastic wood and he also is to reveal when and how the first marionettes were made.

Another story to be told will be "Christmas at the Hollow Tree Inn," in which is related how Mr. Dog played Santa for the Hollow Tree folks. A most laughable tale is "Fritz, the Master Fiddler," which will serve to introduce a new book, "The Pigtail of Ah Lee Ben Loo," by John Bennett.

4-H MEMBERS WILL ATTEND STOCK EXHIBIT

About 50 boys and girls, members of the various 4-H clubs in Orange county, will leave here at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning in a motor cavalcade to spend the day at the Los Angeles Christmas livestock show, in the Los Angeles stockyards. The event will mark the regular monthly tour of the Orange county clubs and will be under the direction of E. E. Eastman, member of the extension staff of the farm advisor's office.

Leaders of the club who are expected to make the trip were announced today by Eastman as follows:

Harold Case, San Juan Capistrano; G. R. Seacord, Tustin; H. J. Hinrichs, Orange; John Ragan, Villa Park; A. G. Moritz, Yorba Linda; Lester Schofield, Buena Park; Leonard Cassel, Costa Mesa, and J. M. Long, Garden Grove. The party will assemble in the farm advisor's office, on North Main street, at 7:45 tomorrow morning.

The program at the stock show tomorrow has been arranged particularly for young people and the 4-H club members expect a most enjoyable as well as profitable day. The schedule of events includes livestock judging contests in which teams from 100 agricultural high schools in the state will participate, parade of prize winning stock, competitive events by mounted squads from three military academies, comedy polo game, stunts and races by boys on Shetland ponies, grand competitive events by combined Southern California riding academies and clubs, thrilling cowboy stunts, music and entertainment by the famous cowboy band and stock horse exhibition.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The career of E. H. Macartney, just returned to England to represent Queensland as Agent-General here, reads like a dime novel. Forty-seven years ago he was an office boy, then a bank clerk, and then a lawyer. In 1909 he was elected to Parliament. He has also been chairman of a bank.

INCORPORATION OF FLYING CLUB IS COMPLETED

Equipment, finances and memberships of the Orange County Flying club were turned over to the Orange County Flying Club, Ltd., a corporation, at the regular meeting of the former organization last night. The incorporation papers were received recently by the club, which is a non-profit organization composed of a group of Orange county men interested in aviation. The club has a $50,000 capitalization and has obtained a permit to sell stock from the commissioner of corporations of the state of California.

A new board of directors was elected last night as follows: President, Paul M. Rogers; vice president and secretary, Robert M. Ferrell; treasurer, Arnold Finster, and business manager, Charles C. Brisco.

Willard Morris, Fullerton pilot, was appointed as the club pilot, to succeed Lyman R. Ellis, who recently resigned. Ellis was formerly in the army aviation service and regret was expressed at his resigning his post. The club pilot instructs student members of the organization and helps in the maintenance of equipment. Morris has 1000 hours in the air to his credit, much of which has been instruction work.

The club's hangar is at the Eddie Martin airport, with storage for two airplanes and quarters for the club meetings. The charter membership is limited to 25 members, the club now having 21 charter and four associate members.

The club hopes to supplement its flying equipment with a cabin type monoplane in the spring. The airplane which it is using at present is a Waco 10 with a Siemens-Halske air-cooled motor.

TWO OIL WORKERS OF BREA BURNED

Roy Thompson and Ted Rogers of Brea, were severely burned yesterday while on duty for the Birch Oil company north of Brea. They were washing their hands with distillate while standing too near a fire. They were rushed to the office of Dr. Curtiss, where they received first aid, after which they were taken to the Fullerton General hospital. They have first and second degree burns. It is thought they will recover.

Poly Hi And Jaysee Notes

Baxter Geeting and Miss Margaret Clifton, Santa Ana junior college debaters, will clash with the Los Angeles junior college team at 8 o'clock tonight in the high school auditorium. All students interested in debating are invited to attend the debate, which will be on the subject of "Installment Buying." Ed Conner and Jerry Tannenbaum were to debate on the same subject tonight with Santa Monica Jaycee students in the beach city.

Pictures of the Jaycee Frosh day and float committees will be taken at 3 p. m., Monday, in front of the junior college building, by Miss Lavinia Compton and other Algol staff members. Pictures were taken yesterday and this afternoon of the high school and college football teams.

A meeting of the college Young Women's Christian association cabinet was held in the "Y" hut at noon today for the purpose of discussing plans for the Y. W. C. A. retreat and other coming events.

Mexicans Jailed On Disturbance, Liquor Charges

Five Mexicans were arrested in San Juan Capistrano last night by Joe Clever, state traffic officer.

Four were being held in the county jail today on charges of disturbing the peace and the fifth, A. Hernandez, 19, Stanton, is charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

The youths gave the names if Paul Mendoza, 17, Antonio Caracoza, 17, Rafael Bonda, 18, and A. Hernandez, 19, all of Stanton.

Court Notes

Fannie Singer, who is charged in an information filed by the district attorney's office with the theft of a $750 fur coat from the California Fur Products, Inc., entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned before Judge James L. Allen today. The trial was set for December 11 and a special jury venire was ordered to provide jurors to try the case. Mrs. Singer is at liberty on $10,000 bail pending trial.

Philip Arbiso, who five years ago was given probation for five years on a jail sentence of one year after he had entered a plea of guilty to a charge of rape and had requested probation, appeared in court today and withdrew his plea of guilty. The case then was dismissed by Judge James L. Allen on a motion to do so in furtherance of justice, which was filed by the district attorney's office.

Maynard Workman, who appeared for a probation hearing before Judge Allen today, following his answer of guilty to a charge of grand theft, last week, had his case transferred to the juvenile court after it was shown that he was under 21 years of age. The prisoner's father and probation authorities asked that the court take action to permit sentencing to the Preston School of Industry, at Ione, which procedure, they indicated, would be of advantage to the young man.

A petition for the probate of the will of Mary C. Rule, who died November 17, was filed yesterday in superior court by Ethel A. Dallas, daughter, who was named executrix and sole heir in the will. The petition states that the value of the estate does not exceed the sum or $6000.

S. A. Harris and wife were named defendants in a suit brought yesterday by the Broadway Improvement company, asking judgment for $320 and interest, said to be the unpaid balance due and unpaid on a note given by the defendants on June 28, 1927, and foreclosure of mortgage on all furniture and fixtures located in room six of the Broadway Improvement company building.

Nettie Coverly has filed a complaint in superior court asking judgment for the balance said to be due on a note given her Oct. 11, 1927, by Myrtle and Floyd Geisendorfer, the defendants in the action. The plaintiff asks $813 principal, $67 interest, interest until judgment and costs.

Action to quiet title to a lot in Westminster was filed in superior court yesterday by A. M. Shelby against John D. Dopps, et al.

Herbert Miller was made defendant in a divorce action filed today by Esther Miller in superior court. The complaint, which charges cruel and inhuman treatment, alleges that Miller is an habitual user of intoxicating liquor, abusive to the plaintiff and has been arrested and sentenced to jail on various occasions in the last three years. Mrs. Miller asks custody of their three children, court costs, attorney's fees and a reasonable allowance for the support of herself and the children.

J. B. Eaton, Hampton brothers, P. P. Arnold and Lucile Conaway were fined $2 each in police court yesterday on charges of overtime parking. Mrs. Elmer Ulseth, of Santa Ana, was fined $2 on a charge of parking her car in a restricted district. H. C. Morrison was given a fine of $2 for parking on a city street between 2 and 5 a. m.

ENGINEER ASKS JURY TRIAL ON FORGERY COUNT

Edwin Fulton Pottinger, the engineer whom authorities believe was attempting to build up a library of engineering works at the expense of public libraries, entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of forgery when he was arraigned before Judge James L. Allen today in superior court.

The forgery charge is based specifically upon the signing of a library card in Anaheim, on July 24, 1928, and the alleged setting thereto the name of J. H. Cole as guarantor to protect the library against any damage or loss that might ensue through the use of the privileges extended through the use of the card. The information filed by the district attorney charges that Pottinger signed his name as Frank C. Clark and also affixed the name of Cole to the card.

The trial was set for January 14 after the prisoner had waived his statutory rights to a trial within 30 days after the answer to arraignment. The case will be tried before a jury, which Pottinger demanded.

THE FUMIGATOR

By THOS. E. PICKERILL [all rights reserved]

Speaking of publicity, Santa Claus is one of the world's biggest advertisers, and look at the stuff he sells!

We can't prove it, but we imagine that a Christmas present bought in Orange county would be a little nicer than one purchased outside.

America is a land of "bigger and better" things. Regarding its women, however, Americans want 'em better but not bigger.

THE AIRPLANE MAY BE SAFER THAN THE AUTOMOBILE, BUT WE HAVEN'T YET HEARD OF ANY ONE RUNNING HOME ON A BROKEN WING.

With the increase in private plane ownership, the expression that one's friends drop in on one occasionally becomes more literal.

The fellow who wins a contest on how to stop war isn't half as valuable to the world as one who could successfully work the plan.

Besides the two sure things in life such as death and taxes, we have with us always the bird who has known you for ten years and forgets your name when he starts an introduction.

From the California Highways Bulletin we select the following from a boy defining a bolt and nut: "A bolt is a thing like a stick of hard metal such as iron with a square bunch on one end and a lot of scratching wound around the other end. A nut is similar to a bolt only the opposite, being a hole in a little chunk of iron sawed off short with wrinkles around the inside of the hole."

Which reminds us of some people's idea of a system of flood control and water conservation.

THE STINGIEST MAN IN ORANGE COUNTY HAS BEEN CAUGHT WEARING HIS LAST YEAR'S RED CROSS BUTTON.

"La Traviata" was a wonderful success, but Frank Mason, who is sometimes referred to as Brea's Charlie Lee, had us guessing at the close of the performance as to whether he was wiping his eyes or blowing his nose.

BILL-BOARDLETS

A certain billboard outfit on the Pacific Coast has issued a pamphlet in which it attempts to justify its continued despoilation of the California landscape. In league with the so-called State Chamber of Commerce, which it induced into a program of "preserving certain highways by reserving them as scenic," it fails to admit that ALL highways are potentially scenic if left free from outdoor "advertising."

Such soft-soaping of the public's indignation is but a gesture toward that all too common idea of American life that "here we will have beauty" but "there we want ugliness."

It is not a question of WHERE the signs are placed. It is a question of whether the highways shall be commercialized for private gain at public expense.

The admission that certain areas should be made scenic by the absence of billboards is an admission that billboards RENDER THE LANDSCAPE UNSCENIC.

The billboard industry is taking beauty away from the people and contributing to genuine ugliness, for which it offers to the people no compensation.

It is regrettable that even the Santa Ana W. C. T. U., in its very worthy effort at encouraging law observance and declaring that "it takes two to make a bootlegger," has fallen into the esthetic error of erecting billboards along the highway for such purpose.

Although the question of prohibition is strictly legal and moral, when the progress of a nation is considered the billboard business is on a par with the saloon which eventually had to go.

Billboards constitute a moral question when the truth of the advertising they display is considered. They can't say enough to tell the truth in many cases, hence they constitute FALSE OR MISLEADING STATEMENTS. Dishonesty always strikes at morality!

HUNTINGTON BEACH

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. —Over a hundred pioneers of Huntington Beach and vicinity gathered at the Woman's clubhouse Friday evening, for the monthly social and dance. A short business session was conducted at which the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Walter Gisler, president; Frank Walker, Westminster, first vice president; Henry E. Talbert, Costa Mesa, second vice president; Louise Wardlow, Talbert, secretary; Pearl Jones, Huntington Meach, treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy F. Patrick have gone to Phoenix, Ariz., to visit at the ranch home of the former's parents.

Members of the J.O.C. class of the Methodist church enjoyed a party Tuesday night at the home of their teacher, Roy Callahan. The evening was spent in games and music. Plans were made for a trip to the mountains to spend the night.

A chicken dinner was enjoyed by 150 members of the Christian church Tuesday night. The ladies of the church opened their church savings bags and told how they they had saved and earned money for the church. The total amount earned was $150. A program was given consisting of musical selections by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Worthy and readings by Mrs. V. D. Pryor. A huge cake baked by Mrs. Kesterson was presented to the Rex. and Mrs. J. G. Hurst. It contained five candles commemmorating the fifth wedding anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. Hurst. The program was in charge of Mrs. F. W. Kirkpatrick. Mrs. P. E. Kesterson was chairman of the hostess committee and was assisted by Mrs. Leo Kopl, Mrs. Frank Catching, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. L. Harpold, Mrs. Anna Jacobs, Mrs. C. A. Herron, Mrs. W. McIndo, Mrs. P. W. Elliott. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. William McKee and Mr. and Mrs. Joe McKee of Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones, Long Beach and their house guest from Ohio.

William Quiggle, Long Beach, and Mrs. Iwa Kruger and son, Bobbie, of Los Angeles, were guests over the week end at the home of Earl Quiggle, 805 Frankfort street.

Mrs. Delpha McConahy came from Seattle by airplane to this city to spend the latter part of the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Newland. Mrs. McConahy will spend the winter in Long Beach where she has taken apartments.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Manning entertained Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Wentworth and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cameron of Whittier, and Baden Manning of Rockford, Ill.

Members of the choir of the Methodist church were entertained Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Z. W. Churchill. The evening was spent in playing games and listening to a musical program. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

WINTERSBURG

WINTERSBURG, Dec. —Mrs. L. A. Moore has returned from Otay, San Diego county, where a family gathering was held in the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Haptonstall.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray McCormick were pleasantly surprised Monday by Mr. McCormick's cousin, Herbert Stupeman, of Cozad, Neb., who remained with them as an over night guest. Mr. Stupeman is spending 10 days in California.

Mrs. Ellen Gothard and daughter, Mrs. Ethel Sebastian, motored to Azusa Sunday.

A group of the young people of the Wintersburg Methodist Episcopal league motored to Anaheim Saturday evening to attend the league banquet given at the First Methodist church. Those going from here were the Misses Geraldine Gardner, Velma Wentzel, Beth Burdette, Susan Russell, Zexie Nichols, June Slater, Isabelle Russell and Ruth Friend and Kenneth Moore, Dwane Moore, Alfred Stinson and Roy Wentzel.

The local Epworth league will on next Sunday evening give a special program, which will include the play "Cover To Cover," which will be given in observance of Epworth Herald week. Alfred Stinson, Bill Gardner, Janet McIntosh and Zexie Nichols will take parts in the play.

For Christmas the league is planning to go about the community early Christmas morning singing carols after which they will go to the church hall for a waffle breakfast. A committee to arrange for baskets of food, clothing and toys for the needy was appointed and it is to deliver these on Christmas. Miss Bennelyn Fox is chairman of the committee whose other members are Marjorie Cowling and Zexie Nochols.

A skating party which the league had planned for this week has been postponed on account of practice for the Christmas pageant for the church being necessary three evenings of each week until Christmas, Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening.s

A new member, Mrs. Blanche Taylor, of this place, was admitted to membership to the local Methodist church Sunday morning. Three little girls, Mildren, Loraine and Aileen, were baptised by the pastor, the Rev. Harry I. Smith.

Two special musical numbers, a duet by Mrs. John Stinson and Miss Delma Stinson, "No Disappointment In Heaven," at the morning service and a quartet number, "One Day," by the Misses Thalma Pratt, Geraldine Gardner, Ophelia Frost and Velma Wentzel were presented at the evening league service.

Mrs. J. Dameron and granddaughter, Lenaire Dameron, of Oceanside, returned Sunday to their home in company with Lee Young, of San Diego, who motored here for them, spending the day in the J. H. Pryor home.

One evening of their stay, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Morris, of Huntington Beach, came as visitors to the Pryor home and took the young people, Miss Demeron and Dean and John Pryor, to Long Beach for the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tracy motored to Whittier to spend a day as guests of Mr. Tracy's family during the week end.

Mrs. Cora Steck and Louis Steck had as surprise visitors in their home Sunday, Mrs. Steck's sister, Mrs. Laura Sisson, and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alivin Hunter and children, of Colton.

NEW BOOKS IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

"Ibsen the Master Builder" by A. E. Zucker was written after years of study and investigation. This included a trip to Norway and other countries of Europe for the purpose of talking to certain persons who knew Ibsen well and who were therefore able to throw light upon matters long in controversy.

Mr. Zucker has written a book that presents the Master Builder as a human hero. Through the book runs a vein of irony that arises from the conflict of Ibsen's heroic qualities as exemplified in his early polemic writings and even more strongly in his revolutionary social dramas, and the very unheroic lack of personal courage that made the young Ibsen take to his heels upon one occasion when the irate father of his sweetheart approached the young couple.

Ibsen's unhappy poverty-stricken early days in Norway, his voluntary and highly productive exile in Italy and Germany, his alternate friendly relations and violent disagreements with Bjornson, his eventual triumphs, and the tempests he aroused with his plays, especially "Ghosts," have all been woven into a well-connected and steadily interesting narrative.

Most of the biographies were written during his lifetime or shortly after his death. The present book has the advantage of greater perspective and detachment, and is as comprehensive as any volume available. To most readers of Ibsen this book will come as a revelation made probable by first hand evidence and ingenious interpretation of both his writings and of his own life.

Legacy of Sun Yatsen

The Chinese drama enacted by personalities in that land of the Orient who were fighting for freedom in thought and action, has never been fully understood by western civilization, confined as it has been to digesting merely news dispatches. A more comprehensive idea is given in "The Legacy of Sun Yatsen" by Gustav Amann, which has been translated by Philip Grove.

Here the history of the revolution in China with all its bewildering marches and countermarches is recorded with equal lucidity and impartiality. Not only does the reader have an exceptionally clear picture of the political and economic factors, but a well-defined description of the spiritual background from which these events arose as an inevitable development.

The remarkable feature of the book is the astonishing mental grasp of the various life currents, mental and spiritual, of what we must accustom ourselves to call one of the great nations of the world. One stands aghast at the revelations here chronicled, while a compelling virtue of the treatise is the restraint exercised so that the facts speak for themselves in all their poignancy.

Dr. Amann furnishes the reader with an embracing view of modern China, in the light of which can be judged the recent events which have brought this turbulent nation of the Orient again to the eyes of the world. It is, in fine, a vivid biography of the greatest of modern Chinese statesmen and a graphic portrayal of what is perhaps the most disturbed period of his country's history.

The book is made more valuable by several full page photogravure plates of the leading figures prior to and after the Revolution.

European Politics

Much of European politics and statesmanship is hidden behind a a veil of obscurity. We have an idea of turmoil and of things being upset without knowing just what is happening. In "Caps and Crowns of Europe" by Thomas Guerin we are given greater intimacy with the situation.

Through the antechambers of throne rooms, past the barriers that surround statesmen, a young diplomatist, who goes from the shores of the New World to visit the capitals of the Old World, takes the reader into formal gatherings or intimate meetings with the great. Something of what lies hidden behind the veils of censorship can be gleaned in this frank, thorough study of European leaders, their methods and the institutions over which they preside.

Deftly and skillfully Mr. Guerin sets the stage in each country, sketches in the background of national aspirations, sets up great figures of the time, outlines the political situations that hold the public eye. From Ireland to Greece, the reader meets sovereigns and statesmen, and in the final chapter he is transported to the picturesque and little known Republic of San Marino.

The book is illustrated with more than 30 portraits, many never published before, so that we meet many of these famous people in this way as well as on the printed page. There is an interesting foreword by Senator Raoul Dandurand, president of the sixth assembly, League of Nations.

Other new books in the library are:

Brown, H. C. — Grandmother Brown's Hundred Years.

DANGER LIES IN REDUCING DIETS

Unless They Have Bulk, Constipation is Inevitable

Today thousands of young women and girls are wondering why they are so miserable as they diet to reduce.

The trouble is that many of the new diets lack roughage which is necessary to clean the intestinal system. The symptoms are headaches, "gone" feelings and bad complexions. If allowed to continue constipation with its evils occurs.

By including Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in a reducing diet, you keep fit as you take off weight because you prevent constipation.

ALL-BRAN does not add fat to the body. It just sweeps the intestines clean of poisonous wastes. No pills nor drugs can play the part of ALL-BRAN in a reducing diet. Their dose has to be constantly increased and harmful results often follow.

You will like the appetizing, nut-sweet flavor of ALL-BRAN. Eat it in soups. On salads. Soaked in orange, prune or fruit juice. As a cereal with milk or cream. Delicious with honey added. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily — in chronic cases with every meal.

THRIFT BANNER IS AWARDED TO DELHI SCHOOL

Delhi school, with an increase of 18.5 per cent in the number of depositors in school savings for the month of November, today received the school savings banner, to be displayed in their school for the next month. The banner was presented this morning at the school's assembly by Harold Fish, manager of the Santa Ana Banks' School Savings association.

J. A. Cranston, superintendent of schools, in his talk at the presentation, praised the achievement of Delhi school in thrift and acknowledge the splendid work done by Mrs. Bragg, Delhi school principal, and the teachers associated with her.

Second place in this month's competition was won by Edison school, with an increase of 11 per cent, and third place by Lincoln school, with an increase of 11 per cent.

The Santa Ana schools turned in the following percentage of children depositing weekly in school savings for the month of November:

Fremont, 74.89 per cent; Delhi, 60.3 per cent; Edison, 49 per cent; Franklin, 31.1 per cent; Logan, 35.5 per cent; Jefferson, 36.91 per cent; John Muir, 24.78 per cent; Julia Lathrop, 20.5 per cent; Lincoln, 70 per cent; Lowell, 33 per cent; McKinley, 67 per cent; Roosevelt, 33.5 per cent; Spurgeon, 75.8 per cent; Willard, 25.6 per cent.

During the month of November, in the four weekly collections, there were 8429 deposits made in school savings by the children in the 14 Santa Ana schools. The report showed that $2240.03 was deposited during the month and 302 new accounts started.

India reports that for every 65 pounds of narcotics legally imported 265 pounds are confiscated from illegal traffickers.

IMPORTANCE OF MAKING WILL AND VALUE OF BANK SERVICE EXPLAINED BY L. H. ROSEBERRY

Former Senator Loius H. Roseberry, vice president of the Security-First National bank of Los Angeles, brought home to 500 of Santa Ana's business leaders, who crowded the Knights of Pythias hall late today, the importance of making a will and gave them new insight into the services of a modern trust department. Those present were guests of the bank's Santa Ana branch.

TALK ON 'WILLS'

Louis H. Roseberry, who addressed a large group of Santa Ana business leaders, this afternoon, on the importance of wills and explained the valuable services of a modern trust department.

The speaker, who is accepted as one of the foremost trust authorities of the nation, declared that "those who die without a will do so through ignorance." Every advantage the law gives to you is obtained only with a will, and never without it, he explained.

"Fear and superstition," Roseberry said, "are the prime causes for people failing to make wills. Too often the memory of an otherwise estimable friend or citizen is sullied by the fact that he neglected to leave adequate protection for his dear ones. No matter how much money one may have accumulated before death it may be of little benefit to those who need it unless its proper distribution and conservation are insured by a good and valid will.

Sickbed Wills Often Faulty

"Your will should be made while you still are in good health. Sickbed wills often are faulty wills. Procrastination often has been the cause of unnecessary suffering on the part of dependents left behind.

"A will never should be drawn while the maker is in anger. It is a matter which should be attended to with calm deliberation and with intelligent regard for its ultimate effect. 'Spite' wills are a curse of the probate court and frequently a cause of unending litigation and misery to the very persons whom a testator sought to benefit.

"Avoid trouble-breeding, unjustifiable discrimination between heirs. It may result in just the reverse of what you wish to accomplish. Let it be apparent from the very spirit of your will that it was drawn in cool judgment, without malice, and with honest intent to be fair and just to everyone concerned.

"Do you realize that, should you fail to make a will, the whole of the community property will go to your surviving husband or wife, as the case may be, and that your children will get no part of it? You should know what proportion of your separate property will go by law to your widow and children, irrespective of the terms of your will.

Bank Service Explained

"To meet the growing demand for sound and impartial advice in the planning of wills, the administration of estates, the distribution of life insurance proceeds after death, the creation of guardianships, custodianships and voluntary trusts, banks generally are instituting programs of trust expansion. Bank customers have expressed amazement at the low cost of trust service. They are surprised to learn that executors' fees are fixed by law and are the same whether the executor is a bank or an individual. For an estate of $50,000 this fee amounts to only $1380.

"Many believe that trust fees are high and are prohibitive for the person of small estate or limited means. This is a popular misconception. As a matter of fact they vary from one per cent on the principal, which is the very highest charge, down to as low as one-tenth of one per cent a year on the value of property subject to the trust. For these fees the bank furnishes a responsibility and management to property committed to its care which is not procurable from individuals."

FIRST SMOKER MAY BE GIVEN SPANISH HONOR

AYAMONTE, Province of Huelva, Spain, Dec. 5.—(UP)—A movement is on foot to perpetuate the memory of Rodrigo de Jerez, a citizen of Ayamonte, whose claim to distinction lies in the fact that he was the first person in Europe to smoke.

Rodrigo de Jerez was one of the three Ayamonte citizens to accompany Christopher Columbus on his voyage of discovery. Tradition has it that Columbus personally recruited these men, and that Columbus himself lived in Ayamonte for a short while.

When Rodrigo returned from America he rejoined his family and ceased his wanderings, but he had brought back with him a habit which was to get him into trouble—that of smoking. He also brought an ample supply of tobacco leaves. When Rodrigo's wife saw him smoking for the first time, she thought him possessed of devils, and as a true faithful churchwoman that she was, immediately informed the Inquisition of what had transpired. None other than the famous Father Tomas de Torquemada heard the case, and consigned Rodrigo to prison and ordered the house purified and blessed. By the time that he had done his sentence, there were several hundred tobacco smokers in Europe.

Ayamonte has already honored Rodrigo by naming a street after him, the very street on which he lived. His house still stands, and now the town council (Ayuntamiento) wants the Spanish Tobacco Monopoly—which derives great wealth due to the popularity of the habit brought to Europe by Rodrigo—to pay the expenses of having the house suitably designated by placing a marble marker pointing out its historical sigrificance.

ORANGE

ORANGE, Dec. 6.—Judge and Mrs. J. W. Ingle spent Sunday in Long Beach.

The members of the W. R. C. will elect officers at the regular meeting of the organization Wednesday.

The first of a series of Sunday evening services which are to be conducted at the First Christian church by the Intermediate department was held Sunday evening. A chorus of 35 voices under the direction of Mrs. Walter Kelger, sang several choruses. A piano solo was given by Miss Alice DesLarzes, a reading by Miss Luberta Morgan and a piano solo was played as a prelude by Miss Mary Esther Wood.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the First Methodist church will meet in the church on Thursday afternoon. An interesting program has been prepared.

SHOWS FIRE'S BIRTH

The legendary drama of how fire came to primitive people drew thousands to the picturesque desert near Palm Springs, Calif., for the annual Desert Play, staged at the mouth of a mountani canyon, whose rock-lined walls served as a natural amphitheater. The characters above are Fire, played by Lester Horton and the Fire Sprites played by Mildred Wheat and Mary Hodge.

MARY AND BOB TO VISIT BIRMINGHAM

Mary and Bob, the itinerant representatives of True Story hour, have been asked to assist in the Red Cross Christmas drive and their air audience is invited to join them at 9 o'clock tonight, in a Southern home, in Birmingham, Ala. The True Story hour is broadcast over WABC and the coast-to-coast stations of the Columbia system, including KHJ.

The evening entertainment to which Mary and Bob listen consists of a concert of southern music. The Red Cross chapter here is achieving splendid results among the iron and coal workers of the district. Then after the music, they hear a story that finds its locale among the simple people of the adjacent mining districts.

It is a story of primal passion and of a woman's hatred more deadly than the venomous sting of a serpent.

SHE'S RADIO STAR AT 16

Piacenza, Italy, is proud of the fact that it was the birthplace of Nita Novi, little Italian lass who plays an accordion at WNYC, New York. Signorina Novi came to this country at the age of 6 and started her musical career as a pianist. She finally took up the accordion, and now at the age of 16 is an expert with the "wind piano." She is shown here with her pet accordion, which is nearly as large as she is.

RADIATING with the Radio Editor

C. E. Wilson, Manager of the O. S. Philco To Offer First Scene From Naughty Marietta

The first scene of Act II of "Naughty Marietta," a comic opera by Victor Herbert, with book and lyrics by Rida Johnson Young, will be presented by Jessica Dragonette, soprano, Robert Simmons, tenor, and a supporting cast under the direction of Harold Sanford when Philco's Theater Memories are broadcast through the NBC coast-to-coast system, including KFI, from 6:30 to 7 o'clock, Pacific standard time, tonight.

Action in this scene takes place at the Mationette theater, where Rudolfo is instructing Marietta in the workings of the wooden actors. Etienne enters and asks Marietta to end her masquerade as Rudolfo's son lest her father, the Count, arrive. They discuss the Quadroon ball, which is to be held at the Jeunesse Doree club.

There are different degrees of the "tapering lines," so that every type and figure may be suited. Colors too, are the new and approved shades.

Developed in Crepes In Satins, Moires and Prints

Not one important style-note that is not incorporated in these dresses even though the price is so low!

Hems to the heel. Molded hip-lines.
The "nipped-in" waist.
The dipping drape.
Vertical cordings to give slenderness
Circular flares and godets.

All these little tricks of Style aid the trend toward slenderizing the waist and outlining the figure to give long, long lines. For those who are not slim, these trends are very artfully handled.

BOYS' SUITS AND OVERCOATS that will please the boy and his parents too!

The Suits

Collegiate cuts with the snap the boy wants and the manly style that pleases parents. The woolen fabrics, supple as young muscles, are made for an active boy's wear.

Long Trouser Suits $7.95 to $13.95

Knicker Suits $5.95 to $13.95

An IDEAL GIFT for HIM!

The Overcoats

Warm, burly woolen coats tailored to give the man of tomorrow the smart appearance of the well dressed young man of today. The sturdy overcoat fabrics will keep their smartness unusually well under the hardest wear.

For Boys from 3 to 9 years $6.40 to $11.95

For Boys from 10 to 17 years $8.95 to $13.95

Outline on subject of Oratorical Contest, and Excerpts from a Sermon by Harry Emerson Fosdick for High School Oratorical Contestants and Others.

Outline on Subject of Oratorical Contest and Excerpts from a Sermon by Harry Emerson Fosdick for High School Oratorical Contestants and Others.

The outline and material printed below comprises the 11th publication of material intended for the use of the high school students in helping them to prepare their orations for the forthcoming oratorical contests on the subject, "The Citizens' Obligation of the Eighteenth Amendment," which culminate in the finals in Santa Ana on Feb. 28.

Each high school has been furnished some material for the use of its students. There are some books and pamphlets in the office of The Register which can be used by the students at any time they desire to come in. An hour will be set apart for help in the way of counsel by Register representatives for any high school students who desire additional information.

The next installment of this material will be published next Monday night. It might be well not only for the students but for all people who desire to keep informed on this matter to preserve these papers for the clippings.

We are going to keep the outline printed below in this department of the paper, as we feel that it covers the field very well. It will aid the student by showing him how information which is printed here and gathered elsewhere will apply to the subject. This is not presented of course as an outline for the speech, but is given merely to assist the student to marshal his material. We hope that some of it will help him in formulating his oration and will bolster what he gathers together in his preparation. By a study of this outline the contestants can see that logically any fact, whether it be of the history of the movement, the effects of alcohol, the social aspects or the nature of adoption, may be used as material on the question, "The Obligation of the Citizen to the Eighteenth Amendment."

The Obligations of the Citizens to the Eighteenth Amendment

I.—Obligations of citizens to all law.
- A. Nature of law.
- B. Object of law.
- C. Relation of law to liberty.
- D. Background of any law.
- E. Necessity of the particular law or constitution.
- F. Purpose of the Constitution or the law.

II.—Eighteenth Amendment.
- A. The culmination of years of teaching and work.
- B. Effects on the social life of the community.
- 1. Effects on human body.
- C. Effects on the economic life of the community.
- D. Effects on the political life of the community and state.
- E. History of the development of the law.
- 1. First temperance society, 1808.
- 2. Washingtonian movement.
- 3. Sons of temperance.
- 4. Good Templars.
- 5. Murphy movement.
- 6. W. C. T. U.
- 7. Prohibition party.
- 8. Anti-Saloon League.
- 9. Various church temperance societies.
- F. Eighteenth Amendment has its foundation in needs of social life and common good.
- G. Development of political action.
- 1. Local option laws.
- 2. Township, city, county and state prohibition laws.
- 3. Thirty-three states already having adopted prohibition before national prohibition.
- 4. Methods of adoption of Constitutions.
- 5. Resolution through congress.
- 6. Adoption by legislatures of states.
  - a. All but two states ratified eighteenth amendment.
- H. History of activities since adopted by United States.
- 1. Decrease of activities since adopted by United States.
- 1. Decrease of various forms of evil resulting from liquor traffic.
  - a. Bank accounts.
  - b. Condition of homes.
  - c. Purchase of homes.
  - d. Purchase of materials and luxuries, automobiles, etc.
- 1. The adoption of it has vindicated the wisdom of the people in adopting it.

(Excerpts from Sermon by Harry Emerson Fosdick)

Here is another superstition: that taking drink away from people or making it dangerous or expensive, has driven them to drugs. Alas, the lamentable increase in drug addiction since prohibition —how often we hear that. What are the facts? The facts apparently are, as Professor Feldman of Dartmouth makes clear after a searching investigation that all authoritative reports say one of two things: the majority say that there is a positive decrease in drug addiction since prohibition; the rest say that there is absolutely no evidence of an increase. The Foreign Policy Association of New York City also made an investigation, writing to all the known authorities in the United States and, as well, to settlement workers, prison wardens, and anybody who might know anything about the matter, and the report is unanimous: no increase in drug addiction since prohibition. Upon the contrary, the evidence indicates that even before prohibition the heaviest drug addiction was associated with the heaviest liquor consumption.

Less Intoxication in Colleges

Here is another superstition: that drinking in the colleges has greatly increased. Anybody who knows history knows that after a war a period of moral laxness is due, so that, whatever kind of liquor system we had, we were in for trouble from 1918 on. If we had had the old system we should have had a wild time with our youth. As it is, we have had a fairly wild time. Some bad things have been afoot, such as the hip-flask habit, that for a time seemed so alluring, but the idea that drinking in the colleges has greatly increased, is, I suspect a superstition.

That idea has in the main been engendered by the young people themselves. They have rather liked seeming dreadful. They have wanted on the whole the reputation of being wild and dangerous. It is they who have informed us how bad they are. But they lacked the background to judge by: they did not know how bad we were.

If therefore, you wish to know the facts, you would better consult people who have lived in the colleges with both generations. Here, for example, is President Wilbur of Leland Stanford Pniversity of California. All of us who know him know that he is no saint with blind eyes and wool in his ears. What he says is:

"There is no doubt that there has been a marked decrease in the use of alcoholic beverages among the college students with whom I come in contact. Compared with the period before the present laws were put into effect, I should say that we have only one-tenth of the problem we had at that time in connection with liquor."

Jump the continent and come to Yale. Here is Professor Charles C. Clark of the Disciplinary Committee of Yale speaking under oath:

"I am not a prohibitionist, and have never been. I will admit to you, however, that the effect of prohibition at Yale University has been good. I know whereof I speak, for I have been a member of the committee on Discipline from a time dating back many years before prohibition. I know conditions intimately, I do not pretend that the students are prohibitionists or are not drinking, but the change has been simply revolutionary. In the old days our Committee was constantly busy with cases involving intoxication and the disorders originating from it. Now we have practically no business of the kind at all to transact. Moreover, this is in spite of the fact that in the old days we rarely troubled ourselves about a case of mere intoxication if it had not resulted in some kind of public disorder, whereas now intoxication of itself is regarded as calling for the severest penalty."

If you are thinking of academies, listen to Principal Stearns of Phillips Andover, as he sums up a nation-wide investigation of the secondary schools.

"The schools reporting," he says, "are practically unanimous in their testimony that drinking among undergraduates is steadily on the wane, while a number emphasize the fact that the past year has proved the best on record."

Represents Majority Viewpoint

I do not mean that you cannot get contrary evidence on this point. You can get contrary evidence on any point. But I am certain that this represents the overwhelming majority of those who speak with authoritative knowledge about schools and colleges. As for the nation as a whole, as unprejudiced an investigation as I know reports that we are using about one-quarter as much liquor as we used before prohibition.

In this regard, as in others, it would be advantageous if the American people did not believe so thoroughly in the infallibility of headlines.

I have not been presenting a legislative program to cure our present tangled situation. That is not my forte. But if you wish my personal judgment as to the sort of program that the Christian church as a whole will stand behind and should stand behind in dealing with this prohibition question, I can put it in a few sentences:

First, we will fight to the last ditch any step that looks like going back to the saloon. We know well that we have an unsatisfactory situation on our hands. We are not for a moment content with it, but we know it is better than the thing we got rid of.

Second, so long as the present laws are on the books we will stand for their observance and enforcement. We will no more supinely surrender to the lawlessness of bootlegging than we supinely surrendered to the even more extensive and financially powerful lawlessness of the old saloon regime.

Third, there are some types of solution to which we never will consent, and one is putting the government, state or nation, into the liquor business. We have refused so far to entrust the ownership and management of railroads to the government, although theoretical arguments make government ownership and management of railroads altogether reasonable. We have seen clearly that the government is not yet fit to handle that immense accession of economic power. Far less safe is it to make our national and state capitols the headquarters of the most corrupting business this country has ever seen.

Fourth, as to any alterations in the law, we will trust them to those whom we know to be friendly to the law's major intent. There may well come a time when the law should be changed. No law is infallible. But whoever proposes to construct and carry through such alterations would better first of all persuade the people of the church that he is sympathetic with the major aim for which the law originally was framed.

At the heart of the Christian conscience of this country there is a conviction—make up your mind to it— that the liquor traffic and the Christian Gospel stand for two diverse and contradictory conceptions of personal and social life.

SEEK TRASH SITE FOR LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 6. — Where to dump and burn trash collected in the city was put up to the realtors of this community by the city council when protests against two locations were before the city council at the Wednesday evening session.

A petition containing many signatures was filed. This was against the use of a site in Arch Beach. But the council had already abandoned its purpose in using this location and had finally devided on one back of the dairy, just inside the city limits, to be purchased from Austin Cody for $2500. This was announced by Mayor Frank B. Champion.

But opposition to this site was advanced by George E. Thompson, Leigh Galloway, Brayton S. Norton, A. Dillon and others, who pointed to its probable effect in lowering property values. Dr. F. E. Callister, A. B. Marshall, A. B. Collins and others spoke. Finally Dr. B. B. Mason urged a motion by which the council allows realtors two weeks on their own suggestion to find a more suitable site, if none be found by the next meeting of the council the latter body to complete its purchase of the Cody dump site near the dairy.

Lecture On Europe For Laguna Beach

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 6.—Lrguna Beach children will be taken on a personally conducted tour of seven European countries Saturday evening. Films taken by Dr. Stewart J. Fitch will be the means. These pictures were taken during the past year when the doctor was traveling in Europe.

No admission will be charged but a collection will be taken as a benefit for the library. Dr. Fitch will lecture, explaining the pictures. He will be dressed in costume, that of a Normandy fisherman, and his two small children will also be in costume.

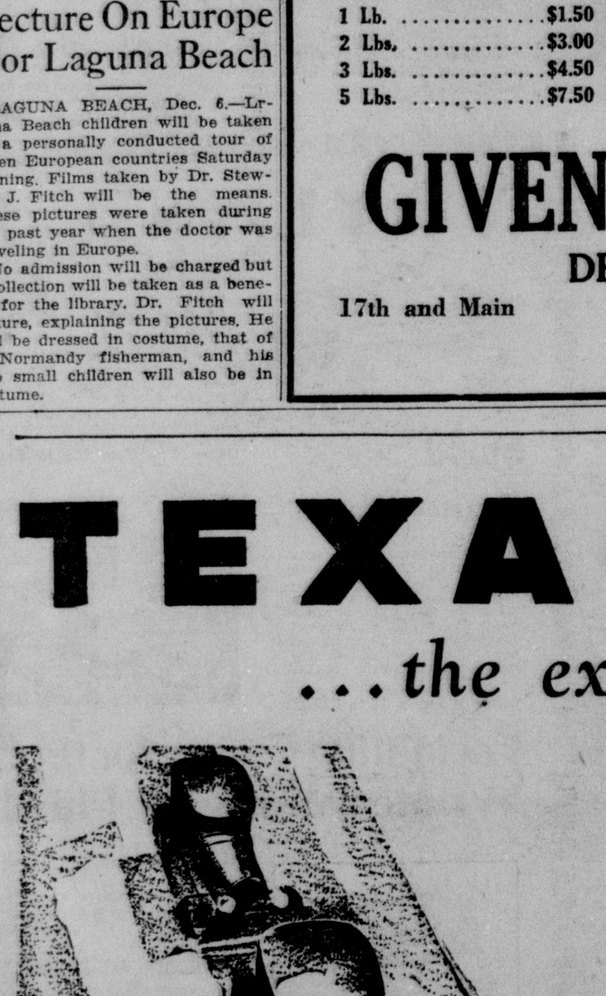
TEXACO

...the exclusive selection!



Lyle Anderson, popular manager of the new elaborately appointed Goodrich Rubber Company Super-Service station at First and Broadway, has selected Texaco products exclusively because—

TEXACO New and Better Gasoline knows no seasons! Winter or summer it enters the combustion chambers of your engine as a dry gas—an active mixture of gasoline and air which responds instantly to the first spark flash. Texaco gives premium performance at no premium price.

TEXACO Clean Clear Golden Motor Oil, as clean and pure as the name implies, has that clear, full body which will not break down at any engine temperature.

In every state in the Union and in 46 foreign countries the Texaco Red Star with the Green T is recognized as an emblem of uniform high quality products. This remarkable recognition is the result of 27 years of steady research and experiment.

When you stop in to visit Lyle and his beautiful new presentation, fill up with Texaco New and Better Gasoline and Texaco Clean Clear Golden Motor Oil — you will then realize the real worth of his judgment in bringing to you the best products.

1. A wet gas is an atomized mixture of gasoline vapor in which are suspended drops of raw gasoline.
2. These drops of raw gasoline form an uneven mixture which resists the action of the spark.
3. Result: Destructive crankcase dilution, difficult starts, slow acceleration—a sluggish motor.

1. The new and better Texaco vaporizes so readily that it forms a dry gas—an active mixture of gasoline and air.
2. This pure, dry gas responds instantly to the action of the spark.
3. Result: Lightning starts, rapid acceleration, smooth action—power!

DEATH OF WOMAN HELD ACCIDENTAL

FULLERTON, Dec. 6.—The death of Mrs. W. W. McCready of Pasadena, who succumbed Wednesday to injuries received in an accident on North Spadra road at 4:30 p. m., Saturday, was accidental, was the verdict of a coroner's jury yesterday afternoon in the J. E. Seale funeral parlors.

The coroner's jury exonerated G. Gonzales, the driver of the car.

According to Gonzales, who was a witness at the inquest, Mrs. McCready apparently did not notice his car approaching or misjudged the speed. He put on his brakes and swerved to avoid striking her but she walked into the rear fender and was knocked down.

Funeral services were held for Mrs. McCready this afternoon from the Christensen and Moore funeral parlors in Covina, where the body was taken yesterday afternoon by J. E. Seale.

TOMORROW . . . at Sunrise

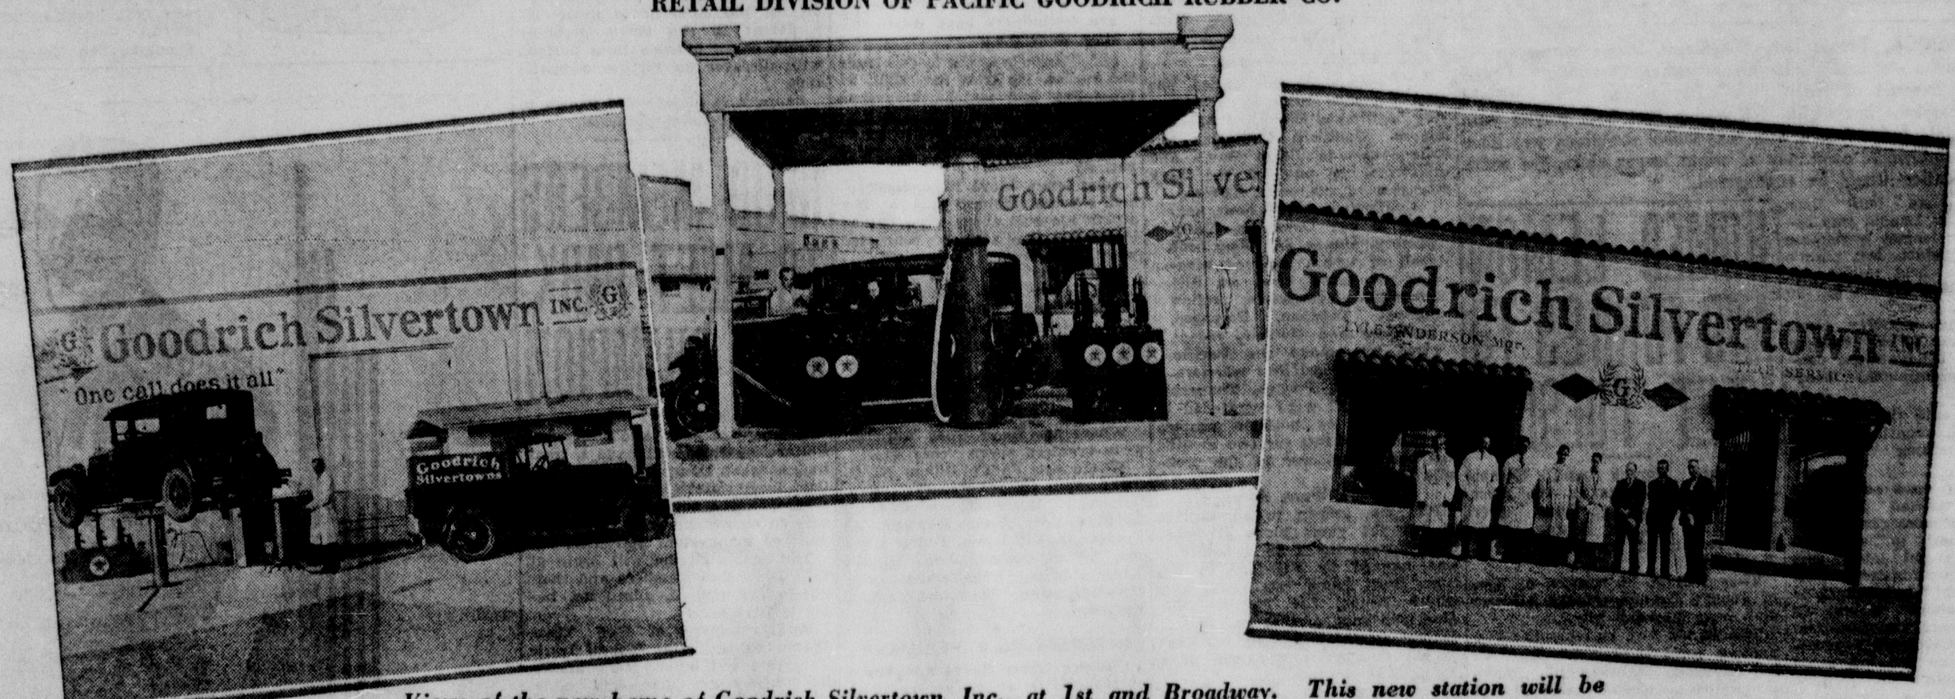
RETAIL DIVISION OF PACIFIC GOODRICH RUBBER CO.



Views of the new home of Goodrich Silvertown, Inc., at 1st and Broadway. This new station will be formally opened to Santa Ana motorists Saturday morning. You are cordially invited to come and join in the festivities.

At sunrise Saturday morning, doors and driveways of the new home of Goodrich Silvertown, Inc., at the corner of First and Broadway, will be opened to the car owners of Santa Ana. The opening of this super-fine service station in Santa Ana brings you something decidedly new in motor car service. Our affiliation with the great organization of Goodrich will enable us to operate our business more efficiently and economically and to pass on to you the economies of an organized service and a greater buying power. It simply means that the great company which bears the name "Goodrich" is back of every product we sell or service. It brings you a complete service that functions with such speed and exactness that you may now spend less time in getting service and considerably less money in paying for it.

You will find this station a regular department store of automotive service, and none but the finest of merchandise will be carried in stock. Of course we will have the famous Goodrich Silvertowns which made such an astounding record on the Silver Fleet this year . . . Texaco gasoline and motor oils, and a complete line of U. S. L. batteries.
The spirit of this new station is the spirit of the day . . . SPEED. An expert crew and accurate equipment enables us to do your work more quickly and better—at a price that will greatly reduce the cost of operating your car.
Drive in Saturday and see this new service plant . . . come and enjoy the program which has been arranged for your entertainment.

Goodrich Tires

Wet Weather is a-Comin'

For safe driving on wet, slippery streets, trade in your old smooth tires for new, sharp tread Silvertowns.

Would you like to be freed from all tire worry . . . then let us tell you about the Silvertown De Luxe . . . the tire that is built to outlast your car. Its record on the Silver Fleet is astounding.

SATURDAY ONLY

With the renewed emphasis which is now being placed on the regulation of headlights, we are making a special offer on those Mazda head lamp kits which come in so handy when the emergency arises. The kit contains two standard headlight bulbs, dash and tail lights to fit your car . . . complete 95c, Saturday only.

FUN FOR ALL !

Miss Silvertown and her corps of assisting hostesses will be on hand at the station all day to see that you are supplied with candy, souvenirs, cigarettes and flowers.
"Miss Silvertown" will also have a supply of balloons and novelties for the kiddies—so bring them with you when you come to visit us.
On Saturday afternoon there will be an attractive musical program presented at the station, through huge amplifiers located on the building. Mr. Anderson will have some important announcements to make during this program, which will interest you.
Beginning at 5:30, you will be entertained by the well-known Joe Sanford and his popular orchestra. At dusk the entire lot will be illuminated by a battery of Kleig lights from the movie studios of Hollywood. Don't miss this!

FREE !

Christmas isn't far away, and to give ourselves a head start, we are going to give away a long list of valuable merchandise, including tires, tubes to fit your car, batteries, radio cushions and a number of other items which you will find acceptable.
Come over and join in the fun we are all going to have. You will not be asked to buy, as the purpose of this opening is simply to acquaint you with the kind of service and organization which we are establishing in Santa Ana. We believe that when you become acquainted with us, you will want to come back whenever you are in need of merchandise or the service we have available.
COME OVER JOIN THE FUN

FREE! FREE!

In celebration of the opening of this new station, we are offering a complete and thorough grease job, absolutely FREE with every crank case drained and refilled with Texaco Golden motor oil, on the opening day.

We have installed the latest developments in high pressure greasing equipment, and the purpose of this offer is to acquaint you with the kind of service we can render. Don't fail to take advantage of this opportunity to get a fine grease job absolutely FREE . . . Saturday only.

Watch for the Airplane

Promptly at 4:00 P. M., Saturday afternoon, a squadron of planes will take off from Eddie Martin's airport and perform an aerial salute over the new station. This will be a spectacular sight well worth seeing, and of course the proper place to see it is from the service court of our new station, at First and Broadway. Come early.

Opening Special

Why worry along and take chances on being stranded with a weak, worn out battery? These short days and cool mornings overtax a weakened battery and it may quit without warning at any moment. As a special offer on the opening day, we will sell you a brand new 11-plate battery, guaranteed for one year, for your old battery and only $5.45

(This offer good only for December 7th)

MAJOR LEAGUE OWNERSHIP OF MINOR LOOP BASEBALL TEAMS IS ASSAILED BY JUDGE LANDIS

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 6.—Major league ownership of minor league clubs was assailed by Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis at the annual banquet of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues here last night. Charging that both parties were equally responsible Judge Landis said that unless something was done to get back to individual ownership of minor league clubs, the entire baseball organization would be endangered.

Although it has long been known that Judge Landis was opposed to major league ownership of minor league clubs, last night's speech was the first public denouncement of that system by the baseball commissioner.

"There is more activity along this line now than at any time in the eight years I have been connected with professional baseball," said Landis.

Judge Landis said that he was going to "keep hammering at this thing until something was done about it."

Minor league owners and officials generally reacted favorably to Judge Landis' remarks. After the speech they gathered in groups in the hotel lobby and agreed almost unanimously that "the judge is right," but seemed to be perplexed about where to start in to correct the situation.

The St. Louis Cardinals, generally conceded to be the originator of the farm system on a large scale, did not have a representative at the banquet. The Cardinals last season controlled no less than half a dozen minor league clubs, including Rochester, Houston, Danville, Ill., Fort Wayne, Ind., Shawnee, Okla., and Scottdale, Pa.

Practically every major league club has at least one minor league farm, and many of them have several.

KEARNS, GARDEN IN BOXING PEACE PACT

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—A feud between Jack Kearns and Madison Square Garden corporation, which started when the late Tex Rickard sided with Jack Dempsey at the time the former champion was preparing to break with his dapper manager, has ended.

The peace pact was arranged by Frank Bruen, vice president of the Garden, and Teddy Hayes, Kearns' private secretary. Under its terms the Garden will interpose with the New York athletic commission to have Kearns and Mickey Walker, his fighter, reinstated by the commission, and in return Kearns will give the Garden first call on Walker's services for any fight he may have in the east.

Carnegie Tech To Use Two Systems

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 6.—Developments in Carnegie Tech's football practice yesterday indicated that Coach Bob Waddell will follow the same system against Southern California in Los Angeles on Dec. 14 that he used against New York university Thanksgiving day.

In defeating New York, Carnegie employed two different styles of play—passing and running—and called on two separate combinations. By making several changes in the backfield and one in the line, Carnegie can shift its offensive system. Both the passing and running combinations were given long workouts yesterday.

SELECTED SOCCER CAPTAIN

Frank Skerm of Germantown, Pa., has been elected captain of the Wesleyan soccer team for next season. He has played center halfback for two seasons.

ROMEO LEMON AND FORBES TO MEET TUESDAY

Frankie Forbes and Romeo Lemon, participants in the most spectacular boxing bout ever waged in Orange county, have been rematched by Promoter H. T. Foust.

They will go 10 rounds, or less, at Foust's Orange County Athletic club next Tuesday night.

The Santa Ana matchmaker had another joust booked for the 10th but canceled it when his clients demanded a second meeting between the two knock-down-and-drag-out principals.

Baby Jack Dempsey and Jimmy Piela, featherweights, will top the suporting program. They have signed for six rounds. The rest of the card follows:

Billy Montoya vs. Henry Inlowe, 135 pounds, four rounds.

Forbes and Lemon, the main-eventers, fought a hair-raising draw at the Orange County Athletic club November 26. Forbes appeared to be an easy winner for five rounds during which he had the rangy Fullerton welterweight on the floor five times, but Lemon came out of it, retaliated by smashing Forbes to the mat just as many times and got an even-stephen decision.

The fight had the whole house on its feet throughout. Every newspaper critic in the county agreed it was the district's most sensational encounter of all-time.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6—Frankie Campbell and Tony Stabenau will be the main attraction on the Hollywood American Legion card tonight. A strong supporting card has been signed for the evening's entertainment.

EASTERN TEAM ACCEPTS GAME FOR JANUARY 1

BY GEORGE H. BEALE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—The University of Southern California and the University of Pittsburgh will meet in the annual East-West football clash of the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena New Years' Day.

Weeks of speculation regarding the contest ended here today when the Trojan institution made the announcement that the Panthers had accepted an invitation to play. Southern California was named as the Western team two days ago.

"We have no details yet," the Southern California athletic office said, "we just received a flash from Pitt stating it had acted favorably on our invitation."

The news that Pitt was to be the Eastern representative in the historical encounter received almost as much acclaim locally as the selection of Southern California as the Western team.

Pitt is Undefeated

Pitt, undefeated and untied, has been regarded here as having a very legitimate claim for national honors. Southern California despite losses to Notre Dame and California, is one of the very strongest of the coast elevens.

Californians have been anxious to see Donchess, Montgomery, Uansa and Parkinson—all of whom received mention of some kind on All-American squads—in action against Tappaan, Barrager, Saunders and Duffield, recognized as among the Pacific Coast's best gridiron warriors.

Notre Dame, Purdue, Tennessee and Tulane all were mentioned in past weeks as possible eastern selections but Pitt for two months has been considered as the probable team.

Panthers Want Revenge

Pitt was known to be anxious to get the game since it never quite forgot the 7 to 6 defeat it was handed by Stanford in the Rose Bowl game two years ago. Gibby Welch, the Panther All-American back of that year, never did get started and the game went to Stanford by the margin of a point after touchdown.

Just as the contest will be the second for the Panthers in the Rose Bowl it will be second for the Trojans.

Southern California defeated Hugo Bezdek's Penn State team, 14 to 3, in 1923 and then refused to compete in New Years' games because of a dispute with a Tournament of Roses official.

That official withdrew this year and paved the way for Southern California to accept the committee's invitation.

Southern California meets another Pittsburgh team before it finishes its season schedule and begins to prepare to meet Pitt. Carnegie Teach, defeated by Pitt, meets the Trojans here December 14.

WHERE DO THEY GO?

Boxing must be an enervating process. They come and go in that business like moths around the chandeliers, here today and gone tomorrow.

Maybe the employment isn't stable enough. Maybe the depreciation on beaks and ears is too great. Maybe gymnasium hours lose their glamour.

Whatever the reason, few fighters last.

What has become of the fellows who occupied the limelight when ears were in flower here six or seven years ago?

As far as I know not more than half a dozen of the gladiators who used to work at Boyd Ellis' "Barn" back in 1922 and 1923, when boxing first began to flourish, are still identified with the profession.

Johnny Nandez, Hank Gatton, Eddie Benson, Young Terry, Johnny Adams and Jack Sparr are the ones I can recall who were fighting then and are fighting now. Adams, Gatton and Sparr did fairly well but Terry, Nandez and Benson are preliminary boys now as they were then.

Kid Mexico was the last to leave the racket. He tried his skill at promoting and matchmaking when he began to slip as a fighting man but the sledding was pretty tough and Mexico finally quit the game entirely.

Jack Iman, Lloyd Neal, Sherman and Norman Holmes and a few others are still about town but no longer are they actively connected with boxing.

Where are they? They were all main-eventers seven years ago.

INTERESTING EXPERIMENT

Coaches Harry Sheue and Miner of Huntington Beach are going to try an interesting experiment in pre-season basketball.

They plan to hold a Southern California basketball tournament, inviting virtually the same schools that annually participate in the Southern Counties track meet.

Competition will be conducted the first two days of Christmas vacation, Thursday, December 19 and Friday, December 20.

Thirteen schools already have accepted invitations. Sheue and Miner expect to close with 16 entries.

"We have seen just a little hesitant in attempting this because it seems to be an entirely new event in Southern Cali-

HARVARD FOOLED YALE

Jabish Holmes was a football player on the Harvard team of '78, in the days of Walter Camp and Thayer, inventor of the catcher's mask. He still is a football player when the big day comes, as he sits in memories of the games that were.

This is the story of one of the games of the old days, as told to Ralph Trost of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle. The teams of that day played at Springfield, midway between Cambridge and New Haven. Says Mr. Holmes:

LIE ON HARD TURF

"Harvard one day thought up a fine idea. It had a little shack drawn over near one of the entrances to this fair grounds on which the battle was held and into that little cabin heaters and cots were put.

"When the half came to an end the Yale team ambled off to its usual resting place on hard, cold turf. It wasn't the pleasantest sort of place for sweating men to lie. Harvard, instead of going to its side where it would be surrounded by having rooters, moved out to its little house where it was quartered warmly and comfortably while Yale was on the outside looking on.

"Of course the Harvard team was considerably refreshed after its comfortable period and had a big jump on Yale in the next half. I have to laugh every time I think of that Yale team.

BRICKLEY'S OPERATION

"One other time I recall was one of football's most pleasing memories to that great coach Percy Haughton. This occurred in the days when Charlie Brickley was at his best and besides the great dropkicker Harvard had Eddie Mahan, doubtless one of the smoothest running backs ever to wear cleated shoes.

"Only a comparatively short time before the Yale game Brickley was operated on for appendicitis. The sage Walter Camp had an idea that Haughton would find some means of getting Brickley into this game and expected his presence would lend a strong psychological advantage to Harvard. How well Percy knew his stuff.

DON OFFICIALS DECIDE ON BIG GAME MONDAY

Santa Ana junior college officials will decide Monday whether to accept a bid from the Bellefonte, Pa. Military academy for a post-season intersectional football game in Southern California, probably at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Announcement to this effect was taken to mean that the Dons' showing in their state championship game at Sacramento tomorrow will influence the ultimate decision.

If the local collegians defeat Sacramento the game undoubtedly will be "on," it is understood. If the Dons tie or make an impressive showing the contest may be played. In case the Santa Anans lose decisively to the Northern California jaycee titleholders their season probably will be officially closed.

Spokesmen for the Bellefonte academy indicated they would meet Santa Ana whether the Dons won or lost the Sacramento game but a defeat in the north probably would cause officials here to look with disfavor on further competition.

CLUB MEMBERS TO MEET PARK, MAT CHAMPION

Members of Jack Dod's Physical Culture institute will have a treat tonight when Douglas Park, world's light heavyweight wrestling champion, makes a personal appearance here in connection with Dod's "revue" of gymnasium activities.

The demonstration will begin at 8:30. Only club members and their guests are invited, admission being by card only.

Park, conqueror of Ted Thye, Walter Miller, Mike Yokel, Louie Purgantis and other well known light heavy grappiers, will show various wrestling holds. Later he will engage in an exhibition match with Dod who held the light heavy title for many years.

Dod's small sons, Jack and Lloyd, will box a four-round exhibition. Frank Was will serve as master of ceremonies. Elmer Heidt will referee.

CARNERA, STRIBLING RING FOES TONIGHT

PARIS, Dec. 6.—Three judges, two Americans and a Frenchman, will decide the winner of tonight's bout between W. L. (Young) Stribling of Macon, Ga., and Primo Carnera, Italy's giant heavyweight.

This compromise arrangement was made when Stribling and Carnera failed to agree on a referee, Stribling holding out for an English official and Carnera demanding that a Frenchman officiate.

Stribling consented to the appointment of Henri Bernstein, leading French referee, on the condition that Bernstein would have no power to make a decision and that the board of three judges would include two Americans.

Canzoneri Match In L. A. Planned

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—If the plans of Matchmaker Wadhams of the Olympic work out, Southland fight fans may see Tony Canzoneri, rugged Eastern boxer, in action here early next year. There are several boys now on the coast who could give Tony a hard battle and Wadhams isn't worrying on the score of finding a suitable opponent for him. Outstanding among these is Cecil Payne, who boxes "Goldie" Hess Tuesday night.

De Paul Gridders To Battle Firemen

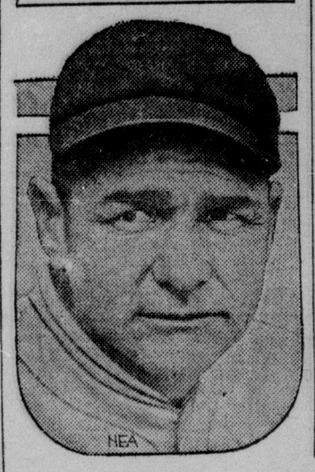
The Firemen, with the exception of Jimmy Dyer, star halfback, out with an injured hip, were reported in shape for a hard scrimmage.

MAY BOSS ROBINS

Zach Wheat, who used to be an idol of the baseball fans at Brooklyn, may be the new manager of the Robins, if one interprets correctly the rumblings heard in Flatbush. When the club directors hold their meeting early in December, Steve McKeever will insist that Uncle Wilbert Robinson has been a failure in the pilot's seat and that Zach should be substituted.



SANTA ANA COLLEGIANS IN GAME FOR STATE FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP TOMORROW

Santa Ana's great junior college football squad was speeding tonight toward Sacramento where tomorrow afternoon it will bid for the state jaycee championship. Conference titleholders of Southern California, Coach Bill Cook's Dons will face the Sacramento Panthers who are undefeated champions of Central and Northern California.

Those making the trip in the special car were Charles Andres, Edward Adams, Melvin Beatty, Blanchard Beatty, Bill Crawford, Carol Bertolet, Jack Dutton, Hal Dunham, Wayne Garlock, Baxter Geeting, Raymond Glesnor, Sam Griswold, Nevin Hoy, Captain Herald Hylton, John Keeler, Al Kluthe, Lloyd Manderscheid, Phillip Martin, Leonard McIntosh, Frank Miles, Crawford Nalle, Leonard Natland, Gene Olsen, Jack Rimel, Orville Schuchardt, Ernest Sump, Jack Sweetnam, Franklin Van Meter, George Warmer, Tim Wallace, Joe Warner, Don Woodington, Manager Dale Fuller, Coach Bill Cook, John ("Sky") Dunlap, Lyman Crowl and Dr. M. A. Patton.

Rewarding the players for staying out for football throughout the lengthy season, the college is taking along the entire squad with the exception of a few players who were ineligible most of the season or who could not make the trip on account of work.

Travelling expenses will run

DONS OFF FOR TITLE CONTEST AT SACRAMENTO

somewhat over the $900 guaranteed by Sacramento but the gate receipts are expected to more than pay for the trip if it does not rain. Weather reports indicate showers in that section but the Dons hope for fair weather and a capacity crowd of at least 12,000, which will be assured if the sun shines.

The Dons are completing one of their most successful grid years and fully deserve the post-season clash with the Senators. Defeated only twice, both times by passes, the Cookmen come up to the end of the season with a full game advantage over their two closest rivals, Fullerton and Pasadena, who were deadlocked with the Padres up until the final games. After nosing out the Fullerton Yellowjackets in a "movie finish," the Dons looked around for greater achievements and challenged the Panthers, who had just won the central and northern title.

Sacramento is not a bit inferior to the Dons. They have played seven games and lost only one, a practice affair with the Stanford freshmen, 7 to 6. Their dopesheet gives them a total of 193 points with 54 chalked up for the opposition while the Dons have played nine games, made 168 points and allowed 38 digits to go against them. Season records for both teams follow:

Strong on Defense

A perusal of these figures shows that whereas every team but one scored on Sacramento, only two teams were able to penetrate the Dons' stellar defense. Chaffey made three touchdowns in two games by intercepting two passes and throwing a forward while Fullerton used a pass for one and blocked a kick for the other. Such a record is definite proof of the great defense Cook has banded together with his veteran line doing most of the work. Sacramento's line is rated slightly below the Dons but weighs easily as much.

Although the Congressmen have four backs who carry the ball in great fashion, the local line is strong enough to hold them unless they start throwing passes which is very probable.

This same line will have plenty to do Saturday in watching four high powered backs, especially little Tony Donadio, 124-pound quarterback who has run wild all season against all kinds of opposition. Donadio is like a flash of lightning and Santa Ana's only hope is to keep him boxed in and smothered before he hits open country.

Have Other Stars

Donadio isn't all Sacramento however. Brett, Brown and Rothwell are strong players too, especially Brett, who made the northern all-conference team along with Donadio, Captain Oliver Pope, tackle, Happe, guard and Rourke, center. Brown, plunging fullback, is quite efficient in making gains and has chalked up 66 points this season. Donadio has 84 to his credit, mostly products of long runs from 90 yards on down the scale. Brown and Donadio also exchange passes for long gains quite frequently and pull trick play worthy of "Pop" Warner whose system they use.

Few changes will be made in the Don lineup with the exception of Jack Dutton at fullback. Jack was injured in a recent game just as he was rounding into his best form but his great comeback in the Fullerton skirmish gives him the starting nod over "Red" Manderscheid and Jack Rimel, two other highly capable fullbacks. All three will figure heavily in the local offense but Dutton's line plunging along with Garlock's running, was responsible for the two winning touchdowns for Santa Ana against Fullerton. Manderscheid hits the line hard and is dangerous in open territory while Rimel is shifty and speedy, running the ends as often as hitting center or guard.

Garlock at Quarter

The rest of the backfield will be Wayne Garlock at quarter, Jack Sweetnam at halfback and Franklin Van Meter at the other halfback post. Little Sweetnam snags passes like a monkey and tackles viciously while Van Meter is one of the most valuable men on the team with his efficient blocking and defensive work. This heavy boy has little chance to carry the ball or play any heroic roles but has played most of the time in every game in an outstanding manner. Garlock is a good ground gainer and passes and kicks well.

The regular line will start as usual, consisting of George Warmer and Ed Adams, ends; Captain Herald Hylton and Ernest Stump, tackles; Bill Crawford and Joe Warner, guards and Al Kluthe, center. With the exception of Kluthe, every man has had jaycee experience and Kluthe starred for three years in high school.

Warmer and Adams, ends, are the best in the conference, Warmer making the all-conference squad and Adams the second team. Warmer has the added responsibility of calling the plays in the huddles but has succeeded remarkably well for his first year at the racket. Both can catch passes with sticky fingers and get down under punts like rabbits. Few plays circle the ends and tackle after tackle is made by one or the other of these wingmen.

Captain Hylton Shines

Captain Herald Hylton has been a "Rock of Gibraltar" in the line and was a unanimous choice for all-conference tackle, the second time in two years. Stump, lanky teammate on the other side of the line, is another veteran who knows his business.

Crawford and Warner, guards, both returned from last year and are thoroughly versed in the art of stopping plays and opening holes, as well as running interference.

Kluthe at center, is another all-conference boy who made good in his first year of college competition. Anaheim used him for three years to good advantage and he has played virtually every minute of every conference game this season for the Dons.

Besides the players already mentioned, Cook has some high class reserves he can push on the field at a moment's notice. In the backfield, John Keeler, Orville Schuchardt, Leonard Natland or Charles Andres could take over the quarterback duties creditably. Halfbacks are also numerous and several will undoubtedly get in the going. This includes Baxter Geeting, Gene Olsen, Carol Bertolet, Melvin Beatty and Leonard McIntosh. All of these players rate nearly as good as the starters and are indispensable to the team.

Hal Dunham is almost sure to get in at end and this freshman promises to make a name for himself. With Adams back for another year of eligibility, Cook will have two wingmen hard to beat. Crawford Nalle and Nevin Hoy may get to play at end and are excellent reserves. Tim Wallace, burly tackle, is certain to play, the more so if the Dons manufacture any touchdowns. His educated toe has kept the Santa Anans out of hot water several times and his percentage of completed conversions is quite high. Besides that, his 185 pounds go good in the line. Frank Miles, another husky tackle, will see service somewhere along the route.

At guard, Sammy Griswold and Phillip Martin may get a chance to display their wares and Griswold might even start, as he did in the Fullerton game. Sammy also plays center and if anything happens to Kluthe, Griswold will get the call. Martin, although not so big, has worlds of fight and has won a varsity berth more on this account than anything else.

fornia," Sheue said. "Having played or coached through 20 tournaments in the mid-west where all championships are determined in this manner I am acquainted with all the criticisms.

"The two objections to tournaments have been: (1) that they compel boys to play too much basketball in a short period of time, and (2) that it is unwise to have high school students away from home on the school's responsibility.

"We are attempting to forestall these criticisms by limiting the number of team entries. By shortening the games somewhat we have arranged it so that no athlete will play more than 120 minutes of basketball in one day. Students of our school will entertain in their own homes all of the visiting players who thus will be under parental guidance."

Personally, I shall watch with keen interest this daring experiment. It would not be novel if it were not held so early when basketball teams are just beginning to fashion some general idea of team play. The best team may not win but the tournament ought to produce some mighty fine basketball just the same.

As for the tournament itself I am convinced already it will be successful. No track meet in Southern California is run off more smoothly than the Huntington Beach Invitational. The same management will have charge of the basketball series. That assures players and spectators alike of good treatment.

Hertz Turns Down Million For Horse

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—The $1,000,000 offer of a Texas multi-millionaire for Reigh Count, winner of the 1928 Kentucky Derby, "has been refused by John D. Hertz, the owner.

"I think a fellow who would pay $1,000,000 for a horse ought to have his head examined," Hertz said, then added: "And the fellow who turned it down must be absolutely unbalanced."

YALE GOES BRICKLEY

"Sure enough Brickley went into the game and took his usual position behind the line. On the very first play Charley Buell, Harvard starter, noticed a guard moving out of position in order that he might have a freer chance to break through. That first Harvard play went slashing through guard.

"Brickley again stood back for a kick, brushed off the spot of turf from where he made believe he would kick. This time a Yale tackle moved out to make a quick dash for Charley, figuring Brickley certainly would kick this time, but again Buell picked his spot and sent the Harvard back on a tackle slash.

"Yale became like a ball player with three balls on him and no strikes—in other words, Brickley would double-cross Yale by kicking. Yale figured the next would surely be "one over the plate," Yale's end was the guilty chap this time and right through his position Harvard backs spilled and Yale was scored on.

"Brickley, in that game, was the best decoy Harvard ever had."

WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER, Dec. 6.—The Past Noble Grands' bridge party will not be held this week, postponement having been made until the first Thursday in January.

Practice for initiation was held Monday evening by the Aloha Rebekahs.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Weinschenk and Miss Fay Weinschenk entertained as dinner guests Sunday, Mr. and and Mrs. L. Goodyear, friends from Los Angeles.

Mrs. Winfred Morris attended a bridge party Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. H. L. Rivers in Long Beach.

Sunday visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Morris included Mr. and Mrs. Ted Jackson, friends from Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. P. Heil and family were recent visitors in Tustin in the home of Mr. Heil's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sauers.

Parts for the Westminster Christmas program have been given out and practice is to be held three times a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday until the presentation of the program December 23.

Mr. and Mrs. Lodie Pratt are at their former home in Arkansas, according to word received by friends. The Pratts, who formerly resided on the Dick Haster ranch each of town have been in San Bernardino county and went from there to be with their relatives. Mr. Pratt has been ill a long time, having been a patient in the hospital since a year ago last May.

Westminster school students will play their first game of basketball a week from Friday with Fountain Valley, it being decided to postpone the game which was originally scheduled for Wednesday.

Prof. James Monroe, principal of the Westminster school; Fred Bassee, school director and president of the local chamber of commerce, and Mrs. Bassee, and Mr. McKenzie, attended themeeting held Tuesday evening at the Huntington Beach high school.

Morton Penhall, who underwent an operation of a serious nature last Friday at the Fullerton General hospital, is reported as doing very satisfactorily.

SOUTH COAST NEWS TAKES OVER PAPER

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 6.—Absorption of the Laguna Beach Times by the South Coast News is announced in the latter publication this week in an article by Hal Forrest, editor and owner of the Times. Expressing the belief that this community is a one-newspaper field, the editor of the absorbed paper asks his friends to support the News and points to a gift made by Harold F. McCormick, one of the owners of the latter paper, to the Community club as evidence to help the city.

The Times was started on March 15 of this year and its last issue was dated November 28. It was owned by Mr. Forrest, who was assisted by Mrs. Forrest and Charles Whipple. The office was the same as occupied by the Laguna Beach Life, purchased in August of last year by the News. The Times was printed in Orange. It was backed by local persons, it is said, who assisted in financing.

All you pay for is the

'VARSITY' WILL OPEN TONIGHT AT BROADWAY

Fifty expectant members of the Santa Ana Movie club today were awaiting the premiere showing, tonight, in the Fox-Broadway theater, of their second college film, "Varsity." Two months were consumed by the ambitious high school students in filming this companion picture to their last year's success, "College Daze."

"Varsity" is declared to be a 100 per cent better film than its predecessor and its showing here has been awaited with interest by students and townspeople. The film will play three days, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, before beginning a tour of the county.

The all-high school cast is headed by Ted Newcomb, president of the organization and director of both "College Daze" and "Varsity." Newcomb plays 'Flash Morton," a small town crook with big ideas. Harry Merchant plays "Black Jack Stone," Morton's right hand man.

Film Has Love Interest

Supporting roles include those of Paul Hendrickson, as "Reggie Raleigh," Larry's chum; Dorothy Hatch, as "Tillie Till," a co-ed; Chandler Kerr, as "Professor Moran;" Harold Berry, as "Wayne Wright," and Asa Herron, as "Bert Black," students.

Thestory concerns life in Carver college and the climax comes with the annual football game between Carver and its rival on the gridiron, Dale university. Plenty of peppy football shots, obtained in Santa Ana high school games with Long Beach, Santa Maria, Alhambra, Glendale and San Diego, lend interest to the film. Other sequences were shot in the Santa Ana canyon and at the Royal Palms Beach club, in San Pedro. A majority of the shots were filmed on the Santa Ana high school campus and in the Movie club's studio, located in the Bristol building.

"Varsity" was photographed by Clyde Gilbert and directed by Ted Newcomb with the assistance of Harry Merchant, Harper Goff and Chandler Kerr. The story was adapted from a prize winning story by Emmette Osborne. Raymond Forrest headed the title staff. A theme song and other original music were written for the picture by Osborne, well known Southland composer and author.

Club Has Many Members

CAPTURED HOMER TITLE

The Phillies with 153 home runs captured the 1929 major league home run championship. They were five short of the 158 established as a record by the Yankees in 1927.

LIONS

True Stories of the Ferocity of the African Lion

SOMETHING FOR DINNER

Osa brings in a mess of guinea fowl. Fine eating, and one of the few birds our personal boys like. When we can give them a change from their posho diet. This African guinea fowl looks almost like our domestic fowl, except he is better eating. We have seventeen varieties of game birds in Africa. Mrs. Johnson is very proud of her twenty-gauge Ithaca shotgun.

Osa was still intent on the little game with the other lion and did not hear the growl.

"Shall I throw it again?" asked Osa blithely. "He's still in range of the camera."

I was afraid to reply in a low voice; a lion seems to know when a human being is trying to be wary. A whisper, for instance, will unnerve a lion under certain circumstances, just as it will a human being. Yet I was equally afraid to reply to her in an ordinary tone because the lion might think I was getting fresh with him and making disagreeable remarks right in his face.

The gun? Oh, yes, it was right there within reach beside Osa. But it was too late to do anything about that. A lion can move faster than a man can jerk a gun to his shoulder. That has been proved in many tragedies.

"All right, Martin," broke in Osa again, who had been tugging away at her pocket for another golf ball, "now watch this one."

While I stood there motionless, expecting every minute that the lion would land on me with all fours, Osa tossed the golf ball at the first lion.

To my profound relief the lion behind me pricked up his ears and took a step sidewise to see more clearly what went on.

The expression in his face was exactly as if he had said: "Now there's some one with pep—much better than this poor dub who just stands here and stares at me!"

I must say that the "poor dub" was only too glad to have the lion turn his attention elsewhere.

"That's all the balls—" began Osa, and then gave vent to a horrified "Oh-h!" as the lion trotted right past her up to the other lion..

She looked at me and gasped.

"Yes, he's been here all the time," I said weekly. "But there wasn't anything to do about him."

The two lions were soon nosing and pushing at one another in a friendly way, paying not the slightest attention to us. In a sense the incident was a narrow escape. And yet it reminded me again of the generous and decent nature of the lion under the right sort of circumstances in which he is not put forcibly on the defensive.

Already Osa and I could see the difference between the lions we saw, even though many animals were almost exactly the same size and coloring. There were differences in personality, temperament, facial expression and emotional reaction, just as there are such differences in human beings. Indeed, we often saw and recognized lions after we had photographed them; recalling their individualities in the same way we would those of old acquaintances at home.

This explains why so often, as on the day I have been describing, we got up and left a fine group of lions simply because we had had enough of them; and why we persisted in our work until we had seen and photographed over four hundred lions in all.

On the following day my fever came on in earnest.

"Never mind," Osa comforted me, "I'll get some pictures."

"I wasn't enthusiastic because I knew the risks she would be taking. Not that she wasn't brave enough to face as many lions as I would. But I just didn't like the idea of her doing the job alone. I cursed my weakness for having fallen victim to this scourge of the traveler. I suppose I had been going too hard, and getting too little sleep, as I sometimes do when I am thoroughly engrossed in my work.

"All right," I finally consented. "Only, please don't take any risks."

Near sunset I went out with Bukari and helped make Osa comfortable in her motor car about a mile away from the tent. The cameras were set up fifteen feet in front of her. A dead zebra was hauled in front of the cameras for bait, and the wire connected in such a way that Osa could fire her flashlight from the front of the car.

It was dark when I returned to the tent. I took a hot bath in an effort to throw off my fever. I followed the bath with a big dose of quinine and rolled in my blankets to work up a good heavy perspiration. I have found that this treatment will sometimes cure me overnight of a severe attack of malaria.

Near midnight I was aroused by the boom-m of the flashlight discharge. Heavens knows I didn't feel like rousing out. But with a few groans and a terrific effort I managed to sit up swaying. I was so sorry for my own plight that I had lost some of my apprehension about Osa; it certainly is discouraging to be laid low right in the middle of the most interesting part of one's work.

But before I could pull on my clothes the glare of the car's headlight swept across the tent door and the next instant I heard Osa cry out.

"I'm coming," I called back.

"The nastiest lion in Africa!" she repeated. "He tried to get me. I almost didn't get away from him."

It was exactly the kind of thing

HEALTH SERIES TO BE WRITTEN BY SUTHERLAND

As part of a campaign in the interests of conservation of the wealth of the nation and the betterment of economic conditions through the protection of health, Dr. K. H. Sutherland, Orange county health officer, is doing his share through the preparation of several articles, which will appear in The Register. The American Public Health association and the chamber of commerce of the United States are back of the movement to get the public interested in the problem of health protection and conservation. The first of Dr. Sutherland's articles appears today.

By K. H. SUTHERLAND, M. D.
Health Officer, Orange County

The ability of a man to work depends, in a large measure, upon his health. Whatever impairs his health reduces his earning capacity, which, in turn, reduces the assets of the community. Any decrease in earning power is naturally reflected in reduced purchasing power, with the results that every case of illness or premature death involving loss of wages has an effect upon the community. This may not be noticeable in the individual case, but the total sum is tremendous, when we realize that the average day workman loses about seven days a year due to sickness. Premature death, in the same way, gives rise to an even larger annual loss. It is for this reason that the National Chamber of Commerce, through its local organizations, in co-operation with the American Public Health association and the various health departments, is emphasizing health conservation. The citizenry of the country is being urged to adopt every measure known to prevent disease and conserve health.

Progress In Control

The most spectacular progress in disease prevention has been made in the instance of the control of contagious diseases. Diphtheria, for instance, is an excellent example of a disease that can be controlled. In 1883, the germ which causes diphtheria was discovered. In 1895, anti-toxin was developed, which, during 25 years, reduced the mortality through diphtheria from 50 per cent to 10 per cent.

In spite of this, 13,000 persons died from the disease in 1920 in the United States registration area. Following 1920, a further step in advance was made, with the rapidly growing use of toxin-anti-toxin to vaccinate or immunize against diphtheria. Following the widespread introduction of toxin-anti-toxin, the number of deaths was

NEW YACHT LAUNCHED

The red, white and blue triangles of Edsel B. Ford, of Detroit, will fly over this trim yacht as soon as she is put into commission. Here you see the launching at Boston of Ford's luxurious power cruiser Sialia, which is 132 feet in length. Powered by two Diesel engines, it has a cruising radius of 2300 miles and a speed of fourteen knots.

$19,209,597.42 IS COLLECTED IN SIX MONTHS

Orange county has been allotted $143,144.68 of the $19,209,597.42 collected by the state in gasoline taxes for the six-month period from April 1 to September 30, it was revealed in the announcement in Sacramento today, by State Controller Ray L. Riley, of distribution of the fund.

The counties of the state were apportioned $5,924,820.21 for highway maintenance and repairs, a similar amount went to the state highway commission for the same purposes and $5,786,077.79 additional went to the state commission for new construction work.

The controller pointed out that deductions from the total collection amounted to $1,504,707.16 for refunds and $24,172.05 for expenses. The net increase in revenue over the corresponding period in 1928 was given at $1,811,009.48.

Amounts apportioned to principal counties of Southern California were as follows:

Los Angeles, $2,387,353.22; Imperial, $66,603.30; Orange, $143,144.68; Riverside, $91,583.41; San Bernardino, $138,135.10; San Diego, $223,071; San Luis Obispo, $34,918.19; Santa Barbara, $71,621.73, and Ventura, $64,126.52.

The way it is when a man thinks out loud about gifts

A story for women

"I wonder what shenanigans the little wife is up to on these Christmas presents of mine! . . . hold your breath! . . . pray that she knows me and sees through me as well as she claims to . . . offer another prayer that her well known instincts lead her to my kind of a store . . . Vandermast Inc. . . . where Carl and Walt and Mac and Joe know what a fellow wants!

"She's smart, though . . . why worry? . . . who could miss the new Vandermast store? . . . wonder what it'll be! . . . d'you suppose they'll show her those new Royal Ermine silk shirts? . . . in those soft pastel shades . . . man, there's a shirt . . . heavy, guaranteed silk . . . and $6.50 is a right price!

"She might fall for a pair of rayon knit pajamas . . . sailor trouser legs . . . elastic waist . . . pretty colorful, but okay . . . they'll set her back $4 . . . might be possible I'd get those silk jersey Cossack pajamas . . . with Russian neck . . . a-ha! sky!

"Bet she hesitates at the wool robes at $11.50 . . . any of the colors would suit me . . . or maybe a dressing robe of silk moire . . . with that pretty water pattern in green . . . at $15 . . . well, I'd be pleased with one of those $5 or $6 robes.

"She'll probably think of something for golf wear . . . good all wool hose would run her about $2.50 or $3.50 . . . unless she got a glance at the imported Glengair Scotland hose . . . they're $10 . . . but worth it . . . a good sweater wouldn't go so bad . . . trust her to see the values at $5, $6 and to $8.50 . . . hope I'll draw some golf knickers in tweeds or twists . . . or flannels . . . they'll be $7.50 to $11.50.

"The boys will urge her to get a few pairs of Interwoven Hose . . . I hope so . . . best I ever wore . . . the fancy silk ones are 75c to $1.50 . . . the wool ones are the same . . . so are the silk and wools . . . I'll take a chance on a Vandermast tie any time . . . they hold the whip on good neckwear . . . especially the $1.50 line . . . a silk square would go good . . . at $2.50 . . . could use a Scotch wool muffler at $2.00, too.

"Say, there's a flock of things she couldn't go wrong on . . . anything'll suit me just so the boys at Vandermast helped her pick it out! . . . of course she'll go there . . . she knows me!

Engagement Announced At Pretty Dinner And Bridge

When relatives of Miss Emily Holmes, charming blonde daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Duane Holmes of 1408 North Main street, and Kenneth Tilson Conner, son of Mrs. Vennie Conner, of 2457 Heliotrope drive, gathered at the Holmes residence last night for a dinner presented by Mr. and Mrs. Holmes they were greeted with the news of the engagement of the two young people.

The secret was disclosed in a clever fashion after guests had found their places at the table where covers were marked with pretty little calendars. December 28 was marked with a circle to designate the date of the wedding of Miss Holmes and Mr. Conner and their names were inscribed on the back of the calendar.

Those enjoying the delightfully appointed dinner with the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, were Miss Emily Holmes, Kenneth Conner, Mrs. E. D. Sweetman, Miss Lucy Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Selway, Mrs. V. H. Conner, Edward Conner, Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Mosher and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Holmes jr.

The evening hours were devoted to bridge and when scores were added it was learned that Mrs. Conner and Edwin Holmes jr. were high and each was presented with an attractive gift.

Miss Holmes is one of the most popular members of the younger social set in this city where she has lived for the past 15 years. She attended local schools, graduating from the high school and Junior college. Later she attended Oregon State College at Corvallis, Ore., where she was a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Her fiancee has lived in this city for the past 3½ years, coming here from the east where he attended the University of Minnesota and Kenyon college in Ohio. He was affiliated with Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. At present he is managing a citrus ranch near Orange.

The wedding of the two will take place at the Church of the Messiah, this city.

Spirit of Christmas Presides Over Gay Dinner at Ebell

The gay spirit of Christmas presided over the dinner party presented last night in the peacock room at the Ebell society by the Rev. O. Scott McFarland, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and Mrs. McFarland for members of the official boards of the church, superintendents and department heads, heads of the various adult organizations, and employes of the church, and their wives or husbands.

Scarlet tapers cast a soft glow over the tables where baskets of brilliant gladioluses, poinsettias and smilax were arranged in artistic fashion. Frilly little nut cups were in harmonizing tones as were other appointments. The delicious dinner was served by the Day Nursery committee of Ebell under the direction of Mrs. Clyde Bach.

Delightful Songs

During the dinner the First Presbyterian quartet, composed of A. J. Garroway, Hayden Bohlander, Hugh Runnells and Walter Vieira, presented a short program of delightful songs. Miss Ruth Armstrong acted as accompanist.

Following the songs Mrs. McFarland told the famous story of the "Lady or the Tiger" and then divided her guests into small groups headed by Mrs. A. V. Gray, Mrs. D. A. Bear, C. Guy Dowds, Dr. H. MacVicker Smith, Mrs. Elizabeth Clark, Mrs. A. M. McDermott, Cameron Townsend, Mrs. F. E. Coulter, Ralph C. Smedley and Chester E. Hawk.

These groups gathered in the lounge which was decorated with baskets of beautiful golden chrysanthemums and spent the evening in amusing discussions of the question which were finally presented by al lto hear by the various chairmen.

Preceding the affair, the Rev. Mr. McFarland gave a brief address of welcome in which he expressed his appreciation of the cooperation he has received from those assisting in various ways in the church work.

RECEPTION IN NEW Y. W. C. A. ROOMS ATTENDED BY MANY

Hundreds of interested men and women were guests yesterday at the reception given in the new Y. W. C. A. quarters at Fifth and Main streets where they were conducted through the lovely rooms with their handsome furnishings which have been the gifts of friends and members of the organization.

Adding an attractive note to the restful appointments in the airy lounge were the baskets of gladioluses and chrysanthemums arranged in artistic fashion about the room. Gay autumn flowers were also arranged in the hall, officers and in the dining room where tea was served in the afternoon and punch was dispensed in the evening hours.

Calling forth many admiring comments were the attractive paintings which had been loaned to the Y. W. C. A. for an indefinite period by Anna Hills, famous Laguna Beach artist. Miss Hills has announced that she will send more of her paintings to the Y. later this winter.

Head Receiving Line

Mrs. C. F. Smith, president of the organization locally, Miss Nancy Elder, Y. W. C. A. general secretary, and Miss Dorothy Cartwright, Girl Reserve secretary, headed the receiving line which was made up of various of the hostesses who assisted during the afternoon and evening.

Theyincluded Mrs. T. A. Winbigler, Mrs. J. T. Wilson, Mrs. Perry Schrock, Miss Grace Grigsby, Mrs. Alex Brownridge, Mrs. Jesse Burns, Mrs. H. J. Forgy, Mrs. W. W. Hoy, Mrs. Moffet Rhodes, Mrs. C. P. Boyer, Mrs. W. H. Harrison, Mrs. Helen Heil, Mrs. J. W. McCormac, Mrs. Charles Swanner, Mrs. Cassius Paul, Mrs. J. R. Medlock, Mrs. John Clarkson, Mrs. J. P. Baumgartner, Mrs. O. H. Barr, Mrs. M. M. Holmes, Mrs. W. D. Baker, Mrs. Fred Rowland, Mrs. Dexter Ball, Mrs. Emrys D. White, Mrs. Bruce Monroe, Miss Mabel McFadden, Mrs. John Tessmann, Mrs. Marshall Keeler, Mrs. Lloyd A. Chenoweth and Mrs. E. T. McFadden.

In the afternoon the pretty tea tables, centered with baskets of beautiful chrysanthemums and gladioluses in soft tones of yellow and orchid, were presided over by Mrs. Barr, Mrs. Baumgartner, Mrs. Clarkson and Mrs. Medlock.

Girl Reserves Assist

They were assisted by a group of Girl Reserves who included the Misses Natalie Neff, Betty Smedley, Susannah Alexander, Eunice Bright, Ruth Owens, Lucille Howell, Doris Rimel, Catherine Bement, Zelma Smith, Helen Spangler and Martha Wallingford.

Girls of the Wrycende Maegrenu club which is made up of young business women who are organized under the auspices of the Y. W. C. Moreland, Miss Gertrude Scheffer, Miss Ruth Potter, Miss Ruth Morten, Miss Beulah Dudgeon, Miss Pansy Oliphant, Mith Ruth Campbell, Miss Genevieve Fisher, Miss Jewel Fletcher, Miss Mildred Calkins, Miss Vena Belle Bryant, Miss Florence Hoffman, Miss Hattie Belle Wall, Miss Louise Bryant, Miss Dorothy Dresser, Miss Carol Erskine, Miss Mabel Pruitt, Miss Mina Harlin, Miss Louise Pcotor, Miss Betty Burnham, Miss Charlena Swartz, Miss Amy Smith, Miss Thelma Glasscock, Miss Viola Oliphant.

Musical Program Given

The first was opened by Miss Georgia Belle Walton, popular young violinist, who offered ranada's arrangement of Kreisler's "Spanish Dance." "Perpetual Motion" by Bohm, and Devorak's arrangement of "The Songs My Mother Taught Me." Miss Ruth Armstrong accompanied.

Two lovely duets, "Schubert's Serenade" and "Cantique de Noel" by Adams, were presented by Miss Helen Slabaugh and Miss Hazel Stuckey with Miss Slabaugh's mother, Mrs. F. W. Slabaugh, accompanying at thep iano. For several charming quartet numbers, the two girls were joined by Holland Whittington and Harold Harvey and they gave "Thank God For A Garden" by Theresa del Rigo and "Tt A Wild Rose" by McDowell.

The evening's program was presented through the courtesy of the Visel Studios and was directed by Miss Lorene Croddy, a member of the faulty. It included several violin selections by Miss Peggy Warburton with Miss Esther Vogt at the piano, two songs, "Ma Curly Headed Babby" and "Bird in Hand," by a quartet which included Ramona Curl, Miss Phyllis Stukey, Miss Madlyn Seavey and Miss Frances Robinson.

Clever Readings

Following two clever readings, "The Rose Hat" and "The Red Dress," by Miss Helen Wiesseman, Miss Croddy favored with "One Fine Day" from Madame Butterfly which she preceded with a brief outline of the plot of the famous opera. As an encore she offered "The Cut Direct."

Next Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock the new rooms will be formally dedicated at an impressive service for which the Rev. Perry Frederick Schrock, pastor of the Congregational church, will be the speaker. A special musical program will be presented at that time, according to an announcement made by Miss Elder.

Talk on Junior College Is Interesting Phase Of Board Meeting

A fourth of the junior college students in the United States may be found in California, according to Merton E. Hill, principal of the Ontario junior college and high school, who gave an enlightening address on "The Junior College" yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the executive board of the Orange County Federation of Women's clubs held in Orange.

Dr. Hill pointed out that junior colleges are more economical, it gives the opportunity for cultural advantages to many who cannot afford to go away to college, does away with the danger of sending very young people away from home in order to continue their education, and offers splendid opportunity for adult education.

The morning's speaker was Willard Smith, a member of the Orange county board of supervisors, who explained why it is impossible for the supervisors to include a budget for any charitable institutions outside of the county functions. His talk was followed by a discussion of the question. The question was raised when the group began a study of the financial situation of the County Health camp.

Members were asked to assist the camp by buying seals and by sending useful articles to the camp at Christmas. It was stated that the children there are well supplied with toys.

At the business session announcement was made of the next board meeting which will be held February 5 at the Santa Ana Ebell club, Mrs. Slayden, state president, will be present at this meeting and will be the speaker.

A report of the recent district convention in San Bernardino was given in the form of a round table discussion led by Mrs. Joseph S. Thurston, county president.

Mrs. E. E. Smith called attention to a convention on International Relations to be held in Riverside at the Mission Inn when Rufus B. von KleinSmid and Miss Josephine Seaman will be among the speakers.

A delicious luncheon was served at noon by the ways and means committee of the Orange Woman's club. At that time a delightful musical program was presented. It included several numbers by the chorus of the club under the direction of Mrs. George Harper. Mrs. Jess Coe accompanied at the piano. Their selections were "Love Is Like a Fire Fly," "Sympathy," "The Sandman" and "The Copper Moon."

Holly Lash Visel was introduced as the new chairman of dramatics and Mrs. B. D. Stanley as press chairman.

Foreign Peoples Topic For Pegasus Club Program

"Foreign Peoples, Countries and Customs" was the subject for the meeting of the Pegasus club, which met yesterday at the home of Mrs. Walter Foote, 515 East Myrtle street.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Russell Caldwell, and was opened by the hostess, Mrs. Foote, who read an original poem, "Over the River and Through the Woods." She also read some letters written from Japan years ago by her brother.

Mrs. George Bond described the French customs and quarters in Quebec in a clever sketch entitled "Day in Quebec." Miss Marjorie Lusk read a paper, which included letters which had been sent her recently from Coachella, concerning "Japanese I have Known."

Describing the far off land of Norway from word pictures gleaned from a group of Norwegian workers on her farm, Mrs. Fannie Lash gave a review of Norway. Mrs. C. F. Jackson spoke on "Marriage in Russa,", describing the conditions now prevalent, due to the lack of observance of marriage laws. "A Trip to the Old Country" was described by Mrs. Ray Brown, who crossed at the age of 14 years for a visit to her relations in Denmark. Mrs. Earl Morris gave an illustrated talk about her son, who spent last summer in the Orient, showing the club members many of the articles which he brought back from his travels.

Papers by Mrs. Harry Havley and Mrs. Charles Brisco which were not read at yesterday's meeting will be reviewed next time. Following the program, the hostess served refreshments.

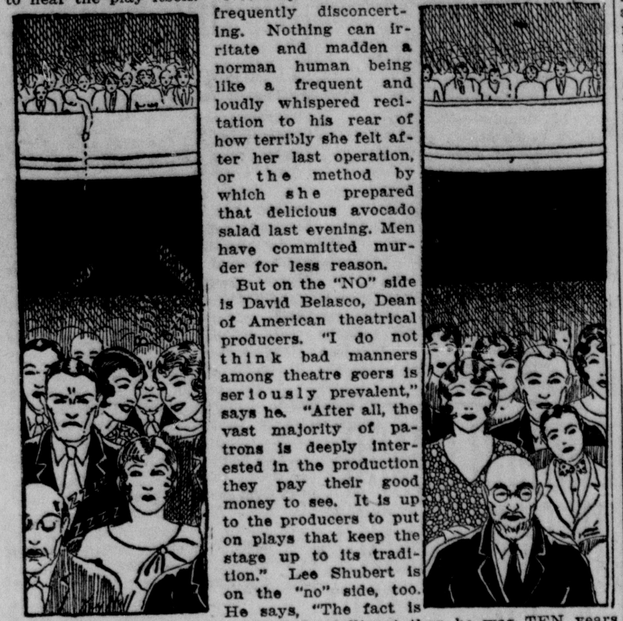
Are Modern Theatre Manners Bad?

Sometimes I Think They Are —BUT— Sometimes I Think They Aren't

By VELVA G. DARLING

"Yes!" declares Jane Cowl. "No!" cries David Belasco.. Let Jane Cowl state her affirmative: "Cat calls, raucous laughter, loud talking," broadcast Miss Cowl at the Women's graduating club at Columbia University the other day, "such things as were witnessed at Christopher Morley's gas-light drama at Hoboken, together with ill-manners at talkies THREATEN the drama! The theater-goer of today is becoming heedless of the feelings of others who want quiet and want to hear the play itself."



Not only for the actor are modern audiences frequently disconcerting. Nothing can irritate and madden a norman human being like a frequent and loudly whispered recitation to his rear of how terribly she felt after her last operation, or the method by which she prepared that delicious avocado salad last evening. Men have committed murder for less reason.

But on the "NO" side is David Belasco, Dean of American theatrical producers. "I do not think bad manners among theatre goers is seriously prevalent," says he. "After all, the vast majority of patrons is deeply interested in the production they pay their good money to see. It is up to the producers to put on plays that keep the stage up to its tradition." Lee Shubert is on the "no" side, too. He says, "The fact is the average theater goer is MORE intelligent than he was TEN years ago. Audiences are just as spellbound today over tensely dramatic situations as they were years ago. They listen intently. They do not interrupt.

Sometimes I think Belasco and Shubert are right. There is no good reason why modern manners should be worse now than ten years ago. But on the other hand it is certainly true that the modern audience—especially if it is composed of individuals under thirty—is much less inclined to swallow two hours of hokum without verbal objection—even if its press agents do call the play a "World Epic." If the show turns out to be a freak, that is the show's fault. And if the audience, which goes there primarily to amuse itself, finds it necessary to keep itself interested by ridiculing the play and the third rate actors, what's wrong about that? Of course, they might ask for their money back but that wouldn't be half so much fun—or do one-tenth the good to the abused art of the theater as a half dozen hearty cat calls.

Wear Warm Clothing

If anyone were to come along and cut an arm, or even a little finger off one of these fragile young people we see everywhere around us, how quickly we would rise up and do away with the monster!

But that is exactly what young and older women do to themselves when they fail to dress correctly in cold weather; they don't actually lose any part of their bodies, but surely they do shorten their lives by shivering through a winter in clothing that is fit only for summer weather. No wonder they are pitifully thin, always cold unless huddled over a fire, and the victims of every germ which looks their way.

They expend more energy in the effort to make themselves believe they are warm than the quantities of food they eat will supply over and above normal demands. We admire the sleek, well cared for look of a healthy child or animal. Why should adults so differentiate when it comes to themselves?

Life insurance companies know their book when they regard both underweight and overweight as a poor risk. Health and good looks lie in striking a happy medium between the two. Wear enough clothing to keep warm, even if it does add an extra curve or two.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Molasses Steamed Pudding

½ cup dark molasses
½ cup sour milk
1 ½ cups sifted flour
2-3 cup seeded raisins
1-3 cup chopped walnuts
½ cup fine chopped suet
1 teaspoon soda dissolved in little hot water
1 teaspoon powdered ginger
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt

Firm beef-kidney suet is what you order for puddings of this type. Free it from membrane and chop fine by hand. If run through the food chopper the fat is packed and the pudding is not as light as it should be.

Sift the spices and salt with the flour, have the walnuts and raisins floured. Add chopped suet to the flour and dissolved soda to the sour milk and molasses, mixed. When it foams well mix with the flour, add raisings and nuts and put into an oiled, covered pail large enough to allow one-third space for raising.

Put the tightly covered pail into a pot of rapidly boiling water, with weight on top of lid to keep from jiggling. Steam for three hours, adding BOILING WATER when the kettle needs it. Serve with hot lemon sauce or with a fluffy pudding sauce made by creaming together—

One-half cup of butter, 3-4 cup powdered sugar, then beat in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, and add flavoring to taste.

There are 6 portions in this pudding, each with a calorie value of 375. If the richer sauce is served add at least 150 more calories for the sauce. Desserts are concentrated energy foods, remember.

Fritter batters are seldom used up at one baking—it seems too bad to throw away such good food, doesn't it? You need not do so if you have a recipe for making a fritter batter which will keep for days in the refrigerator. The recipe will be found in this week's leaflet, CROUETTES AND FRITTERS, and yours is free of charge if you will send us a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

With the rush of Christmas shopping and buying the stores have to be particularly on guard against that contradictory and illogical type of woman, the shoplifter.

She is not easy to pick out, in the packed stores. She is usually well dressed, and a good actress. Some may bungle, but many are skillful as sleight-of-hand performers, and can get away with much valuable merchandise before they make a slip.

Talking with Mrs. Teresa St. Clair, a probation officer in the court of Special Sessions in New York—a court that handles many of the larceny cases—I learned that shoplifting is a seasonal offense flourishing in the early spring and around the holidays.

In the spring, the shoplifter apparently responds to the universal urge to step forth in new raiment, and one way to get it is to steal it. The holidays, of course, are the happy harvest time of the whole year.

MANY VARIETIES

The shoplifter may be rich, she may be poor, she may be an adventuress, she may be trying to get thrills, or she may believe it is easier to steal than to earn the money and buy, but the shoplifter is not necessarily a psychopathic case.

Mrs. St. Clair is certain, from her dealings with them, that 99 per cent are absolutely normal human beings, with the wrong conception of the rights of others.

Curiously enough, women will risk honor, face arrest, and actually go to jail for stealing the most cheap and shoddy articles—stuff that it is incredible any woman would want, and most of them would wonder what to do with it if it were given to them.

Cheap jewelry is the great temptation, with silk stockings, gloves and lingerie next. The amateur shoplifter usually begins with inexpensive articles, while the professional goes out for the big stuff, anything from fur coats to diamond tiras—what would one do with a tiara, for instance?

Styles recently have deprived women of the ample sleeves and long skirts where so much merchandise could be concealed formerly, but has provided them with splendid substitutes in the wrap-around coat, the waist with the surplice front and the skirt with the elastic band.

Probation officers are trying to keep shoplifters, particularly first offenders, out of jail, rather than put them in. Because they find that the way to treat them, intelligently, is not to give them criminal records, but to seek out what causes them to steal, and to remedy that. It may be just an overwhelming desire to succeed, that vocational guidance can remedy. It may be home conditions that can be improved, or a desire for adventure or an impulse toward the artistic, that can be expressed in other media. Poverty, want, the need for the better distribution of the household funds, are also to blame.

Skillful investigators find that four out of five shoplifters can be reformed—and that the effort to do so, instead of locking them up—is very much worth while.

'Cock Eyed World' Closes Run With Continuous Show

For the benefit of persons who have been unable to get into the Fox-West Coast theater during the last week to see "The Cock Eyed World," great William Fox play, which has been running there since last Saturday, it was announced today that the show would be run continuously today, the final day of the run.

Except on Saturdays and Sundays, there has been only three shows each day. The arrangement made today will give another show to the public.

Breaking all records for attendance here, "The Cock Eyed World" will play to more than 14,000 persons before it finishes its run, Manager John Rantz announced today.

The story is a sequel to "What Price Glory," the great war play, but it's a comic sequel. Sergeant Quirt and Sergeant Flagg, in their battles, one after the other, over the girl and that girl are sure to entertain even the most hard to please.

HOW DO YOU RATE?

LONDON, Dec. 6.—If your handwriting is legible, you've been destined to be honest and agreeable. That's the assertion of Justice Eve, according to an English magazine. It follows that poor writers are destined to be disagreeable and dishonest, but Mr. Eve has not as yet made the latter assertion.

"The Kiss," Greta Garbo's latest all-talking Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle, opens a three-day engagement today in the Fox-Broadway theater.

In the picture also is seen Conrad Nagel and the combination is said to be one of the best the screen has yet offered.

The story concerns a French woman, wife of a Lyon perfume manufacturer. She does not love her husband, but neither does she love the youth with whom she is found on one occasion.

A murder occurs. She is charged with the crime. Her lawyer suitor defends her and frees her and then the picture takes a sudden turn to present one of the strangest climaxes seen in a film here in several months.

The Santa Ana high school Movie club film, "Varsity," will be an added attraction, while Clark and McCollugh, in "Hired and Fired," an all-talking comedy, and a Fox Movietone newsreel also are on the program.

ORANGE PUBLIC LIBRARY ADDS LATEST BOOKS

ORANGE, Dec. 6.—Patrons of the Orange public library who have been waiting for the long evenings of winter in which to do a little reading will have an opportunity of choosing from a number of delightful new books which arrived at the library recently and which have been placed in circulation.

Much interest has been shown in the books of Roy Andrews since his expedition to the Gobi desert. A book on the new list was written by the naturalist and explorer before this expedition and is called "The Ends of the Earth." In this volume the migration of the supposedly "lost" California whale is traced.

Two good biographies recommended by the librarian, Mrs. Mabel Faulkner, are Thomas Beer's "Portrait of Mark Hanna" and Hillaire Belloc's "Richelieu." Other works of non-fiction are "Men and Machines" by Stewart Chase; a collection of verse by Lewis Carroll; Don Blanding's "The Vagabond House;" Donald Chidsey's "Marlborough" and Conrad Bercovici's "The Crusades."

Among the plays is "Dynamo," the first of a triology which Eugene O'Neill is writing. The story of Helen Keller's later life is told in "Midstream." For an American who wishes to see the new Germany, "Meet the Germans," by Henry Albert Phillips, is recommended by Mrs. Faulkner.

"Religion and Human Affairs," by Clifford Kirkpatrick; "The Dime Novel," by Edmund Pearson; "The Personality of a House," by Emily Post; "Men and Morals," by Woodbridge Riley, and "Emerson, the Wisest American," by Phillips Russell, are among the new volumes. "The Mind at Mischief," by Dr. Sadler, is a study of how to cope with the subconscious mind.

The prize winning novel of Australia, "A House Is Built," by M. Bernard Eldershaw, is being read with interest by many of the patrons, it is said. "The Good Companion," England's best seller, by J. B. Priestly, and "The Siberian Garrison" by Rodiom Markovitz, are popular.

BOLSA

BOLSA, Dec. 6.—The hard times card party to be given by the Bolsa club auxiliary was held Thursday night at the Bolsa clubhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ross and son, Normand, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Walton motored to Los Angeles Wednesday to attend the stock show.

John Willingham and family returned Sunday from El Centro, where they had spent Thanksgiving with his relatives and on Tuesday he started to work for I. D. Wallingford, local merchant.

A business meeting of the Bolsa P.-T. A. is announced for December 12 at the school. At that time arrangements will be made for the Christmas program which will be held at the time of the closing of school on December 17.

Arrange Program At Dana Point On Saturday Evening

DANA POINT, Dec. 6.—Dana Point folk will be entertained Saturday night with a high class entertainment being sponsored by the Dana Point syndicate, according to Mrs. William Lint, chairman of the committee in charge of the affair.

Four numbers, all of them special attractions, are on the program of entertainment. The Tustin high school dramatic club will present the well known comedy, "The Travelers." Phil Martin, Hollywood violin master, will entertain with several selections. Members of the Delsaio School of Dancing, Culver City, will next present a group of classic costume dances. Betty Vorhees, of Dana, accomplished accordion player, will entertain with a group of pionaccordion solos.

CHRISTMAS PARTY PLANNED AT IRVINE

IRVINE, Dec. 6.—A meeting of mothers was held at the Irvine school Wednesday afternoon to make plans for the Christmas entertainment. Owing to the increase in attendance this year, the stage had to be taken out of Miss Stewart's room, so there will not be the usual program, but everyone is invited and there will be singing of Christmas songs and some of the children have pieces to recite.

It was decided to have the program on the afternoon of December 18, starting at 1:30 o'clock. The school children will exchange presents and there will be a Santa Claus to distribute the candy to all the children present. A fund of $9 was raised at the meeting. Mrs. Henry House will donate a Christmas tree and Mrs. Whitehead the materials for making the candy bags. The bags will be filled and the tree will be decorated December 17 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and all those who can are asked to help.

Those who attended the meeting were Mrs. Phil Ahern, Mrs. Bud Mitchell, Mrs. Pollard, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Tom LeBard, Mrs. Arthur Ross, Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. Lorton, Mrs. Bill Whitehead, Mrs. Charlie Hendricks, Mrs. Ralph Stone, Mrs. Ray Lambert, Mrs. Henry Boosey, Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. Walter Mills, Mrs. Salaetz, Mrs. Frank Swain, Mrs. Ted Cock, Mrs. Ransler Baker, Mrs. Henry House, Mrs. Ray DeBrower and her sister, Mrs. Bascom.

Donations Aid Laguna Library

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 6.—Gratitude to those who had made contributions to the local library were expressed by members of the board this week, when it was found that the treasury had enough in it to permit paying the assessment for street work on First street instead of making it necessary to let it go to bond. Letters sent out by the board brought responses totaling more than the $283.39 necessary to take up the indebtedness.

Hours have been changed during the winter for the days that the library is open from the previous 2 to 6 p. m. to 1:30 to 5:30. This will not interfere with the children's story hours, given on alternate Saturdays. Mrs. Lucy Danskin will be the story teller on December 7.

CHURCH GROUP TO MAKE CANDY FOR PRISONERS

PLACENTIA, Dec. 6.—Members and friends of the Calvary Young People's society will meet in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Henry tonight at 7:30 o'clock to make candy for the prisoners. This is a part of the county Christian Endeavor work which is done each year at Christmas time. It is planned to make this a social time and enough candy will be made to serve those present.

The new program which has been adopted recently by the young people will go into effect next Sunday night at their regular meeting at 6:30 o'clock. This program calls for two speakers each week. One will be the main speaker, who will be chosen to give a 15-minute Bible study each week for four weeks. The Rev. Mr. Fuller will be the main speaker for the next four weeks. The other speaker will be the leader for the evening who presides over the meeting, selects the songs and gives a short talk on the regular Christian Endeavor topic. A new leader will be chosen each week. Cleo Hamner will be the leader next Sunday. There will be special music each week and a time for testimonies and prayers by the members of the society. It is planned to have a party in one of the member's home every two months.

The new officers of the society will be installed at the meeting Sunday night. They are as follows: President, Elizabeth Lish; vice president, Marie Lashley; secretary, Grace Junkin; treasurer, Harry Stewart; prayer meeting superintendent, Marie Gramner; lookout chairman for the girls, Doris Berry; for the boys, Cleo Hamner; special music chairman, Norene Henry; social chairmen, Ella Armstrong and Gladys Jennings; room supervisor, Douglas Wheeler. Don Milligan is the Christian Endeavor superintendent.

Hansen P.-T. A. Arranges Party

HANSEN, Dec. 6. — Mrs. Neal Beisel, president of the fourth district Parent-Teacher association, and Mrs. W. W. Gardner, chairman of the publicity work, were present at the Savanna session this week. Others present besides members of the association were the four teachers of the Mexican school at Stanton, Mrs. Twilla Reid, principal; Miss Marian Fitchman, Mrs. Lois M. Jewell and Mrs. E. C. Scofield.

Committees were appointed by the president, Mrs. Charles Peters, for the Christmas entertainment, which will be held Dec. 18 in the auditorium at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hansen, program committee for the year, will be assisted by Mrs. Evans, the principal of the school, in arranging this program. An operetta will be put on. It will also be fathers' night. Refreshments will be served.

Other plans made by the Savanna P.-T. A. for the Christmas holidays was the making of 250 popcorn balls for the Mexican school and for gathering up a donation for the Indian reservation in the San Diego hills.

PURCHASE OF FAIR GROUNDS URGED BY ANAHEIM C. OF C.

ANAHEIM, Dec. 6.—A resolution was adopted yesterday by the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce unanimously endorsing the purchase of the county fair grounds by the county.

The action was taken at the regular meeting of the body. The organization recommended that the resolution be sent the secretary of the fair board with instructions that it be sent to the chairman of the recreation committee of the Associated Chambers of Commerce and that this committee get squarely behind a movement for the acquisition of the property.

A committee of four was appointed by H. N. White, president of the chamber, to confer with a like committee of the Orange county fair board. The committee includes Dr. H. A. Johnston, H. E. W. Barnes, R. J. Grange and George W. Reid, secretary of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce.

During the session Secretary Reid presented a report of the meeting of the county realty board with secretaries and superintendents at Ketner's cafe in Santa Ana recently.

NEW BIDS SOUGHT ON OUTFALL SEWER

SAN CLEMENTE, Dec. 6.—Due to the failure of C. Anili, of Huntington Park, to sign a contract with the city for the construction of the sewer outfall after his bid of $89,000 was accepted, the city at its session last night took action to secure new bids for the project. New bids will be opened on December 18 and the job awarded to the lowest bidder. Merritt, Chapman and Scott, with a bid of $99,500, were the second lowest bidders on the work.

At the city council session, steps were taken to introduce a new ordinance for the appointemnt of an electrical inspector to cut down the fire hazard in San Clemente. The ordinance will specify type of construction to be used in electrical installation in Spanish village homes and business blocks.

LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hofer have received their first letter from their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hofer, since the arrival of the latter in Papette, Tahiti. They write interestingly of the islands and say that they come up to their expectations.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hanson, of San Bernardino, were guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. McFadden on Balboa street at Anaheim recently.

J. W. Fulier and wife of Protection, Kansas, are at present guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Fuller of Fairview avenue. The men are brothers and both are druggists. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fuller have been spending some time with their son who is in business in Los Angeles.

There were 1393 military, commercial and municipal land fields and airports in the United States at the end of June, 1929.

OCEANVIEW TEAMS WINS BALL GAMES

OCEANVIEW, Dec. 6.—The first basketball game for the season in the Pacific Athletic School league was played Wednesday afternoon at Oceanview, the contesting teams being those of Oceanview and Seal Beach. Oceanview won both the boys' and girls' games, the boys' score being 8 to 6 and the girls' 34 to 11.

The boys' team is composed of Homer Slater, Wallace Blaylock, William Blaylock, Raymond Hernandez and Joe Vuerra. The girls' first and second teams took part in their game, those playing being Maxine Bradbury, Ruby Lewis, Phyllis Bradbury, Bulah Lewis, Mary Miller, Juanita Rogers, Bulah Ingle, Mildred Moore, Toshiko Furuta, Inez Garett, Wilma Price, Paula Nelson.

Preparations for the Christmas program to be given the closing day of school before the Christmas holidays start are under way.

P.-T. A. Arranges Christmas Fund

SAN CLEMENTE, Dec. 6.—Members of the Spanish village P.-T. A. have voted to donate money to the fund with which to buy presents for San Clemente children at the Christmas tree celebration which will be held on the beach December 14. The Kiwanis club will assist in the purchase of presents. Mrs. G. A. Ferguson, president, Mrs. Lester Abell and Mrs. Bob Plume will make the purchases.

The P.-T. A. also voted to set aside money to buy candy for the children of the San Clemene school, who will hold a holiday party at the school house on December 18. It was voted to purchase 30 spoons as part of the luncheon equipment of the P.-T. A. as that organization is now serving hot soup to the school children.

In 1789 there were only 75 post offices in the United States. In 1929 there were 49,400. The post office revenue in 1789 was about $25,000. In 1929 it will exceed $700,000,000.

HEALTH BEST IN THIRTY YEARS

"Seven bottles of Sargon increased my weight 25 pounds, ended my troubles of 30 years standing and restored me to splendid health.

W. J. HEISLER

"Constipation had become chronic with me. My liver was out of order, I was bilious and dizzy, and suffered so with indigestion that at times I couldn't even retain my food. My weight dropped from 160 to 135 pounds, and I was weak, nervous and run down. My improvement since I started Sargon has simply been remarkable. I eat and enjoy my food, my indigestion is over and my weight is back to 160 pounds! I am wonderfully strengthened and invigorated, am never nervous, enjoy my sleep and feel 20 years younger! One of the most gratifying things of all to me is that Sargon Pills absolutely ended my constipation."—W. J. Heisler, 2612 Havenscourt Building, Oakland.—Sargon is sold in Santa Ana by Schramm-Johnson Drug Co.—Adv.

Harbor Plans Scheduled To Be Ready Soon

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 6.—Mayor Johnson, City Engineer Patterson, together with Colonel Leeds and E. L. Sonderegger, the consulting engineers on the harbor improvement at the entrance to Newport harbor, spent yesterday afternoon in making a last survey before completing the plans for the improvement.

The position of the groins was decided upon and the plans can now be completed.

Instead of merely reviewing and criticizing the finished plans, the engineers are co-operating as a unit in the preparatory work thus saving the time incident to changes, as well as reducing the initial cost of the engineering work to the city.

If the present ideas are carried out, the dredged channel will hold well towards the western side, and will cross the bar about where the stern of the "Muriel" now rests.

It is believed that the groins on the seaward side of the west jetty will completely stop the cutting at the shore end, and allow the beach to build up at that point.

Anaheim To Place Trees On Streets

ANAHEIM, Dec. 6.—The streets of Anaheim will present a colorful appearance during the three weeks before Christmas when lights on the trees which are to line the streets will be turned on. An announcement was made at the regular meeting of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce yesterday that Mayor L. E. Miller would turn on the lights at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening.

More trees will be used in decorating the streets than ever before and 180 merchants have signed for the Oregon trees. The trees are 12 feet high and will carry from 15 to 24 lights each.

At five intersections of the streets large wreaths will be suspended and in the center of the wreaths large bells will be hung. Hemlock ropes will be festooned to the corner lamp posts.

CHURCH BOARD IN CONFERENCE AT COSTA MESA

COSTA MESA, Dec. 6.—The board of stewards of the M. E. Community church, under the leadership of the new San Diego district superintendent, the Rev. F. A. Geissinger, held their business meeting this week. The pastor, the Rev. A. F. Hasse, gave a short resume of the things which he plans to accomplish during the year.

The Sunday school superintendent, the Rev. Grow S. Brown, reported for the Sunday school, among other things stating that but last Sunday the attendance was 342.

Reports also were submitted by the following department heads: H. B. McMurtry, finances; Mrs. E. A. Randall, Ladies' Aid society; Mrs. Mary Bennett, Missionary society, and Lee Belding, Epworth league.

Stewards and other officers in attendance included Charles Kesel, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Spaulding, Lloyd Willcutt, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Reynolds, Donald Gibson, Mrs. Harry Clark, Mrs. Fred Long, Mrs. O. O. Bland, Mrs. Prentice Thompson, Mrs. Nellie Viele and Mesdames A. F. Hasse and F. A. Geissinger.

The total of $315,446,256 in foreign trade of the Philippine Islands for the year ending June 30, 1929, represents an increase over the previous year of $45,000,000.

LEASE ON EAST SIDE ACQUIRED BY RIO GRANDE

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. 6.—The Richfield Oil company has poured cement for foundations on three wells on the east side of the field. One well is located at Garfield and Huntington avenue at the corner on the Arnold tract on which the Richfield already has one producing well from the 3600-foot sand, doing 165 barrels a day. The second new location is on the same lease, offsetting the well recently taken over by Ed Heaston and associates and formerly the Huntington Central well. The Heaston interests brought this well in for 180 barrel well by perforating the old casing at the 3600-foot sand. The third Richfield location is on the Heaston lease of five acres adjoining the Arnold tract.

The Sunset Pacific Oil company, formerly the Julian, has brought in the best well in the old field here for some time. The well went on the pump yesterday and is doing 150 barrels of clean oil and 250,000 cubic feet of gas that produces eight gallons of gasoline to 1000 cubic feet. Bottom of the hole is at 4600 feet. Other new wells practically offsets to the Sunset Pacific well are not making anything like the amount of oil and gas shown by the Sunset well. Also all other recent wells brought in show some water. There is no water in the Sunset Pacific.

The Rio Grande-Barnsdall interests have taken over the Featherstone and Preston well on the Newland-Borchard tract at the east limits of the city on the bluff, according to information received by W. T. Newland, one of the land owners in the tract. Featherstone and Preston started yesterday to remove their string of drill pipe and Rio Grande-Barnsdall will immediately move in a heavier string and continue the well.

The well has a 11-inch hole at 4365 feet deep. A dark brown, rather soft shale which has been cut for the last 25 feet in the well cores a nice showing of oil for every foot of the 25 feet. Featherstone and Preston have been working only one eight-hour shift for the past several months. The new outfit will iput on three crews and push the well down as fast as possible.

The Rio Grande Oil company has the Farnsworth 200-acre lease near the Newland-Borchard lease and has been keeping close watch on the Featherstone project. News of the transfer of this lease is received with elation in oil circles and it is believed that the Rio Grande-Barnsdall interests will give the east side of the field here a thorough test even if they have to go 6000 to 7000 feet to get a well.

GARDEN GROVE

GARDEN GROVE, Dec. 6.—The regular routine business of the sanitary board was transacted by members of the board at the Chamber of Commerce rooms Monday evening.

A turkey dinner was enjoyed in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips on Stanford street Sunday. Covers were placed for William De Palmar of Santa Ana, Mr. and Mrs. Leighton Phillips, Misses Anna and Margaret Phillips, Ned Phillips and the hosts.

Mrs. E. O. Fulsom returned home Monday from the California hospital, Los Angeles, where she submitted to a major operation over two weeks ago. She is reported to be getting along nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Conaway accompanied the former's sister, Mrs. H. H. Bogardus, and daughter, Mary Jane, to Palm Springs Sunday. Mrs. Bogardus and daughter had been spending a week here.

Mr. and Mrs. William Morrill spent Tuesday with their son, Earl Morrill, and wife in Los Angeles.

Mrs. C. Niles has returned from San Luis Obispo, where she spent several weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Morris Urwick.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Urwick, of San Luis Obispo, spent the week end with the latter's mother, Mrs. Charlotte Niles.

K. C. Coffman has returned from Santa Barbara, where he has been located the past three months. He is inspector for the California Walnut Growers' association.

The regular Monday evening card party was held at the Legion hall under the auspices of the Legion auxiliary. Eight tables were arranged for bridge and "500". First prizes in "500" were awarded to Mrs. Ziegler of Huntington Beach and Walter Edkins, of Santa Ana, and second prizes to Mrs. Paquette, of Huntington Beach and Henry Luther, of Garden Grove. First prize in bridge wetn to Miss Carrie Cutsinger of Los Angeles and second to Mrs. Bruce of Long Beach.

Refreshments of cake and coffee were served.

Changes Central America's mountain treasure to liquid gold » »

Your coffee pot is the touchstone that brings out the luxury of flavor you know as Folger's.

Remember this: The sameness of most brands is due to the fact that nearly 70% of the coffee on the market comes from one common region!

FOLGER-FLAVOR is exclusive—rich and full of "body"—the result of choosing for your delight costly Central American mountain-grown types.

HAVE YOU TRIED THIS FAMED TEST?

Get Folger's Coffee from your grocer today. Drink it tomorrow morning. The next morning drink the coffee you have been using. The third morning drink Folger's again. Then decide which you like best. If, for any reason, you do not choose Folger's, your grocer will gladly refund the full purchase price. We will pay him. That's fair, isn't it?

NEW DRIVE-IN MARKET AT MAIN AND CHESTNUT

The Main Market will hold its formal opening at the corner of Main street and Chestnut avenue, Saturday, with a program of entertainment. Four departments comprise the new building and convenient drive-in arrangements have been considered in the completed market. The building is owned by G. A. Bradley, of this city. Entertainment will be supplied by the Coburn company, of Los Angeles, which also is responsible for the attractive decorations throughout the market.

The term "marketing" brings up, to many people, a mental picture of a buom peasant woman sitting in a public market, under a large blue umbrella, waiting for customers to buy her cottaye cheese or saurekraut.

Today, however, "marketing" in Santa Ana means keeping stride with the rapid progress of building operations. Main Market, which is to tsage a formal opening at the corner of Main street and Chestnut avenue, Saturday, bears evidence of the city's enterprise.

"Santa Ana, the Ideal City," has become more than a mere slogan. Competitor - attractions bear convincing testimony that this city is keeping step with the latest marketing ideas.

G. A. Bradley is owner of the Main Market, which has been so constructed as to meet the demand for the convenience of an interested and buying public. Drive-ins have been completed and the entire market building climaxes plans that have been considered for the last several months.

Residence Moved

Where only a few months ago stood one of the most handsome homes in the residential district of this city, now stands a complete market place. The home, owned by Bradley, was sold to the Rev. U. E. Harding and moved to 711 South Broadway. Bradley had lived on the corner wehe now stands the highway market for nine years.

The Main market is composed of four departments: confectionery, meats, grocery and delicatessen, and vegetables and fruits. Foster C. Phelps, general contractor, of Beverly boulevard, Los Angeles, constructed the housing quarters for the four modern divisions.

Facing front on Main street is the confectionery in charge of Claud M. Dearden, who is also manager of the fountain and lunch counter at the Santa Ana Drug company. Dearden has been in business in Santa Ana for the last two years and is well qualified to satisfy the most exacting customers in his trade. He said today that his time will be divided between the two stations, the market and the drug store. Miss Helen McClellan will be in charge of the drug store fountain during his absence. Dearden will specialize in curb service to motorists and plans to feature a Tiajuana sandwich at his lunch counter.

Madeira Heads Meat Market

Directly behind the confectionery and convenient to drivers-in is the meat market. W. H. Madeira is manager of that department. He has been in business in Santa Ana for the last six years and was formerly located in the People's Arcade building at 419 West Fourth street. He served a buying public for four years in the Grand Central market, and expressed his plan to feature only quality meats at the Main market.

Next to the meat section is the grocery and delicatessen division. It is also arranged for the convenience of the drivers-in and is managed by Guy Barp and his wife, who are newcomers in Santa Ana, having formerly been in business in Los Angeles. They assure the people that a complete line of groceries and bakery delicacies will be carried in their new place. Both are of Swiss nationality and have traveled extensively all over the world. Barp speaks the Italian, Spanish, French, German and American languages.

E. M. Frazee is manager of the vegetable and fruit stands that are situated in the market building with fronts on Chestnut avenue. He has been in business in Santa Ana for two years and formerly managed the Orange county stands for the Produce company. He became a part of the market by leaving his old location with the Alpha Beta store on Fourth street. Frazee will carry a complete line of fresh vegetables and fruits and will be open day and night.

Orchestra On Program

Nearly 50 baskets of produce will be distributed at the opening Saturday by the four departments of the Main market. Flood lights and a broadcasting wagon will be used to emphasize the festivities of the occasion. A six-piece orchestra from Los Angeles will furnish music for the evening and Wallace R. Strait, master of ceremonies, is expected to deliver the address of the evening.

The entire program has been in charge of the Coburn company of Los Angeles who specialize in illuminating and decorating for individual business houses. The public is guaranteed an evening of pleasure. Favors will be distributed during the day to all patrons and visitors at the new Main market.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN — PICTURES by KNICK

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Out on the deck the Tinies brought their sled and Scouty said, "We ought to get away from here before the captain rushes out. He'll see us talking to this elf and make a nuisance of himself by making us explain to him what we are now about."

"A good idea," said the elf. "I'll start you on your way myself. Just hop aboard your little sled and leave the rest to me. I'll send you sailing through the air. Hang on real tight and have a care. You don't think I can do it, but I'm strong as I can be."

The Tinymites all had their doubts, but with some very merry shouts they did as they were told to and then Scouty cried, "All right! Send us a-flying, if you please, so we can ride upon the breeze." The elf then picked the sled up and just as if 'twere very light.

He flung it quickly into air. At first it gave the bunch a scare, but soon they found that they were riding onward safe and sound. The elf then flapped his monstrous wings. Oh, my, what funny looking things. He caught up with the Tinies and said, "Northward we are bound."

They traveled for an hour or so. Then Clowny loudly shouted, "Oh! The air is getting mighty cold. Please tell us, what's the cause?" The elf just smiled and said, "You'll find that I am being very kind. No wonder it is cold! You're going to meet old Santa Claus."

"Oh, gee! That's great!" one Tiny cried. Then downward they began to slide. The sled dropped to a river which was covered o'er with ice. "You'll soon be there," the elf cried out. "And you'll be tickled pink, no doubt, when you meet good old Santa. He is very, very nice."

(The Tinies reach Toyland in the next story.)

Missing Letter Links

RULES:

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but it isn't: TEE-TIE--PIE-PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.

2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.

3. The order of the letters cannot be changed.

BLOW to PIPE—Inasmuch as it's an ancient Scotch game, today we BLOW the bag PIPE for a little color. Par is six.

Tomorrow:—Solution of today's puzzle.

reduced from 13,000 in 1920 to 7909 in 1925, and this decline has continued in recent years. As immunization progresses and becomes more broadly effective, diphtheria deaths will drop still further in number.

Depends on Public

The control and prevention of any disease, however, depends for success upon persuading the public to the point of permitting known preventive measures to be applied in sufficient numbers to safeguard the whole community, as well as the individual. The health department urges the people of Orange county to seek scientific information from authentic medical sources regarding the means of disease prevention available and to take advantage of these preventive measures, not only for their own good, but for the good of the entire community.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

gave a personal message from the National president, Mrs. W. H. C. Goode.

Mrs. John Clarkson had charge of the program and Mrs. Arnold very ably reviewed the chapter from the study book, "The Crowded Ways." She described the isolation of the crowded city, for the individual, and the social barriers so different to be overcome by the stranger, there.

Mrs. Clarkson closed the program with a Christmas poem, "And Again."

Alaska Talks Enjoyed

Up through the land of the totem pole and over the glacier region the women of the First Baptist church were taken Wednesday afternoon. Glimpses of the picturesque grandeur of Alaska were given by Miss Lula Minter and Mrs. Helen B. Heil as they displayed pictures which showed places they visited during their travels in this land of ice and snow. Miss Minter's story was of scenes in Southern Alaska.

Mrs. Elmer Steffenson followed with an entertaining paper on the history of Alaska leading up to the establishment of the Baptist orphanage at Kodiak on Wood island.

Mrs. Heil was then presented as a direct messenger from the school to the women of her audience. The speaker's airplane ride over the glaciers, her word painting of the glorious sunsets and sunrises and intimate accounts of the living conditions of the Alaskans proved most entertaining and profitable.

Mrs. Heil's visit to the orphanage, her introduction of the superintendent and his family and the needs of the school aroused an interest among the women of the First Baptist church for this worthwhile work.

Impressive devotions, led by Mrs. J. P. Greene, an appropriate solo by Mrs. Lula Johnston and the singing of Christmas carols preceded the Alaskan program.

The morning hours had been spent by the women in work.

The dinner tables were centered with improvised snow banks, reindeer and sleds and tallow candles. The platform depicted the frozen northland, its snow capped peaks and northern lights, the result of Mrs. Earl Elliott's artistic cleverness.

The 1927 traffic on the Rhine river, Germany, was approximately 66,000,000 tons.

THANKFUL TURTLE

LONDON, Dec. 6. — Sopa, the huge turtle in the Zoological Gardens, has C. Elliot of Stevenage to thank for her life. She was brought here from Santiago—but she went direct to a restaurant at Santiago from her home in the Galapagos Islands. The restaurant manager was going to make turtle soup out of Sopa, but Elliot bought her and shipped her here to the museum.

ROBOT POSTAL CLERK

COLOGNE, Dec. 6. — A local engineer has invented a robot postal clerk. When you post an unstamped letter at this clerk's counter, you drop it on a weighing machine. A devise at the top registers the amount of postage required. The sender places the money in a slot and then the machine stamps the letter and puts it in a box for colelction.

WESTMINSTER

Mrs. Hilma Huddleston, local kindergarten teacher, who is under quarantine at the Orange county hospital, where she was ill with scarlet fever, is well and awaiting the expiration of the quarantine period, which terminates next week.

There was a chamber of commerce meeting held Tuesday evening but owing to lack of attendance, no action was taken. There was a report given by George Abbott of the street and signs committee, reporting on the posting of streets along Westminster avenue. Other signs are to be put up on side streets. Mr. Hummell, with whom the chamber of commerce is taking up a proposed water system for the town, was present.

Mrs. C. B. McCall and daughter, Miss Fay McCall, have returned from Burbank, where they spent several days in the home of Mr. McCall's brother.

Camp Fire Girls of the Westminster school are to hold their second meeting at a near date, it was decided at a meeting of the girls this week. Mrs. Marie Taylor substituted as guardian at the meeting in the absence of Miss Florence Boosey. The girls are planning a way to add funds to their treasury and talk of making a silk quilt to auction off.

The Boy Scout troop of Westminster is having a contest between the two patrols, the Scouts and the Cubs, the former being led by Charles Anderson, the latter by Glenn Curtis. Each patrol is holding separate meetings, the Scouts having their headquarters in a room above the Eastwood garage and the Cubs at the house on the Bar ranch north of town.

A coupe belonging to Hugh Goble, of Barber City was stolen Monday evening from where it was parked near the I. O. O. F. hall.

FULLER PARK

FULLER PARK, Dec. 6.—Elmer S. Saums, chief radio man of the U. S. navy, now on furlough, left for New York Tuesday after several days' visit with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Cook.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. English and family spent the week end quail hunting in Morengo valley near Victorville.

Clovis Hynes, who was injured by a hit and run driver a week ago, is much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gano were week end guests of Mrs. Gano's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Schulz, at their ranch home above Irvine park.

E. C. James and William Reeser spent Monday quail hunting in Mockingbird canyon.

Mrs. C. A. Neighbors appointed grade mothers, Mrs. C. Vetter and Mrs. A. L. Cook, grades one and two; Mrs. F. B. Callan and Mrs. Hazel Smalley, grades three and four; Mrs. Frank Miller and Mrs. J. G. Adams, grades five and six; Mrs. W. A. Collman and Mrs. Dan Williams, grades seven and eight.

Mrs. John Knox, of Santa Ana, had an exhibit of four paintings.

LIONS

I had been dreaming about both nights.

While I finished dressing she told me what had happened.

"First, the hyenas came again," she said, "just the way they did last night. I threw rocks at them and yelled and even then they wouldn't clear out.

"Then all of a sudden the hyenas left. I knew that meant a lion was coming. I laid low for a while. Pretty soon a crunching of bones told me that it was a lion, all right. I got out the hand flashlight and threw it on the kill.

"Gosh, it was a whopper!"

It must have been, for Osa didn't exaggerate.

"It didn't do anything but sit up and blink at me. Then it began to eat again. I couldn't get a decent picture with his head down. I tried whistling. That worked pretty well. He looked up and lifted an ear. It was just what I wanted. I pushed the button to fire. Nothing happened. Maybe the connections were wet. I whistled again. It seemed a shame not to get the pose thelion was in: ideal, with a funny expression of curiosity and not a bit of fear or anger.

"I kept on pushing my button. All of a sudden the flash went off with a terrible bang. And then what do you think happened, Martin?"

I was too ill for much guessing but I said: "He charged?"

"Not exactly, but the result was the same. I think he was so startled that he tried to run away. The flash must have blinded him. He came right for the car. The first thing I knew I heard a crash and felt the whole car heave up. He had struck the mudguard headon.

"He let out a roar that nearly scared me to death."

"It was enough to scare any one," I put in.

"I thought he'd come right up into the car after me. But he didn't. I suppose he thought he had been struck. At any rate he whirled about and plunged off into the darkness."

By this time some of the other blacks were gathered around. They couldn't understand what Osa was saying; but they knew that she had had some sort of exciting experience.

"Then I tried to drive back to camp just as we planned," she went on. "But something had happened to the batteries. Not only the self-starter wouldn't work but the lights wouldn't turn on.

"After stepping on the starter several times it suddenly gave a buzz. My heart stopped when the buzz was answered by a growl. The lion was back. I suppose he felt it was safe because he had not been pursued.

"At this moment the car started and I threw in the clutch. But there was no place to go! Right ahead of me was the zebra and behind were three trees. The place where the car had backed in was blocked by the lion.

"The only thing to do was to work toward the zebra and try to get out that way. But the minute I drove up to the body the lion sprang upon it growling and lashing his tail. I suppose he thought I was going to take it away from him.

"I backed up again and tried working through the other direction. The lion hopped to the other end of the zebra and growled louder than ever. But I didn't dare wait around any longer. The beast was getting madder and madder. Any minute he might come for me. In the poor light I couldn't have done much with my rifle. So I just stepped on the gas and zipped ahead past the lion at full speed. I was too scared to look back. Gee, Martin, I must have made the camp in one minute flat!"

Mentally I vowed that Osa shouldn't go out alone again. Night work simply shouldn't be done alone in lion country. It is too dangerous.

As we were all aroused by this time, I took Bukari and two of the boys and went out to the kill. We found the lion still there, finishing his supper. What a roar he gave us as a welcome!

"Well, if here isn't that blamed thing back again!" I think he said.

He came directly for us, not stopping until he was only a few feet away. I have never seen an angrier lion. He was growling continuously. His tail was waving sharply to and fro. And his head was lowered exactly as if he intended charging instantly.

When Osa tooted the horn he backed away. Then I threw stones at him until he had retreated a hundred feet. That gave me a chance to rescue my camera and flashlight apparatus. As the zebra had been dragged out of focus I did not think it worth while to try to set the whole gear up again that night.

"Anyway," said Osa, "I don't like the manners of my playmate, so let's go home."

VITONE
KAMALA
Combination Worm Tablets

Positively the most scientific remedy for both Tape and Round Worms. Each tablet contains a full dose of Kamala with other drugs that will kill all tape and round worms in poultry. The tablets are far superior to capsules; they will not gum or stick in the fowls' throat. Just place the tablet in the fowls' mouth and they will swallow it. No instruments to fuss with, no waste; no guess work; no starving or doses to measure out. One tablet is sufficient—50 tablets, $1.00; 100 tablets, $1.75; 200 tablets, $3.00; 500 tablets, $6.75; 1000 tablets, $12.00.

AN UNTENABLE POSITION

Already President Hoover's position stated in respect to the World Court has been attacked. President Hoover has declared his intention of presenting to the Senate the signed articles of agreement for their approval or disapproval for the entrance of the United States into the International Court.

We do not see how in honor the United States Senate can refuse to approve of this agreement. Three years ago the United States Senate ratified this court protocol with certain reservations. Later in a conference of the signatory nations which the United States refused to attend, everything excepted to by the United States Senate was agreed to with the exception of the single point of advisory opinions, and last March Secretary of State Kellogg revived the issue again, suggesting that negotiations be entered into to remove this remaining difficulty.

Out of this came an agreement based upon a formula suggested by Elihu Root, who had been a member of the original committee which drafted the court statute. He was also a member of this new committee. This Root formula had the endorsement of President Coolidge, then Secretary of Commerce Hoover, and the leading Senators.

When it finally came before the conference of signatory states, Secretary of State Stimson declared that "it would effectively meet the objections raised in the reservations of the United States Senate, and would constitute a satisfactory basis for the adherence of the United States." He further said that he would request the President for the authority to sign it, and would recommend that it be submitted to the Senate for its consent to ratification.

It was after Secretary Stimson made this statement that the conference accepted the protocol without the change of a word, and immediately opened it for signature. Forty-eight nations signed it, and now it only rests with the nation which raised the objections, presented the remedy, and had the remedy accepted, to fulfill its part of the agreement. We have no doubt but what there will be a fight in the United States Senate, but a refusal in the light of all of these circumstances to join, when every possible contingency has been safeguarded which would involve us in conflict, when force can never be used, would place us in an absurd and really untenable position.

We are approaching a conference of naval disarmament. We were the chief factor in the Kellogg-Briand peace pact. In that pact we solemnly declared that differences between nations must be settled by pacific means, and there is nothing more natural and better to settle international differences than a World Court. The conditions under which the Senate had declared it would vote for approval, having been fully met in the judgment of our national leaders and the leaders of the party which is in power, the pact should be promptly signed, so as to keep the good will of the nations. Otherwise, they would have the reason to question, if not the good faith, certainly the representative capacity of our president and secretary of state hereafter.

An Ohio man, reciting poetry to a woman, shot her in the leg accidentally. She ought to be grateful for the relief, anyway.

UNSEASONABLE WEATHER

The middle West and the East have been experiencing the most frigid weather known for over forty years. To have zero weather on Thanksgiving day is something that looks forward to an expensive coal bill for the season. To compare the zero weather of the Eastern region with our record on the Pacific Coast of 45 to 50 degrees is additional incentive to the migration of the Eastern folk to the balmier region of the Pacific.

There are some compensations, no doubt, for those who have to live in the chilly atmosphere in the way of winter sports. Men have the faculty of finding compensations everywhere and for every situation. But if it be a matter of choice, give us a little less of the mercury in the bulb, and more of it up the tube. Winter sports are all right, but they are simply the necessities for a rigorous climate. Men would not ordinarily choose the weather to have the winter sports. They manufacture the winter sports because they are made necessary by the winter cold.

A night club in Cleveland caught fire the other night. There ought to be some law about keeping those red hot saxophones away from the drapes.

SOOT IN BIG CITIES

While we are counting our blessings, we can remember to be thankful that here in Orange county the atmosphere is not contaminated as it is in the big cities of the country.

Every ton of soft coal contains nearly 180 pounds of soot, which is distributed throughout the surrounding air when the coal is burned.

In a great industrial center such as the Chicago area, nearly 30,000,000 tons of soft coal are burned yearly. If you take the trouble to figure that out, you'll find that every inhabitant of that district gets about one hundred pounds of soot each month.

The situation is much the same in every large city.

AMBASSADOR MORROW AS SENATOR

It has been suggested that Ambassador Morrow will be the new United States Senator from the state of New Jersey to take the place of Senator Edge who has recently been appointed ambassador to France.

Mr. Morrow has made a very enviable record for himself and for his country in Mexico. He has cemented the friendship of the two nations very remarkably, overcome many of the difficulties which had been caused by his predecessor, and as a matter of fact, confounded those critics who believed that even in a more pronounced degree than did Mr. Sheffield, Mr. Morrow would represent in Mexico the "big" interests. While personally of course Mr. Morrow has been associated with "big" interests and very vitally connected with them, yet no man could have more completely and to the satisfaction of all factions represented the United States in those delicate relationships better than Mr. Morrow has.

If he had been appointed United States Senator from New Jersey without having evidenced his ability to divest himself from his own personal relationships and represent all of the people, there would have been very pronounced criticism against him, both in New Jersey and undoubtedly on the floor of the United States Senate.

In spite, however, of his years of connection with the biggest banking interests of the country, we believe the consensus of opinion will be, if Mr. Morrow should take his place in the United States Senate, that he will be a representative of the poor as well as the rich, and that such representation will in no sense be an idle gesture.

We were surprised that Mr. Morrow accepted the position at Mexico City in the beginning. He did it as a public duty. He has served his time. He deserves, if he desires, an opportunity to live nearer New York City, and still stay in public life.

The season of the year is at hand when a cow looks exactly like a squirrel, deer, rabbit or quail.

AS OTHERS SEE US

Agitators in Shanghai have threatened a boycott of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks because a Chinese sequence of the film, "The Thief of Bagdad," is declared to be derogatory to the dignity of the Chinese. The stars have shortened their visit in that city from four days to one, probably just as long as is necessary to continue their journey from Singapore to the next point of interest which follows Shanghai on their itinerary.

If the Chinese are so sensitive about the light in which they are placed in this one particular picture, it presents a strange comparison to the tolerance of most of us Americans of the light in which we and our civilization are portrayed in films which are exported to the world. The Chinese and the Japanese and the French and English have reason to believe that our civilization is as luxurious as that of the Romans of old or the courts of the Louis'. Material comforts and luxuries have never so completely surrounded the individual as they are enjoyed by all of us, according to the pictures, while we consume ourselves with attempts to express various passions—greed, selfishness, power, sex. Of course the Chinese, who themselves are sensitive to a false portrayal, don't realize that it is the sort of existence millions crave rather than realize. It is no wonder that the peoples of the earth have jealous and confused eyes upon us.

Ancient and Modern Weather Remains Same

San Bernardino Sun

The American Academy of Science is authority for the news that weather nowadays is just the same as it was 30,000 years ago, no better and no worse. Scientists have proved this to their satisfaction by examining clay deposits in New England. Ages ago the weather moved in cycles of from three to five years each of cool and warm years. It is still doing so, with variations which may seem large as they occur, but which are actually too slight to consider in any long view of the matter.

There are a lot of weather-wise old folks today who know the scientists are dead wrong. They don't have to study clay deposits and worry over anything that happened 30,000 years ago. They need only look back to their own childhood when the snow was deeper and stayed on the ground longer and when tremendous storms occurred that make present-day weather look puny and unworthy of consideration.

Maybe these unscientific people get a lot more fun out of the weather than the geologists and meteorologists do. They put imagination and emotion into it and invest it with some of the mystery it held for primitive man. All of which helps to make it endurable and interesting and a perennial best bet for conversation.

Noise Stunts Growth of Children, Says Scientist

San Bernardino Sun

Rats have been considered especially sensitive to noise. But Dr. Laird of Colgate university had a hunch that maybe they were affected by it as human beings are. So he tried assorted noises on rats for the benefit of humans. This is a useful process, because it saves time. The experimenter can get as much result from a white rat in one year as he can from a human being in 20 or 30 years.

The scientist found that rats permitted to lead a quiet life ate 2 or 3 per cent more food than rats that were bothered by electrical disturbances made to imitate city noises. And they grew 10 per cent faster. So the rats that lived quietly grew bigger than the rats that lived in a racket.

Dr. Laird draws a parallel between these two sets of rats, artificially brought up under city conditions and country conditions, and children brought up in the city and country. The country children, he observes, grow larger than the city children. He thinks it is largely the noise that makes the difference.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

RENUNCIATION

In my youth I was taught that the lives of the great
  Were highly inspiring to read;
I was told if I studied them early and late
  They would teach me the way to succeed.
So I toiled at biography, night after night
  Till this fact brought me up with a jerk:
All men who grow famous take eager delight
  In work.

Napoleon, Washington, Alfred E. Smith—
  All men of distinction and name—
Used work as a ladder, and clambered therewith
  To the uppermost ramparts of fame.
They stolidly, sternly continued to climb
  As they followed their glorious quest,
And not a man jack of them took out the time
  To rest.

Mr. Edison labored, as all of us know
  For seventeen hours a day
While inventing the lights that so vividly glow
  On the stretches of middle Broadway.
Henry Ford, though his myriad plants are a-throb,
  And his cars throng the country and mart,
Will not be content till he finds some new job
  To start.

So biography pages I study no more
  With hope in my bosom aglow.
Why burden my brain with a wearisome store
  Of something I already know?
Let people whom industry never can irk
  Soar to fame from a lowly thatched cot,
  I'm not!

A PATH OF GLORY

Getting Back To Work

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

President Hoover has just conferred with leaders of industry for the purpose of devising means of preventing a business depression.

What is the need? "All we have to do," we are told, "is to stop watching the stock market tape and get back to work."

Back to work! Well, what have we been doing for the past twelve months?

For one thing, we have raised industrial production to the highest level ever reached. Then, too, we have moved more real wealth on our railroads than ever before, and produced more automobiles in ten months than in any previous twelve months, and made a new record for steel production.

In the process—and essential to it—we have lifted real wages beyond the dreams of a generation ago.

And we have done it all without the treacherous stimulation of commodity price inflation.

In short, while supposedly we have been neglecting business for speculation, we have made a new high record for volume of sound business.

No, getting us back to work is not the problem which confronts President Hoover and his advisers. Keeping us at work at the new high level attained in 1929 is the immediate problem.

And the chief way to solve that, the President has pointed out. It is, by concerted effort, to put enough new money into construction, public and private, to prevent any decline in wages and employment. That can readily be done.

If we thus keep up the flow of money to consumers this winter, the injury to business as a whole caused by the stock market collapse will be negligible.

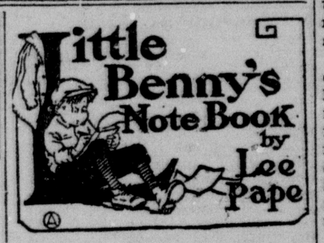
Little Benny's Note Book by Lee Pape



Me and my cuzzen Artie was sitting on my frunt steps and some of the follows was batting a baseball to each other in the street, being a real baseball and agenst the law, and the ony reason me and Artie wasent doing it with them was because we had to stay on the frunt steps waiting for the dinner bell to ring for supper, and all of a sudden Sid Hunt yelled, Cheese it.

Meening Flatfoot the cop wawking down the street fast, and they all started to run like the dickins, me and Artie just keeping on sitting there looking innocent on account of not feel gilty, me saying, Im not going to move, what did I do?

And Flatfoot kepp on waking down fast looking as if he looked mad, me saying, If he says anything to me do you know what Im going to say Im going to say, Why whats a matter? Im going to say. I was sitting here just sitting here all a time, and this fellow can prove it, and so was he and I can prove it. Why whats a matter? Im going to say. You cant do anything to us for just sitting here where we live, Im going to say, I sed.

Well I tell you what Im going to say if he says anything to me, Artie sed. Im going to say, Hay, cant peeple sit on their own frunt steps any more? Im going to say. G wizz, good nite, thats a heck of a note, Im going to say, Artie sed.

Wich by that time Flatfoot was so close we could see for sure weather he looked mad or not, wich he did, and he was looking rite at us 2 and still wawking fast, me saying, O well, the bell will ring in a minnit, anyways, and Artie saying, Sure, whats a use of waiting just for the sake of waiting, hurry up.

Wich we did, quick running in the house and slamming the door.

Proving no matter how innocent you are, your proberly just as lucky if you dont haff to prove it.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

ANTE-ROOM POLITICS

Slowly but surely the world moves toward a realization of its unity.

During the war, we heard much of the unity of the modern world.

It is one of the major paradoxes of history that in the midst of the most widespread carnival of disunity, Woodrow Wilson and certain Allied statesmen, with varying degrees of sincerity and insincerity that was at once both conscious and unconscious, talked, as world leadership had never before talked, of the essential unity of mankind.

While fighting our hardest, we were talking our highest.

In the midst of shedding blood, we spoke of brotherhood.

And then a greater paradox was to come.

As the suggestor of a League of Nations, the United States was the first major power to secede from its councils of organization.

Ten thousand years from now, historians will knit their brows over the puzzle of a people that, in effect, created a world organization it did not care to join.

But the paradox did not end there.

Since the war, the United States has continued to play an unofficial role in the life of a Europe it declined to join officially.

The United States played a major role in the creation of the International Bank as a device for the systematic and stable handling of international reparations and war debt payments.

Here again, the United States unofficially created a world organization it did not care to join, for the United States is, as I write, conducting negotiations regarding the part of Ferman reparations coming to it directly with Germany rather than with the International Bank.

What does all this mean?

Does it mean that Americans are arch-hypocrites?

I think not. I mean that, in this illogical show called life, we are blindly responding to the inevitable fact of the world's essential unity before we are yet equal to facing its implications officially.

How many years it will take for life to catch up with logic, I leave to the soothsayers.

As yet, the United States lingers a bit hesitantly in the ante-room of world-politics; in time it will move into the main council chamber.

OUR CHILDREN

TOYS

It is getting near time to buy the Christmas toys. Let us hope that this year the children will receive less rubbish and more real stand-up-and-deliver toys.

The girls must have dolls and it does no harm to let the little boys have some. Boy dolls for the boys, fresh-faced, smiling boys and girls for the little girls. There is nothing that quite takes the place of a doll in the heart of a child. Nothing should, for that doll is the symbol of the sweetest of all human joys.

All the furniture for the doll, and the doll house ought to be substantial enough for service. Instead of buying a whole box full of fragile tooth-pick stuff, buy one or two good pieces that will stand up.

Every child from the baby up to the college senior needs a ball of some kind. The ball is our first and our last toy. It symbolizes to us the world we would play with, the world we would master. It gives us all—old and young—a feeling of keen delight to work our will with a flying ball. The shops are full of beautiful ones, of every color and style and service. Do buy balls, rubber ones, big and little ones, worsted ones, glass marbles, baseballs, basketballs, footballs, soccer balls, hand balls, tennis balls, golf balls—balls and then balls.

Then try to find a "doing toy" for each child. Tinker toys are fine. Hustler toys with their gay colors and beads and sticks are fine for little ones. Then there is plasticine; paper and scissors and paste; weaving materials; sewing materials; paint boxes; small sized furniture; wheels of all descriptions; wheelbarrows and the garden tools; blocks; tools of all kinds. Suit the taste of the child and remember his physical and mental development and then buy him something that he can USE in play.

Christmas is a day for children and they always love a handful of junk so don't forget to buy from the street fakers the tin men who tumble so expertly (for him), the gay tin bugs that hump themselves across the table, the jumping mouse, the barking dog's head, the rabbit skin that comes alive when you know how to wiggle it on your fingers, and anything else that is gay and colorful and Christmassy. A Christmas that was a hundred per cent useful would not be Christmas at all but a glorified Do-you-good affair that no child could swallow.

A little nonsense, a lot of joyous trifling, and the core of stand-up-and-deliver tops will make a very happy day. Not too sane—not too silly—but just right, please.

Buy the Christmas toys early so that you can make your selection when the things are fresh, perfect, unhandled. When the crowds are out in full force it is not possible to give the time and attention necessary to make a good choice. Shop early and get all the fun out of it you can. And remember the core of the matter is the stand-up-and-deliver toy that will last the whole year round and be a source of delight to the active child.

ANTI-SLAVERY SOCIETY

Ninety-nine years ago today, on Dec. 6, 1833, the American Anti-Slavery Society was organized in Philadelphia by delegates from the few state and city societies then existing.

The society sought immediate abolition of slavery, and its work was for many years looked upon as fanatical or at least hopelessly impractical.

Members of the society were denounced, its meetings broken up, and rewards offered in the south for its leader dead or alive. Conflicting opinion on the question of political action caused a split in the society in 1840.

Non-voters under Garrison gained control of the old society. Others formed the American and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society, but the organization had outgrown a society and found a more conservative expression in the Liberty Party and its successors.

December Functions Most Brilliant Of Year

December has swept down upon us, taking us unawares even as a conqueror of old, and in his wake have followed many bridge teas, danners, dances and luncheons, all bespeaking that gayest and friendliest of times, the holiday season.

Among social events of late December will be the wedding of Miss Emily Holmes, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Duane Holmes, and Kenneth Tilson Conner, son of Mrs. Vernie H. Conner. The engagement of the two was announced Thursday night at a delightfully appointed dinner party presented by Mr. and Mrs. Holmes at their home on North Main street.

Miss Holmes is prominent in this city where she attended the local high school and junior college, later entering Oregon State college. Her fiance, manager of a citrus ranch near Orange, attended the University of Minnesota and Kenyon college in Ohio.

Delightful Tea

Assisting in various details were Miss Isabelle Siracusa, Miss Eleanor Metzgar, Miss Frances Larrabee, Miss Ada Marie Hendrickson, Miss Marcia Huber, Miss Pauline Prescott, Miss Phyllis Jamieson, Miss Mary Ford, Miss Lillian McDonald, Miss Clara Kate Owens, and Mrs. Robert Northcross, dean of women at the college.

Ebell women enjoyed a delightful afternoon of bridge on Monday when they gathered at the clubhouse for a party given under the auspices of the Fifth Household Economics section. The hostesses included Mrs. Fred Towner, Mrs. Carl Klatt and Mrs. Cood Adams.

P. E. O. Chapters Meet

The P. E. O. chapters met Monday afternoon for enjoyable programs. Chapter AB members were entertained by Mrs. L. L. Whitson and Mrs. Georgia Bradley at the Whitson home, 909 Spurgeon street, when plans were made for the annual Christmas party.

Chapter DI met at the hospitable home of Mrs. L. M. Forcey, South Sycamore street, when Mrs. Forcey, Mrs. E. S. Gilbert and Mrs. Elmer Heidt were hostesses. The program included a book review by Mrs. John Tessmann, who gave a brief outline of "July '19" by Emil Ludwig.

Chapter GJ members motored to Garden Grove for a pleasant pot luck luncheon with Mrs. Elizabeth Elmore. The afternoon's entertainment included a book review by Mrs. E. F. Klatt.

A charming affair of the weekend was the musicale tea given at the Ebell clubhouse Sunday afternoon by Ione Tunison Peek and Holly Lash Visel. A beautiful program was presented by members of the faculty of the Visel studious.

Pastor and Wife Hosts

The Rev. O. Scott McFarland, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and Mrs. McFarland, presided over a dinner at the Ebell clubhouse Thursday night given for various officers of the church.

The new Y. W. C. A. rooms were thrown open to the public on Thursday when a reception was held there both in the afternoon and in the evening. The affair was planned by Mrs. C. F. Smith, president of the organization, Miss Nancy Elder, general secretary, and Miss Dorothy Cartwright, Girl Reserve secretary.

The Orange County Music Teachers' association met at the home of Miss Leonora Tompkins, this city, Monday night when an interesting program of original compositions was presented. The various selections had been written by Miss Tompkins, Miss Mabel Woodworth of Los Angeles and Garden Grove, and Miss Alice Feine of Orange.

T. H. Glen, of the Santa Ana junior college faculty, gave an entertaining talk on his visit to the Orient Tuesday afternoon when he addressed the Santa Ana Woman's club which met in the parish hall of the Church of the Messiah.

Missionaries Honored

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Townsend of this city who are to leave soon or an extended stay in Chicago, were honored guests at a arewell party given by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gall Tuesday night at their home, 1338 West Ninth street. Mr. and Mrs. Townsend are missionaries in Central America and have just completed a translation of the New Testament of the Bible into the Cakchiquel Indian dialect. While in Chicago they will proof read the book.

Mrs. Frank Was of 2019 Victoria drive entertained the Quill Pen club at her home Tuesday night when a program of original manuscripts was presented.

Mrs. G. L. Hantsbarger was hostess at a dinner given at the home of her mother, Mrs. L. J. Mefford of 1010 West Fifth street, recently to announce the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mildred Morris, and John Randolph Bell, both of this city, which took place last month in Las Vegas, Nev.

In Brooklyn and Queens, two of New York City's most rapidly growing boroughs, the number of telephones has increased about 200 per cent in ten years.

SHE'S NEW PRESIDENT

Mrs. F. E. Coulter of this city was elected president of the Woman's auxiliary of the Orange County Medical society Tuesday night at a meeting of the Orange County hospital. Mrs. Coulter is prominent in club and social circles in this city and is a past president of the Santa Ana Ebell society.

Dinner Party Marks Golden Wedding Anniversary

Among the most pleasant affairs of this week was the dinner party Thursday with which Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Morse of 1010 North Parton street were honored by a group of friends.

The occasion was the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding which occurred in Auburn, N. Y., on a cold winter's day which offered an amazing contrast to the warmth of California's winter days.

The delightful dinner was planned by Mr. and Mrs. Henry deGroff of Long Beach, P. G. Dennis and his niece, Mrs. Ethel Edwards, of New York City, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McKay of this city.

Lovely chrysanthemums and other winter flowers, many of which were the gifts of interested friends, were arranged about the home for the affair. A color scheme in harmonizing tones was carried out at the dinner table.

Mr. and Mrs. Morse have lived in this city for the past 10 years, coming here from the east. They have many friends here who called on them Thursday to congratulate them and extend them best wishes.

High School Students To Hold Yule Dance

Santa Ana high school "Saints" will hold their annual Christmas dance Wednesday in Andrews' gymnasium. Many clever innovations are scheduled for the affair, the motif for which will concern Christmas.

Norman Paul, president of the student body, is at the head of all committees for the dance, and the Girls' League will take charge of refreshments. Tickets for the affair will go on sale next week.

Approaching Wedding Is Incentive for Pretty Shower

Miss Dessa Sherwood's approaching marriage to Arthur Shafer of Huntington Park was the incentive for a delightful party and shower given last night by Miss Hazel Bergee and Miss Betty Browning at the home of the latter, 726 South Birch street.

A color scheme of green and white was used in various appointments and at the supper hour in decorations for the pretty tables.

Following several games of cards, Miss Sherwood and Mr. Shafer were presented with a number of attractive articles for the kitchen of the new home they are to establish soon.

Those enjoying the evening with Miss Bergee and Miss Browning were Miss Dessa Sherwood, Miss Lizetta Phillips, Miss Ada Storry, Miss Mary Arnold, Miss Lulia Elliott, Miss Helen Switzler, Mrs. W. Sherwood, Mrs. John Bergee, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Browning, Robert Browning, Dee Carter, Denny Foyil, Phillip Gerarrd and Edward Storry of Santa Ana, Mrs. Guy Shafer, Arthur Shafer and Harold Shafer of Huntington Park, and Frank Epp of Los Angeles.

Monthly Bridge Held at S. A. Country Club

The Santa Ana Country club has been decorated for the Christmas holidays with greenery and beautiful winter flowers in tones of vivid red and it made a charming setting last night for the monthly bridge party presided over by Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Farnsworth of this city and Mr. and Mrs. Jess Ainsworth of Newport Beach.

When scores were added it was learned that Miss Alice Palmer of Costa Mesa and M. G. Jones of Huntington Beach, were high. Miss Palmer received an end table and a leather bill fold and cigaret case was presented Mr. Jones, Mrs. W E. Winslow was given a double compact and J. K. McDonald a card set. Mrs. J. I. Clark was consoled with a box of stationery

Yule Tide Appointments Used in Charming Fashion

Another of the series of delightful dinner parties that are being presented this winter by Mr. and Mrs. Z. B. West was given last night at their hospitable home on West Santa Clara avenue.

The nearness of Christmas was evidenced in the attractive decorations in vivid reds and greens which included tall red tapers which reflected the colors in the catoneaster used in profusion about the house.

In planning the affair and during the evening, Mrs. West was assisted by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Franklin G. West.

The evening was devoted to several bridge games and when scores were finally added it was found that Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Tucker were high, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Enderle, second, and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin McFadden low. They received handsome gifts.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. West included, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Abbey, Mr. and Mrs. James Allen, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. W. Barnes of Anaheim, Mrs. Margaret Britten, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Enderle, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin McFadden, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Reinhaus, Mr. and Mrs. William Schumacher of Buena Park, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swanner, Mr. and Mrs. J. Willing Workers

Plans for a charity week to be carried on during the holiday season were completed at a meeting of the Willing Workers' society, which met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Guy Stine. The business session followed a day's quilting in which time one-half of a quilt was made. The fourth Wednesday meeting is to be omitted on account of its conflicting with Christmas.

An exchange luncheon was enjoyed. Guests were Mrs. Harriette Dewty, president of the Willing Workers; Mrs. Aleck Cameron, Mrs. Frank Lantz, Mrs. Will Weeks, Mrs. Fred McIntee of Newport, Mrs. Mark Hodgins, Mrs Mille Cowling, Mrs. Lena Lawton, Mrs. Thompson and the hostess, Mrs. Buy Stine.

W. C. T. U. Executive Board Meets in Balboa

At a meeting of the executive board of the Orange County W. C. T. U. held at the Balboa Beach chapel, members decided to send an invitation to the state executive board asking that the 1930 state convention be held in Santa Ana. The entire county is to assist in entertaining delegates, if the convention comes here.

Mrs. Estelle Harper, president, conducted the business session which was attended by representatives from every union in the county.

Presidents who spoke on the possibility of bringing the state convention to this county were Mrs. Minnie Reed of Costa Mesa; Mrs. Clara Hodson of El Modena; Mrs. Eva Crosby of Garden Grove; Mrs. Anna Garretson of La Habra; Mrs. Flora Beatty of Newport Beach; Mrs. Minnie Neville of Orange; Mrs. Emma Latimer of Huntington Beach; Mrs. Amy Evans of Santa Ana; Mrs. Sarah Brown of Tustin.

It was decided to add a new department, "Non-Alcoholic Fruit Products," to be headed by Mrs. Mary Wager of this city. The addition of this department was recommended by Dr. Ella Boole.

The Rev. E. N. Mallory, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church in Balboa Beach, led the devotional service and also gave an interesting talk.

A resolution was passed which endorsed the action taken by the Methodist church of Balboa requesting the city council to close all dance halls and other places of amusement at 12 o'clock.

Following two lovely songs by Mrs. George Garfield of Balboa, Mrs. Pearl K. Hess gave an interesting talk on "Medical Temperance." She outlined plans that have been made for teaching temperance in the county schools.

Members of the Balboa Beach union acted as hostesses for the occasion under the direction of Mrs. Flora Beatty, president. The luncheon which was served at noon was prepared by the Aid society of the Methodist church.

The March executive meeting will be held at Orange.

Many Plan to Attend Bridge Party at Legion Hall

Mrs. C. W. Nussbaumer who is in charge of arrangements for the Christmas card party to be held Tuesday night by the auxiliary of the American Legion at the Legion hall on Birch street, has announced that the affair bids fair to be among the most successful ever presented as tickets are selling rapidly.

"And the more tickets sold the better pleased we are," Mrs. Nussbaumer stated, "for proceeds from the dance will go towards making Christmas a happier day for World war veterans who are ill in the San Fernando hospital."

For on that day, each former soldier will be presented with a crisp new five dollar bill along with other gifts designed to add to his comfort and well being. The money is deemed particularly acceptable as many of the veterans have families who are partly dependent on them.

Bridge playing will start at 8 o'clock and continue to a late hour when those holding high scores will receive appropriate rewards. Calling forth a great deal of interest is the cedar chest which is to be presented as a lucky number prize for the chest is filled with many articles which will prove useful.

Interesting Meeting Held by Pioneer Club Thursday

One of the most interesting meetings of the Pioneer club of the Women's Relief corps held at the spacious home of Emma Mosbaugh, 636 North Broadway, with Mrs. Elizabeth Birkhead as hostess Thursday.

Mrs. Rose Diers presided over a short business session. Instead of the usual readings Mrs. Birkhead had prepared guessing games of interest, Mrs. Mary Ramsdell winning first prize and Mrs. Ella Wilson consolation.

Christmas cards were signed by all members present to be sent to shut-ins and it was decided to send several pot plants to the sick.

Later places were found at two large tables cetnered with Christmas trees and red candles in pretty holders when a dainty tea course was served.

Pioneer club members present were Alice Yount, Alice Gryhl, Matilda Dearing, Ella Wilson, Abbie Vandermast, Emma Smith, Lottie Rittenhouse, Juliette Smith, Agnes Carroll, Mary Ramsdell, Fannie Cunningham, Emma Mosbaugh and Ida Deck. Bridge Luncheons Are Charming Events

Two pleasant affairs of the past week have been presented by Mrs. R. S. Chandler of 302 South Birch street and Mrs. Loring Dale of Balboa Beach. Both parties were bridge luncheons and one was given at the Santa Ana Country club while the other took place at Mrs. Chandler's attractive home. Taking advantage of the Christmas season, the hostesses used decorations in vivid reds and greens. Pretty tapers at the luncheon tables added a charming note and harmonized with unique place cards and tallies.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Business and Professional Women's club will meet Monday night for a 6:30 o'clock dinner at St. Ann's Inn when Mrs. Sue Brobst, president of the legislative council of Los Angeles, will be speaker.

The First Travel section of Ebell will hold its annual Christmas party Monday when members meet with Mrs. J. P. Baumgartner and Mrs. J. F. Dryer for a one o'clock luncheon at the Baumgartner home on North Main street. There will be a gift exchange. Those unable to attend are requested to notify Mrs. Baumgartner.

The White Shrine circle will meet Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. E. Vinson of 1434 South Ross street. Mrs. J. A. Tarpley will assist as hostess.

Second Issue of Music Magazine Issued Today

Announcements in the second issue of the "Music Lovers' Visitor," monthly publication of the Santa Ana Conservatory of Music, stated that on Dec. 15, Vernon Robinson, well known organist, will use the new Conservatory instrument in the first mid-month "Sacred Hour," to which the public is invited, and which will feature other musical numbers.

The Santa Ana Municipal Band, under the direction of D. C. Cianfoni, will present its annual Christmas concert December 17 in the local high school auditorium. This concert also will be open to the public.

Regular rehearsals are now in session for the Santa Ana Symphony Orchestra, directed by D. C. Cianfoni, who has announced that the presentation of the initial concert of its winter series will be an event of next month. A special soloist of the first concert will be Guy Bevier Williams, noted pianist and musical authority, who will play the Liszt concerto. Beethoven's immortal sixth, "Pastoral" symphony, will be played by the orchestra.

Descendants of Famous Spaniards Married At Laguna

A wedding that interested old time residents of California took place at the Roman Catholic church in Laguna Beach this noon when Delphino Juanita Sepulveda and John Houston, both of San Juan Capistrano were married at an impressive ceremony presided over by the Rev. Father C. Tritz.

The bride is a direct descendant of Don Jose Sepulveda, once owner of the Rancho San Joaquin, now the Irvine ranch, and she is a member of one of California's oldest and most noted families. Her husband is of no less aristocratic descent as his father is Walter Houston, well known pioneer, and his mother was Francesca Valenzuela. The Houstons have been connected with the cattle industry in this state for many years.

The brunet beauty of the bride was enhanced by the white satin gown which she wore with white accessories and misty veil which fell from a coronet of orange blossoms to her ankles. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and bridal roses.

Her only attendant was Mrs. Frank Valasquez who was costumed in a smart ensemble. Mr. Velasquez served as best man.

Following a honeymoon in Northern California, the two will return to San Juan Capistrano where they will make their home. Mr. Houston is connected with the American Clay company which operates several mines on the Rancho Santa Margarita near there.

Mrs. Houston is the daughter of Fidel Vicente Sepulveda and is know nfor her dramatic talent. She took an important part in the pageant presented at the San Juan Capistrano mission several years ago.

Christmas Program Is Presented By Music, Art, Drama Group

An interesting account of the various madonnas that have been painted during the ages was given yesterday by Mrs. B. H. Sharpless in a talk before the Music, Art and Drama section of the Ebell society when it met at the clubhouse under the direction of Mrs. Holmes Bishop.

Mrs. Sharpless divided the madonnas into five groups, portrait madonnas, madonnas of adoration, madonnas enthroned, pastoral madonnas and madonnas with home background.

She stated that Rafael's Sistine Madonna is the greatest that has ever been produced and is the most popular throughout the world.

Mrs. Clarence Gustlin was in charge of the musical part of the program and she introduced Miss Preble Drake who discussed the lives and work of two famous composers of the middle ages, DeLasso and Palestrino, both of whom are remembered for their choir work.

The program was concluded with Bach-Gounod's "Ave Maria" sung by Mrs. F. W. Slabaugh.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Annual Breakfast

The Otterbein Guild, the girl's auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary society of the United Brethren church, held its annual breakfast recently in the church parlors. The room and tables were decorated in the society colors, white and purple, with tall lavender candles centering the tables. The mothers of the girls were guests.

The program was in charge of the president, Mary Harlow. The patroness, Mrs. J. H. Noble, conducted the devotions and a thank offering exercise was given by Little Danielson, Eliza Walker and Mary Harlow. Phyllis Jamison presided at the piano and gave a reading, "Releasing the Womanhood of Africa." Mable Harrison read a poem, "A Song of Gratitude" by Grace Nell Crowell. The secretary, Eliza Walker, read a letter from Mrs. Knipp in China. The program closed by repeating the beautiful Otterbein Guild covenant.

Those present were Mrs. J. H. Noble, Mrs. O. M. Harrison, Mrs. G. W. Jamison, Mrs. W. O. Sidnam, Mrs. R. W. Harlow, Misses Phyllis Jamison, Lillie Danielson, Mable Harrison, Eliza and Esta Walker, Vera Gettey, Evelyn Dennie, Viola Grout, Alice Brown, Elizabeth Straw and Mary Harlow.

Class Party

The Home Builders' class of the First Methodist Episcopal church held its monthly party at the home of the teacher of the class, J. F. Burke, Panorama Heights, last night.

Guests were required to wear their clothes backwards and the evening's entertainment was presented backwards with the dainty supper preceding the series of games.

Those enjoying the evening included Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gowdy, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Williams, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Dietrich, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Maier, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. L. Halderman, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kittleson, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Spaugh, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Banks and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Burke.

Meet Wednesday

The southeast section of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Presbyterian church met at the lovely home of Mrs. A. A. Young, 702 Hickory street, on Wednesday.

Mrs. L. B. Pearl led the singing and Mrs. G. A. Spencer gave an account of her trip to Holland. Mrs. McFarland was surprised with the presentation of a large basket of canned fruit and jellies.

Is Hostess

Mrs. Alf Trapp was hostess to the Woman's club Wednesday afternoon at her home. Plans were made for the annual Christmas tree at the hall. It was decided to hold the entertainment on the evening of December 20. In addition to the usual candy for the children of the neighborhood, small toys are to be given this year.

Mrs. Alf Trapp is in charge of purchasing the candy and gifts, and Mrs. Harvey Sennett heads the committee to decorate the tree. The next meeting will be postponed to the afternoon of December 20, at which time final preparations will be made.

Others present present were Mrs. John Osterman, Mrs. Levi Gockley, Mrs. Myrtle Tait, Mrs. C. E. Scott, Mrs. Ivy Thompson, Mrs. Harvey Bennett, Mrs. George Fox, Mrs. R. H. Prothero, Mrs. Dale Trapp and Mrs. George Osterman.

Mr. and Mrs. Alf Trapp, Grace Trapp and Harry Trapp were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Gould, at Bolsa.

La Habra

The garden section of the Woman's club met Tuesday after the clubhouse and later went to plans for the planting of seeds and bulbs now for the spring flower show.

Following a short meeting, the section inspected the grounds of the clubhouse and later yent to the homes of Mrs. N. M. Launer and Mrs. E. E. McClure to inspect their flower arrangements.

Attrcative Dinner

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

Shall you dance, or shall you diet, to keep your figure—supposing, of course, that you want to keep it?

Dancers and dieters are seldom the same person, according to Leo Reisman, who conducts the orchestra at the Casino in New York where the smart people are dancing these days.

"If a doctor told you to walk ten miles a day to keep down your flesh, you wouldn't obey his instructions," he said. "But you can dance ten miles in an evening—and many young couples do—and consider that you are having entertainment, and exercise as well."

One evening, not entirely engrossed by his score, it occurred to Reisman to wonder just how much mileage the average couple got out of themselves in an evening of dancing, so he induced a couple to take the dancing test.

They put speedometers on their feet and at the end of the evening it was found that in the hours from eight to midnight, they had covered just a fraction over ten miles.

WHY THEY'RE SLIM

That explained why most of the dancers, young or old, were slim and shapely and light on their feet. For he had long noticed that it was not only the debutantes who danced there night after night, but women of 50, and sometimes more, looking as young as their own daughters, who stepped to his music.

The craze for dancing will have to go out, he says, before the more ample type of figure returns to any degree of favor, because so long as we spend our evenings dancing, we are almost bound to be slim and flapper-figured.

In the days when the more ample woman reigned, with her full voluminous clothes as well as her full hips, she did not dance as she does today. Dance forms were slow and langorous with rest periods between—and people "sat out" dances occasionally.

Today dancing is swift, and it takes muscular strength, and poise. Girls dance in the afternoon, dance at teas, dance through their dinners in the evening, and dance after the theater—sometimes until dawn.

ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE

Many social dancers today dance as well as professionals, and can do as many tricky, fancy steps. With the present system of cutting in, a popular girl may dance for hours without stopping.

Dancing is better, too, Reisman said, because instead of dancing in their homes and in small groups where everyone knows everyone else, they dance in cafes and night clubs and in hotels. The competition is much keener. Many society girls go to the same dancing teachers who train professionals, and go through the same routine and technique to perfect their steps as if they were going in for stage dancing in a big way.

If you get on the dance floor every night, he insists, you can soon forget all about the weighing scales, and you can resume pleasant relations with starches and sugars.

Is Speed Commonplace?

Sometimes I Think It Is —BUT— Sometimes I Think It Isn't

By VELVA G. DARLING

"Speed limit 15 miles!" These signs in villages all over the country are as completely ignored today as an ordinance of the City of San Francisco which says, "It is unlawful to shoot jackrabbits from a street car." Try and do it! Aircraft has announced the latest record of speed for airplane flight: six miles a minute. That is thirty miles in five minutes, or about an hour from San Francisco to Los Angeles. "Well," say you, stifling a yarn, "what does that make me—a paid-up Elk?" To you a speed like that is much more uninteresting and commonplace than the fact that the grocer didn't deliver the coffee in time for breakfast. The higher the figures for speeding ascend, the more bored we get of reading about them. Once we scarcely believed the tales of the daredevil who ventured a few minutes of the hair-raising speed of a mile a minute. We now have, for instance, the entire state of Texas over whose roads citizens think nothing of traveling an average and sustained pace of nearly that—and who continue to live on in spite of such speed, toward a healthy old age. The Graf Zeppelin circled the earth at a speed averaging 60 miles an hour. The Bremen crossed the Atlantic in a little over four days. Up in the state of Washington if for some reason or other you should be motoring at the rate of 35 miles an hour you would find a speed cop beside you motioning for you "to speed up—you're holding up the traffic!"

But on the other hand I sometimes think that of all the countries in the world the United States is the one place where speed is not commonplace. A ball player making a lightening home run, gets more cheers from the audience than the King of England could hope to achieve. And they aren't cheering the ball player—they are cheering his speed. Any promoter knows that if he hopes to get the interest of Americans, he has to incorporate in his advertising a plentiful supply of such words as "pep, speed, vim, dash, smart, lively, swift—electric, mercurial, fleet, quick." It is the biggest fight, the most luxurious plane, the fastest train that succeeds today. People don't want necessities, they want luxuries. And luxury is always written in the superlative.

Sometimes I think that as long as America remains the nation of youth, speed can never become commonplace. Speed is what keeps the famous Melting Pot boiling! And yet, speed records in some activity or another are being broken and surpassed every day—and how much attention does the average American pay to it? Maybe a comment at the breakfast table and a subconscious wondering as to who will be the next to break the record, and that is all. Speed reduced to a mere commonplace—I sometimes think!

BAKER RE-ELECTED REALTY BOARD HEAD

FULLERTON, Dec. 7.—Re-election of Verne A. Baker as president of the Fullerton Realty board took place at the regular meeting yesterday noon in McFarland's cafe. Homer Bemis was re-elected as secretary-treasurer.

Howard Irwin was elected vice president to succeed Leonard West. Harry H. Crooke was again named as state director to the California Real Estate association from the local board.

H. D. NICHOLS MADE C. OF C. PRESIDENT

ORANGE, Dec. 7.—H. D. Nichols, secretary and manager of the Villa Park Orchards packing plant, was elected president of the Orange Community Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of directors at the Green Rose cafe yesterday.

Other officers elected were O. E. Gunther, treasurer, and V. D. Johnson, secretary. This marks the beginning of Johnson's eighth year as secretary of the organization.

Nichols succeeds J. R. Porter as president.

GAMBLING SHIP IS TOWED INTO PORT

SEAL BEACH, Dec. 7.—The gambling ship Montfalcone has collided with more trouble and is a total wreck in so far as operation of gambling games is involved. A coast guard boat has towed it to harbor at San Pedro. "Menace to shipping" was the charge on which federal authorities moved the Montfalcone.

The gamblers will try to prove in court that their ship is not a menace to navigation. If the courts sustain their contention the Montfalcone will resume operations some time in the near future.

Pills vs. Medicinal Herbs

In the story of Creation, as told in Genesis, it relates that Eve traded the smug security of the Garden of Eden for the knowledge of good and evil when she ate the famous apple, but she must have mislaid this knowledge somewhere down the trail of time.

Animals instinctively resort to medicinal herbs when they feel sick, while man runs for the pill bottle and feels a lot worse before he feels better. He needs in exact ration what the animal got when he went hunting curative mouthfuls of grass and "sich." This is especially true in winter when our diet is restricted and our digestive systems are loaded up with the undigested cinders of a too rich diet.

It is then that we should choose to try that all-orange-juice diet for a day or two, or a dinner composed entirely of the leafy vegetables left to winter. What! No such vegetables! Oh, yes, there are; how about beet greens, the faithful spinach, celery (tops and stalks in salad), lettuce and lots of watercress?

These vegetables carry great quantities of cleansing mineral salts and the essential vitamins. For the good of your health try and include one of them in your food every day.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Sea Foam Candy

3 cups fine white sugar
1-2 cup white corn syrup.
1 cup water
2 egg whites, beaten dry
1 cup broken blanched almonds
1 teaspoon vanilla
6 drops of almond extract.

Mix sugar, syrup and water together and let stand for an hour to melt. Rub a little butter on the inside of the candy kettle while it is still cold, put in the sugar syrup and boil until the hot syrup will spin a fine thread and make a bzall when dropped in cold water. Do NOT stir the syrup while cooking, for this grains it and makes the candy coarse.

Beat the egg white very dry, add a few grains of salt and slowly pour in the hot syrup, beating constantly while pouring. When the candy is thick and creamy add the flavorings and nuts, pour into a buttered tin, mark in section and cut when cold.

Four thousand odd calories are in the candy. That would make a square inch worth not less than 100 calories. And the kind—well, candy is candy, you know, just another way to spell e-n-e-r-g-y units for running the body's activities.

Pythian Sisters Of Tustin Elect

TUSTIN, Dec. 7.—Election of officers took place at the regular meeting of the Pythian Sisters last night in the Knights of Pythias hall. The meeting also celebrated the sixth anniversary of Sisters, for which a huge cake with lighted candles was presented the group.

Officers elected for the year were Effie Jessup, M. E. C.; Hazel Harbour, E. S.; Vera Hawkins, E. J.; Bertha Trickey, Manager; Vera Comer, Protector; Carrie Stearns, Guard; Jessie Kiser, P. C.; Sara Mathews, L. of R. C., and Edith Mathews, L. of R. S.

Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served late in the evening to 40 members. Three visiting guests were present from the Santa Ana temple. Another feature of the evening was the presentment of a bridge lamp to the sisters by the ways and means committee.

Initiation and installation of officers will take place at the next regular meeting the first Thursday in January.

P.-T. A. Board To Convene Tuesday

SEAL BEACH, Dec. 6.—The board of managers of fourth district P.-T. A. will hold an all day meeting at the school next Tuesday. A pot luck dinner will be served.

Next Wednesday night, the children of the grammar school under the direction of their teachers are putting on a program to help raise funds for the Christmas tree and party to be held probably December 18. The Christmas program will be under the auspices of the P.-T. A.

PARTY PLANNED FOR MAGNOLIA SCHOOL PUPILS

MAGNOLIA, Dec. 7.—The Magnolia P.-T. A. arranged to give the school a Christmas party, at the regular meeting of the association recently. A committee was appointed to be responsible for the event which will be given before the winter vacation.

The committee includes Mesdames William Ramm, Fred Law, Mildred Burnette, candies and fruits, and Mesdames Henry Cordes and Alma Winger, tree.

Mrs. Matty Lou Maxwell's fifth and sixth grades won the attendance contest again, being the third time, giving them the permanent ownership of a painting.

The P.-T. A. voted to furnish Christmas candies and fruits for Magnolia school No. 2, which is the Mexican school.

Mrs. Herman Remland was appointed to be in charge of the Founders' day program. December 12 was voted as Indian day and a box will be sent to the Soboba reservation.

The January meeting of the association will be held in the evening, the fathers furnishing the program and refreshments.

The program following the business meeting was in charge of Mrs. E. B. Carson. Piano solos were played by Miss E. Gibson, teacher of the third and fourth grades. Miss Laura Barnes played several selections on the steel guitar and Mrs. Harold Covey gave a humorous reading.

Tea was served by the hostesses, Mrs. A. Hartelt, Mrs. William Kennedy, Mrs. Henry Ramm and Mrs. O. Fellbaum.

Manufacturing Football Gossip

Some of the Publicity Stunts of the Past Season Have Made It Appear That the Main Function Of Big Colleges From Labor Day to Thanksgiving Is the Production of Bull and Bear Ballyhoo About Backfields, Bruisers, Kickers and Coaches, Making Gridiron Sport the Most Press-Agented of All Chick Meehan's boys were going to tackle the dummy . . . on the catwalks of the Graf Zeppelin.

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER

NOW and again some college president, after working 36½ years on a nifty chemical formula, discovers that it clicks. He achieves all the notoriety that he can get out of a one-column cut and three paragraphs concerning the grand thing he has just done for humanity.

But just let Howard Jones or Knute Rockne frown when the second team smears an off-tackle varsity play all over the county.

There is always a lurking reporter to see that ominous frown. Say it is Jones who frowns, and that the memorable frown comes just four days before the big intersectional game with Carnegie Tech. The next day the customers pick up their papers and read:

JONES FEARS CARNEGIE
Coach Gloomy as Trojan Warriors
Fail to Show Offensive Strength
Needed to Beat Scotsmen

Maybe there is a picture of the Jones frown with the story. In the picture Mr. Jones wears a face as devoid of hope as the map of a fullback trying to scoop up a fumbled verb.

Tech players and coaches read the story and see the picture of Mr. Jones in agony. So they rush right over to the gym and mark up a victory for dear old Carnegie! Yes? You think they do? They don't.

It happens that Coach Wally Steffen has seen a picture and a story like that somewhere before. He calls together his athletes.

"This is the funniest thing I've ever read, ha, ha," ha ha's Wally. "This, my dear young men, is a bear story of the most ancient sort. And don't be fooled by it. This means that Jones thinks he has the Indian sign on us 'easterners.' He'll send his team out with a rush, trying to take us off our feet and beat us before the game has started. Boys, you'll have to play your best."

It's the old ballyhoo. Wally Steffen knows it. Howard Jones knows it. Full well does Robert Zuppke know it, too. And Knute Rockne knows it almost as well as he knows how to coach.

KNUTE ROCKNE can give you any kind of a story you want. After years of dealing out strictly the bearish variety, the South Bend coach gave everybody a shock just before the season started this year by announcing that coaches had been overdoing this thing of pessimism, and it was time for one and all to be a little more optimistic.

So he told all who asked that he was going to have a very nice team this year, thank you. As the season went on and Notre Dame kept bruising tougher and tougher opponents with astonishing regularity, the other coaches who had read Mr. Rockne's plea for Pollyanaism began to understand that perhaps the Knute wasn't so far wrong about optimism after all—at least so far as he was concerned.

The football ballyhoo, like the game, has grown to giant proportions. Much of it is cleverly done—so well done, in fact, that it is hard to tell where the real McCoy leaves off and the ballyhoo begins. This much is becoming more and more evident; the colleges now know a good story when they've got it. Sports writers don't have to coax stories out of the dear old school any more. They ask for one and get six.

The ballyhoo starts with the early roundups of sectional teams, with early practice pictures. Late in the summer the football boys stole the beaches right away from the bathing beauties, and pictures of them playing in the sand were widely broadcast and used.

New York was alarmed by a report that Chick Meehan, just to get a quiet place where his boys could practice without publicity, planned to have the athletes tackle the dummy and fall on the ball on one of the catwalks of the Graf Zeppelin. Mr. Meehan denied this base canard, and admitted that he was not at all averse to a little story for his team once in a while.

The coaches look over their lineup and discover they have lost a lot of valuable material. This would be a football team if "Airmail" Hennessey was back. Still the men coming up from the freshman team look fairly good. Fullback Bull Usykx may be just what the Irish need to round out that great eleven.

BEFORE the first game, the style of play to be used must be analyzed by all the former All-America backfield men. The spinner play isn't going so well at old Siwash. Yale has dropped the old-style game. Columbia is going to wear pretty pink uniforms. The South is full of charging demons killing one another for backfield jobs. Out on the coast you can always pick out the football players in a crowd because they must stoop and squeeze to get through doors and have to stand up in the rumble seats.

ONCE in a while it leaks out that there are other activities at college besides football. "Mopey" Simpkins is declared ineligible because of his grades. Grades? Oh, yes! And only then does the realization dawn that the college semester begins in September, instead of December. Perhaps some way can be devised to put off the opening of the study period next fall.

Big circuses have always sent their press agents in advance of the show, paving the way, leaving pictures and advertising with the newspapers. Now the football show is using much the same approach.

Weeks before the coming of a big western team into eastern territory this year, university publicity directors, their satchels full of pictures and stories, trekked through the regions to be invaded by their team. Scouts preceded or came along with them. The scouts were armed with huge charts and binoculars. They watched the prospective opponents play and rushed by airmail the charts of the plays back to their coaches to ponder over at great length.

The long distance telephone was part of the ballyhoo this year. Scouts often have to work fast and tolls are less expensive to a big school than the losing of the game. Knute Rockne, from his sick bed in South Bend, called up his team in Baltimore before the Navy game. One by one the football warriors were called to the phone to hear their coach's admonitions and encouragements. Besides helping the team to fight, Rockne's call didn't make such a bad little sports page feature.

No college president can get news hounds steamed up about a discovery that might revolutionize industry . . . but let the coach so much as frown on the eve of an intersectional game and the line forms on the right.

EVEN airplanes were dragged into the show on at least one occasion this year. Pennsylvania sent Pat Duncan to scout the Golden Bears in action. What did he use? An airplane. And flew back to Philadelphia with graphs of the westerners' pet plays so the varsity could have a chance to work on them before the battle.

An eastern team goes west. Will the climate affect their play? The same when one of the coast teams comes east. The speculation as to possible influence wind and moisture may have in deciding the game is the subject of frenzied speculation.

A substitute fullback gets into the game and runs 85 yards with the winning touchdown. Here is the occasion for a spread. It seems that Dynamite Joe spent the summer hauling ice, chopping wood or as the village smithy. Outside of that, somewhere back in his family was an aunt who fainted at a cricket match. When a small boy he used to pick cherries over in Toomey's orchard and one day fell on his head. He had been a football player ever since that time.

Coaches often perpetrate the same brand of ballyhoo. Perhaps it has to be done, in self-defense. One of the cases in point:

After Major Cavanaugh's Fordham team stepped out of their bailiwick and handed a pasting to the vaunted hosts of New York University, Coach Chick Meehan of the Violets wasn't decidedly enraptured about the way the team performed. He had given them orders to limit their forward passes, or something like that, and they had thrown that ball somewhere whenever it came to hand. So Coach Meehan benched, among others, the very captain of the team, Mr. Grant himself.

THIS was shortly before the Penn State game. Hugo Bezdek is coach at Penn State. It may have been only a coincidence, of course, but Mr. Bezdek announced almost at the same time that he had benched Captain Jack Martin. It was indicated Martin might not start against New York University, and that Captain Grant might not start against Penn State.

Somewhat the same situation would have occurred in baseball if Joe McCarthy of the Cubs had benched Charley Grimm for the duration of the World Series and Connie Mack had relegated Mickey Cochrane to the wooden sofa.

A great opportunity was missed here, however. The Penn State-N. Y. U. game should have been advertised as "the battle of the captainless killers." That might not have meant much, but it would have been good reading, anyway.

An interesting bit of ballyhoo that came near upsetting Ohio State in their important game with Iowa was perpetrated by Coach Burt Ingwersen of Iowa. Coach Ingwersen had in the person of Dancing Master Glassgow one of the best backs in the Big Ten conference.

Before the Ohio game, however, Glassgow was injured. Some Monmouth player decided to alter Glassgow's facial contour. It is presumed he used a couple of cleats in doing it, but the fact is that Glassgow's nose was broken and his face put out of plumb in a couple of other respects.

Glassgow's injury was kept a dark secret. Rumors leaked here and there, as rumors will, that he was hurt and would be out of the Ohio game. But every time scouts looked over the Iowa squad at work, there was Glassgow, big as life, leaping about with all the abandon of a Follies dancer. Maybe he was hurt. Maybe he wasn't.

AT any rate, Ohio was waiting for him. It was not known definitely whether or not he would play. The Ohio players felt that way about it. The game started without Glassgow, but there was a feeling of suspense that he would dash in any minute with a play that would upset the works. He never did. But the well-known old "psychological effect" was there. Ohio waited so long for Glassgow to appear that they almost forgot to win the football game. The final score was Ohio 7, Iowa 6.

Coach Ingwersen must have felt that Glassgow was too valuable a threat to lose, for he had the boy fitted up with an iron mask to protect the crippled bugle and sent him in against Illinois. Glassgow played havoc with the Illinois crowd. Maybe it was the mask that earned a 7 to 7 tie with the touted Illini.

Anyhow, Mr. Ingwersen brought no ignominy on the Zuppke ballyhoo school by the way he handled the Glassgow case. Zuppke himself could have done no better than his former pupil.

In secret practice before a big game, a big star is usually hurt, or he isn't. Usually he is, of course, but he just manages to drag himself into the game and score about seven touchdowns. This is one of the oldest forms of bear story known to the game.

IT didn't mean a thing last summer when a young man named Albert Booth took a job operating a bacon-slicing machine in a New Haven meat packing plant. The event grew to be pretty important, however, when little Albie Booth, 144-pound Yale halfback, stepped out and beat Brown and the Army almost single-handed.

The railroads ran special press trains to New Haven, and every alley in the historic old town was filled with cameramen and scribes, waiting for Albie to come along on his way to the packing plant—to pounce upon the young hero and get the pictures and stories to the papers.

It was learned that when Albie was nine months old he staged his first great football feat by crawling out of his crib and, sidestepping a couple of rattles and an electric train, swivel-hipped his way through the parlor, dining room and kitchen, straight-arming two doors on the way.

Important researches were conducted and it was learned that Albie didn't call for his bottle in the usual way. Most babies cry for it; Albie used to call numbers. Thus "14, 76, Grade A," from the little fellow would bring Mother Booth hurrying with the milk. After consuming the contents, Albie invariably would forward pass the bottle to a picture of a football player, dragging five tacklers on the nursery wall.

Before the Yale-Dartmouth game the rash of ballyhoo broke out in its most virulent form. How would the great Al Marsters compare with the tiny Yale hero, Albie? Investigators were sent to Hanover, N. H., and returned to report valuable findings. Marsters was a necktie salesman in his off time. Besides that he was a very superstitious sort of duck, refusing to shave on the day of a game, and having an aversion to wearing any other numeral on his back except "4." The sleuths of the press learned that Al liked ping pong, that he sang while taking his bath and that he bought but few textbooks, preferring to borrow those of his chums.

Came the Dartmouth-Yale game and Albie and Al played great football. But in the last period, a lame and halt young man named "Hoot" Ellis hippety-hopped into the din and the glare by snaring a long Dartmouth forward pass and running many yards for the touchdown that gave Yale victory. It was learned that "Hoot" had a housemaid's knee which he fixed up before every game with a couple of strands of hay wire, some tape and a small bottle of liquid glue.

TRADITION also is one of the major aspects of the ballyhoo. In the old days there was a tackle named "Catfish" Mizzentopf at Siwash. He was graduated and went to the coast to turn out winning teams at Incidental College. After the years he passed away, but one of his sons, "Minnow," took his job at Incidental.

Meanwhile, back in the neighborhood of old Siwash, Philip Smotz raised a large family. "Catfish" Mizzentopf had liked Philip. A month or so after Catfish died, Philip died, too. But one of Phil's sons carried the ball for 11 touchdowns in a row for the glory of dear old Siwash.

Minnow heard about "Dynamite" Smotz from a traveling salesman, and became curious about his dad's alma mater. He wrote to the registrar and now Siwash and Incidental have an annual game. It is one of the fine old traditions of the sport.

The moral of the tale is that no matter who wins, affirmative or negative, you can't get anywhere as a member of the debating team.

In Miss Flood's room lately students have been studying the F. A. F. They made a map of United States and put in the way the plane goes. Thursday they had a test.

—ROBERT WILDE.

Prize Winners

The prizes of autographed pictures awarded by Laguna Beach artists were won by Nellie Thacker in the H6 grade; Erma Swartz in the L6 and by Blanche Valenzuela in the fiftb grade.

Ball Game

Franklin school played a basketball game with the Lincoln girls last week. It was an exciting game. The Franklin girls won the game. The score was 32 to 11.

—LUCILLE STOKER.

Football

The teachers decided to let the boys play football. The boys do not have ball suits but they are glad to play without them. They are having a whole block to play in.

—EVERETT HURD.

Christmas Party

The High Six class is planning a Christmas party. Students drew names and are to bring gifts for each other. The boys are going to make a fire-place and the class will hang up its stockings.

Julia Lathrop

Class work at Lathrop continues to offer new and diverting angles. Miss Swales' H7 class has been writing newspaper articles describing the events in Acadia which is the locale of their literature work in Evangeline. Favorite topics for articles are "The Betrothal of Evangeline and Gabriel," and "The Deportation of the Arcadians."

The Spanish club has enjoyed learning some expressions in Spanish as well as the numerals. On Wednesday a short Thanksgiving vocabulary was part of the work. Monday several pupils from the ninth grade gave a Spanish skit to the ninth grade classes.

Some excellent notebook projects have been on display in Miss Blythe's H9 English class. These books have been made on special topics connected with the study of Ivanhoe. The Evolution of Armor, Costumes of the Middle Ages, the Crusades, Robin Hood and his Merry Men, Knighthood, Norman Conquest of England and other such topics were worked out with notes and pictures in a very clever way by the students.

Present Mock Trial

Miss Louise Young's class in Low 9 citizenship put on a clever mock trial recently in connection with the work on the court systems. The skit was original. Those taking part were Jack Pegues, as the judge; David Webb, district attorney; Ray Fenley, the criminal; Coy Maret, defending attorney; Calvin Bandy and Glenn Gardner, bailiffs; Frankie Fern McDonald, foreman of jury; Jeanette Roby, witness; and Robert Friend, fruit expedt.

In this same class, Sergeant B. A. Hershey of the Santa Ana police department talked on "Citizens and the Law" and Herman Zabel, finger print expert, gave a talk. Class committees arranged for the talks and carried on the programs. This experience is valuable to the student and gives him a practicaly knowledge that could never be gained from books.

An interesting Thanksgiving assembly under the direction of Mrs. Grace Wolf was given Wednesday. The first part of the program was given by the kindergarten of Lowell school, with Miss Linda Mueller directing.

The second part was in the form of a skit illustrating the fact that while America is made up of people of all lands, privileges and responsibilities are alike to the American born and to the immigrant.

Schoiars Hold Party

With Miss Louise Young and Miss Hazel Thrasher as chaperones, the Lathrop Scholarship society enjoyed another party at Laguna where a picnic supper was served on the sand. A great many students are doing their best to be included in this group.

Interesting class work in Miss Corson's Low 9 home class took the form of a "still film" showing how paper is made. This was in connection with the study of "Old Testament Stories."

A spell-down in Miss Corson's Low 8 class, with Amelia Manzo as champion, caused a great deal of interest and fun.

Miss Blythe's Low 9 English class studied the sections and make up of the Ladies Home Journal the other day in connection with the reading of Ewward Bok's life called "A Dutch Boy Fifty Years After."

High line sewing classes under Miss Foster's direction are starting work on their dresses. Introductory work includes a study of the pattern, selection of material, and the psychology of color.

Start Pattern Study

The study of the pattern takes up the idea of the pattern and how it was first made. In dress planning it is important that the girls select becoming lines. In order to secure these lines the correct size must be bought. When selecting material, the design of the dress must be considered. When the design is complex, simple materials should be chosen. If the dress is plain, more elaborate materials may be used. Colors should be chosen to bring out the best points of the individual.

Girls in the Seventh grade Home Making classes, having finished the embroidered towels to be used in cooking, are now working on their aprons and head bands, also to be used in cooking classes during the next quarter.

The I. X. L. and Every Girls' clubs are making plans for their regular Christmas Social Service work. Each girl is asked to dress one doll as a gift for a child. Each year these clubs contribute their part toward the true Christmas spirit through this work.

Squad Leaders Chosen

The Indoor and Outdoor Games' club has chosen four squad leaders: Holmes Chambless, Lawrence Smith, Clifford Reitnour and Kenneth Sorensen. During each club period the squads play each other. Football and basketball have been the most popular games.

Miss Pearl Nicholson's Stamp club held a stmap auction during the club period on Wednesday.

As a finale to Book Week, the regular Friday assembly program was arranged to represent books. Bernice Miles gave a reproduction of a radio talk by Edwin Francis Egett; Thomas Hixon gave an original skit called "Selling a Book," arranged in place of his regular book report. He was assisted by Louis Hill and Richard Sxrimple. Miss Blythe's low 7 English class gave a skit called "The Haunted Library," which was a combination of pantomime and reading, and which depicted scenes from well known and popular books.

Lowell

One of the cleverest entertainments of the year will be staged at the Lowell school Tuesday evening, December 10, at 7:15 p. m.

With every child in the entire school participating, a record crowd is anticipated.

The kindergarten orchestra will open the program with "New Shoes," "If You're Good," "Jolly Old St. Nick," and the rhymes, "This Is the Way My Daddy Walks," and "I Saved My Cake for Santa Claus."

The 2B class has an interesting play, "The Good American." The combined 2A and 3B grades sing two very clever songs, "The Cobbler" and "Big Black Bettie."

To Give Play

The third and fourth grade boys sing "Santa Claus Land" and the girls of the grades will sing "Jolly Old Santa Claus." A clever and humorous play entitled "Other Birds Learn to Fly," a dramatization from "The Birds Christmas Carol," will be given by the following pupils:

Two songs, "Ciribiribin," a Neapolitan folk song and "O Sole Mio," an Italian folk song, will be sung by the school glee club.

"Dolls," a nonsense play, will be given by pupils of the fifth and sixth grades.

An admission of 35 cents for adults and 15 cents for children will be charged and the proceeds will be used to buy a piano that is badly needed in the music rooms of the school.

YORBA LINDA

YORBA LINDA, Dec. 7.—The Rev. and Mrs. G. C. Ralston have as guests, Mr. Ralston's three brothers, Joe, Charles and L. G. Ralston, of Bedford, Ky. The young men have just arrived in California and hope to make it their future home.

A group of 12 Friendly Indian boys with their leaders, Jimmy Swain and Robert Carter, attended the pow wow at Fullerton Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Deshler attended a dinner for pastors and assistant pastors and their wives held at Pasadena Wednesday evening by the churches of the city. Mr. Deshler is assistant pastor of the Lincoln Methodist church.

Mrs. W. J. Husson Tuckett, of Carlsbad, who is a guest in the home of her sister, Mrs. Lucy Scott, was entertained with a birthday tea Wednesday afternoon. Those present were Mrs. Tuckett, Mrs. T. B. Welch, Mrs. A. H. Crimp, Mrs. E. Decue, Rosanna Beckett, Mrs. Scott and Miss Violette Scott.

Edison School

At the meeting of Edison school P.-T. A. Tuesday, November 19, Mrs. Neal Beisel, P.-T. A. president, gave an interesting talk on the aims and policies of the organization.

Pupils of the first grade, under the direction of Miss Thompson, furnished a program of songs. The numbers were announced over a play microphone by one of the pupils.

The program was followed by a short business meeting. A list of the grade mothers was read.

The first grade had the largest number of mothers present and won the P.-T. A. canary for next month.

In the absence of Mrs. Knight, president, the meeting was conducted by Mrs. Jones, vice president.

PLACENTIA

PLACENTIA, Dec. 7.—A cooked food sale will be held at the Schalles plumbing shop Saturday by the ladies of the Presbyterian social circle. Mrs. George Johnson, Mrs. Fred Tuffree and Mrs. Horace Lucy are in charge.

The rummage sale which the Native Daughters have been planping will be held Saturday in the old furniture building on Santa Fe street, and helpers are wanted for Friday to arrange the articles, as well as for Saturday, to sell them. Mrs. Nellie Cline in in charge of all arrangements.

Court Notes

Nicolas Theodore, et al, are named as defendants in a court action instituted yesterday in superior court by B. Fisher, who is asking judgment for an unpaid note and foreclosure ofa mortgage. The action is based on a note said to have been given to Fisher in Anaheim on Dec. 15, 1924, and the property put up as security is a lot in Park View tract. Judgment is asked for $900 principal, interest, attorney's fees and other costs.

Addie Carson brought suit for divorce from R. S. Carson, yesterday afternoon, filing a complaint charging cruel and inhuman treatment. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant abandoned her several times during their married life, each time failing to make any provision for her support, and that he asserted he was tired of her and tired of married life. The custody of their 7-months-old daughter is asked by the plaintiff, who also asks the court for an order requiring the defendant to pay a reasonable sum for attorney's fees and support of the child.

Desertion is the basis of a divorce suit filed yesterday afternoon in superior court by Sylvia K. Hart against Walter H. Hart. The complaint alleges that the defendant wilfully and without cause deserted and abandoned the plaintiff on Nov. 30, 1927, after they had lived together more than 18 years.

A court order, restraining her husband from disposing of any of their community property and requiring him to pay a reasonable amount each month for the support of the plaitiff, is asked in a suit for divorce filed yesterday afternoon by Mary J. Hornaday, naming John H. Hornaday as defendant. The complaint asks for the decree on the grounds of desertion, failure to provide and cruel and inhuman treatment. The mariage took place on November 25, 1925, and the separation followed on Dec. 23, 1927.

George W. Whitcomb was found not guilty on a charge of nonsupport of his minor children in a judgement returned by Judge H. G. Ames, yesterday, in superior court.

Judge G. K. Scovel granted interlocutory decrees to plaintiffs in three divorce actions tried before him in department two of the superior court yesterday afternoon. The cases in which the plaintiffs won their pleas were Lucy Durr vs. Lewis Durr; Myrtle Inman vs. Charles Inman and Selma B. Bonner vs. H. R. Bonner. Custody of the children and community property were awarded Mrs. Inman.

Pronouncement of judgment was set for 9:30 Tuesday morning by Judge James L. Allen in the trials of Texas Greer and T. P. Deavenport, after their pleaded guilty before him today. Both men appeared on charges of issuing checks with intent to defraud.

The case against Edwin F. Pottenger, charged with forgery, was dismissed by Judge James L. Allen today on a motion filed by the district attorney's office, which stated it did not have sufficient evidence to secure conviction. Pottenger's arrest grew out of the alleged forging of a name to a library guarantee card in Anaheim in July, 1928.

Cruz Garcia applied for probation today before Judge Allen, after pleading guilty to a charge of operating a car while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. The hearing on probation was set for December 13.

Six persons were given $2 fines in police court yesterday on charges of violating the city's parking laws. They were Mrs. D. L. Cramer, Edna H. Jones, Mrs. Grace Culver, J. Brooks, Roy Fowler and Graham Finsett.

H. A. DeWolf, Santa Ana, was fined $2 in Judge Talbott's police court yesterday on a charge of obstructing traffic.

LAGUNA BEACH GROUP TO GIVE PLAYS TONIGHT

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 7.—What is really an experiment in amateur theatricals for this community is the offering of the Community players for tonight and tomorrow night in the three one-act plays by local writers, which will be produced by George Dunham in the Community playhouse, generally known as the Community club.

"Getting Out," by Mrs. Maybelle Lord Frost, is a tale of an Irish-American family which has been engaged in bootlegging but which has come to the conclusion that it is an unsatisfactory calling. They want to quit, but the hazards of getting out seem to be almost as great as the risks of continuing. Stuart Lucas, Lee Wuthenow, Arthur Whipple, Julia Bingham, George Maxwell and Annie Gayne Peake have been entrusted with the playlet.

"The Black Fan," by Sumner Crosby, is sombre tragedy, a play of love and infidelity and revenge with a strange Oriental setting. The parts are taken by Charles Radford as Chuddah, a Hindoo servant; Marshall Ford as an Englishman, Mrs. Hollister Laude-Knaggs as the wife, and Richmond Prowse as the American who seeks to take the Englishman's wife.

In "The Lagunatics" Miss Lolita Perine has gone back to the Laguna of a decade ago and has brought its strange characters to life again with their oddities, whimsicalities and erratic ways. It is a revival of Laguna as it was before realtors and tourists somewhat standardized it. Those who will portray characters of other days are Ralph Frost, Lew Mayer, Lorarine Pardee, Tessa Chamberlain, Jessie Washburn, George Ewing, John Hinchman, Harold Ahern and W. O. Frost.

Central Features Special Jobs In Car Upholstering

Special upholstering features on a custom-built Fleetwood body were pointed to today by Ben Warner, proprietor of the Central Auto Body works, as an example of the type of work his men are called upon to perform from time to time.

The job, Warner said, called for precise care and when completed actually improved the appearance of the automobile's interior instead of detracting from it, as so often is the case in such jobs.

To better suit the comfort of the car's owner, who is an invalid, Warner pointed out, an arm rest was built into the center of the back rest on the front seat, dropping into place when needed. A similar rest was installed on the right front door. A foot rest, also built into the car, pushes back almost out of sight when not in use.

The upholstering material used, Warner declared, is very easily marked and it was necessary for the man performing the job to wash his hands every few minutes to avoid soiling the cloth.

Police News

An unsuccessful attempt to break into the Towner Manufacturing company plant, at 109 North Main street, was made early last night. Officers found a 15-inch circular hole in the plate glass window of the place, but declared that the thief had not entered the building. The place was guarded throughout the night.

Police were called to the home of Miss Mabel Simmons, at 306 West Bishop street, last night, when Miss Simmons reported that she saw a man peering in a window. She reported that her home was entered last Sunday night, but that nothing was taken.

OFFICERS FOR EASTERN STAR ARE INSTALLED

BUENA PARK, Dec. 7.—Installation ceremonies of the officers of Buena Park chapter, Order of the Eastern star, were both beautiful and impressive and were witnessed by a large audience.

Caryl B. Snyder was master of ceremonies and the installing officers were Miss Anne Fisk, junior past worthy matron; William McLaughlin, junior past worthy patron; Mrs. Ellen Nelson, organist; Mrs. Wanita Snyder, marshal; Mrs. Minerva Shirkey, chaplain, and Mrs. Grace Gamble, deputy grand matron of the 53rd district, who installed the star points. Mrs. Ruth Gunby was proxy for Mrs. Wanita Snyder and Haldane and Mary Jean Cummins were honorary flag bearers.

Musical selections were interspersed on the program and included numbers by the fretted instrument orchestra from the Orange County School of Fine Arts, under thed irection of Mrs. Bigelow; vocal solos by Kenneth Stanfield of La Habra, accompanied by Mrs. Wanita Snyder, and flute solo bq Caesar Matee, director of the Downey band, piano accompaniments by Miss Elizabeth Archer, of Norwalk.

Miss Fisk was presented with the jewel of her office by Mrs. Lennie McComber and Caryl Snyder made the presentation of the emblem to William McLaughlin. Other speeches were made by Mrs. Zelmah Cummins, worthy matron; Ralph Cumimns, worthy patron and Mrs. Grace Gamble, deputy grand matron.

An interesting feature of the program was the presentation of a beautiful basket of flowers to Mr. and Mrs. Cummins, from the former's mother in West Virginia.

The new officers who were installed were Mrs. Zelmah Cummins, worthy matron; Ralph Cummins, worthy patron; Mrs. Marie Mallott, associate matron; William Malott, associate patron; Mrs. Dorothy Kilgore, conductress; Mrs. Marjorie Sparks, associate conductress; Mrs. Ruth Hunt, secretary; Mrs. Ruth McLaughlin, treasurer; Mrs. Lela Isbel, marshal; Mrs. Priscilla Watson, chaplain; Mrs. Wanita Snyder, organist; Mrs. Eleanor Warlaumont, warden; Charles Shirkey, sentinel; Mrs. Irene Couts, Ada; Mrs. Mary Spohn, Ruth; Mrs. Bessie Jaynes, Esther; Mrs. Elizabeth Coughran, Electa; Mrs. Helen Middleton, flag bearer.

C. OF C. SECRETARY IS HOST AT PARTY

PLACENTIA, Dec. 7.—Members of the merchants' division of the Placentia Chamber of Commerce were entertained at a stag party Thursday evening by T. E. Pickerill, secretary of the chamber of commerce, who is to be married soon.

The affair was held in the Palm avenue home of A. S. Bradford, president of the chamber of commerce, and a buffet supper was served. Many gifts were received by Mr. Pickerill, including a handsome set of silverware presented by Dr. F. J. Yerke, on behalf of the merchants' division.

REPORT RELIEVES S. A. REALTY BOARD OF RESPONSIBILITY IN SCHOOL SITE PURCHASE ROW

Action of the board of education in dealing with other than the special committee appointed to assist the board in the acquisition of school sites relieved the Santa Ana Realty board of any responsibility in the recent deal by which the school board is alleged to have paid $600 more for a lot at the corner of Birch and Fairview streets than the same parcel could have been bought for through the committee at an earlier date.

This was the conclusion of the board of directors of the Santa Ana Realty board, as presented and approved at a meeting of the board yesterday.

It was pointed out that the Realty board had appointed a committee to co-operate with the school board in the buying of sites and that the service was offered without cost to the school board — in other words, no commissions would be asked for by the committee.

Action Not Unethical

J. C. Wallace, the broker who made the sale to the school board, did not act in an unethical manner, in the opinion of the directors, following an investigation of the circumstances leading up to the deal. Wallace asserted that he was not aware of action by the Realty board offering the school board the services of the Realty board in the purchase of school properties and that he had no knowledge of the purchaser of the lot when he was asked to submit a price by a person not identified with the Realty board or with the school board.

The report of the directors, as approved by the Realty board, was as follows:

"Having carefully considered the report of the committee appointed by the Realty board to secure and appraise properties at net prices for the school board, we herewith report that the Realty board had fulfilled its duty to the school board when it reported back to Mr. Drake, the representative of the school board, that the committee had ascertained the owner of the lot in question and found that it was held in trust by the trust department of the First National bank.

"This committee obtained the price and found that it could be bought for $2000 less the regular five per cent commission or a net price of $1900. After this price was obtained, the committee was informed that this lot could not be used for the purpose for which it was intended, that is, for church purposes.

"Mr. Drake, representing the school board, made no further advances to this committee regarding this site. Therefore any action taken by the school board or its representative relieves the Santa Ana Realty board of any responsibility for any action taken by the representative of the school board or the school board after that date."

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(UP)—United States Steel soared to new high ground on the current movement today and led the entire stock market higher. Buying of the issue was based to some extent on expectation of a splitup in the issue, but this lacked confirmation from official sources.

With stel around 180, compared with a low made a few weeks ago at 150, the entire list moved ahead aggresively most of the short session.

Business for a tmie was at an 8,000,000 share a day rate. Tickers fell behind nearly a half hour and stocks were coming out in much larger blocks toward the close, the inevitable weekend profit taking was making itself felt in some of the early gainers, but it was not of scope sufficient to make serious inroads into the advances. The tone was confident as the closing gong rang.

U. S. Steel made a whirlwind finish, being one of the few stocks that did not meet profit taking at all. A few minutes before 12 o'clock traders were frantically bidding for the issue. It shot ahead and its strength arrested selling elsewhere.

International Telephone was a favorite during the session, rising 6 points and holding most of thegain. Other wide gains made included American Telephone, Westinghouse Electric, Montgomery Ward and American & Foreign Power.

Radio Corporation was active but it lost nearly all the gain toward the close. Standard Oil of New Jersey featured the oil shares. Chrysler was a strong spot in the motors. Rails did little after early strength. Utilities continued in demand.

At 11:50 a. m., stock tickers were 33 minutes late and were expected to run until around 1 p. m., before the close was reached.

Curb tickers caught up after lagging in early trading.

Steel closed at 182¾ up 11 points for the day or about $88,000,000 up in stock market valuation. This was the best gain of any of the leading issues on theb oard, others being marred by the profit taking.

Sales for teh short session, including odd lots amounted to 3,002,560 shares, compared with 1,785,400 in the first two hours yesterday.

Among the best gains aside from stel were Anaconda up 1⅜ at 80¼ at the close; Chrysler 36 up 2½; Bethlehem steel 97 up 2; Cerro de Pasco 65⅞ up 2⅜; American Can 124¼ up 1⅞; International Telephone 83¾ up 6⅛; American Telephone 233 up 2½; Standard of New Jersey 69¼ up 1½; American and Foreign Power 98¼ up 5; Stnadard Brands 31¾ up 2¼; Public Service 81¾ up 2¼; Vanadium 59¼ up 2¾.

CHICAGO BD. OF TRADE

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—(UP)—Unloading of long wheat and free selling on all rallies kept prices easing today and they were sharply lower as the Board of Trade closed. Local sentiment turned bearish in the face of still more sensational Argentine bull news and there was no support from the traders. Exports fell off again after a fair business yesterday. Buenos Aires closed 1¼ to 1⅝c lower, taking the edge from the Argentine news. Corn and oats were affected by wheat.

At the close wheat was 2-2½c lower, corn was ½ to ⅝c lower, and oats was⅝ to ⅞c lower. Provisions wer firm.

Cash prices were wheat ½c higher, corn 1c lower to 1c higher, oats was ¼c lower to ½c higher.

"SURELY ARE BARGAINS"

That's the way people talk when looking over our good Used Cars. To my knowledge, we have not had one person tell us our prices are too high, considering the condition of our cars. That is indeed unusual, don't you think?

The 6-cyl Sport Coupe, 6-cyl Sport Roadster and the Light 6 Cyl Victoria are GOING DOWN $25.00 per day, and will continue to go down until they are sold. Just think of these good cars at these prices!

28 Series Erskine Sport Roadster, was $785. Now down to $495
27 Series Erskine Sport Coupe, was $650. Now down to $395
Buick Standard Victoria, was $585. Now down to $450 and going down $25.00 PER DAY UNTIL SOLD. They are dandy good cars and you can still buy them AT YOUR OWN PRICE. Come in and let us explain what we mean by "Buy A Car At Your Own Price."

27 Certified Studebaker Commander Regular Sedan, was $875. Now $795
28 Certified Dictator Royal Sedan (Wonderful value), was $985. Now $895
(Brand new tires—Brand new moulded brakes)
Almost new Erskine Club Sedan (repossessed) only 3 months old.
New car price, $1098. Now $795
27 Hudson Super-6 Brougham, was $785. Now $650
26 Oakland Club Sedan, was $485. Now $345
25 Willys-Knight Coupe, was $435. Now $325
24 Studebaker Special 6 Sedan, was $385. Now $265
25 Studebaker Standard 6 Sedan, was $485. Now $395
25 Chrysler Sport Roadster, was $495. Now $395
26 Cleveland Sedan, was 295. Now.....$195

Come in and look these cars over. You'll be surprised at the values we are offering.

GOVERNOR RITCHIE IN BOSTON

Can we believe our eyes?

The city of Boston declares to Governor Ritchie, who was to make a speech in that city in favor of the repeal of the state prohibition enforcement law, that they do not want to hear him on that topic and deny him the use of Tremont Temple.

The chairman of the Liberal Civic League of Boston, says in his statement to Mr. Ritchie:

> In my opinion a proper procedure to change the Constitution is all right, but to make it much easier for the bootlegger and the criminal element to violate the law of the land by removing any machinery for enforcement of the law is quite another matter.

There is a statement succinctly made to Governor Ritchie by one who naturally is with him, but is with him only in Constitutional methods of repealing the law and not in making it easy to violate it.

Frankly, we do not agree with those who would not give Governor Ritchie an opportunity to speak. We believe in permitting anybody to speak on any subject whether we favor it or whether we don't; whether it is right or whether it is wrong; and so we do not quite agree with trying to prevent him making an address in the city of Boston. As a matter of fact, arrangements were made for him to speak elsewhere.

But we certainly do agree with the spirit of this chairman of the Liberal Civic League. Whether a man agrees with this chairman in the repeal of the amendment or not, which we do not, we certainly recognize him as a real American, in that he proposes to accomplish his desires by regular constitutional and orderly processes. No one can find fault with a man personally who does that. It then becomes a question of principle involved, of the idea and not of the method. Incidentally, while this is giving a shock to Governor Ritchie, it is quite clearly presenting the issue to the American people, and coming from the source from which it did, it was little expected.

Judging by recent stock market activities, the lambs had better stick to their gamboling and let gambling alone.

COMPULSORY HEALTH

An English surgeon lays down the fact that one of the great benefits a man may contribute to his community and to the world is to keep his own health. He even goes so far as to say that the community through its legal enforcement agencies has a right to compel it. If society has a right to prevent a man living under conditions which predispose him to tuberculosis, or typhoid fever, or anything of the contagious diseases, it is only going a step further to prevent him living the kind of a life or indulging himself in such a way as shall inevitably lead to disease or physical breakdown.

When society goes to the limit of this, it naturally has assumed a Herculean contract. It might involve seeing to it that every table has the proper food on it, that every person should be in bed at 10 p. m. and stay there till 6 a. m., or that no one should indulge in habits that undermine health. In failing to conform he may ruin his own health, and every man who has ruined his own health becomes a center of infection.

Not unreasonable all this. But there are bounds beyond which organized society cannot go. A good deal is expected from the individuals who make up organized society. What organized society can do, and is already doing, is to see to it that information is spread abroad, and that the more flagrant offender against his own health is segregated, as lepers are segregated in the Orient. Individual liberty is a sacred thing, but when individual liberty impinges upon the well-being of any other individual, physical or moral, that is its outer bound.

ALL IN THE SAME BOAT

We have been told so much about the market slump here in this country that we are apt to forget that the crash has been felt just as seriously on all the stock exchanges of the world. The Paris Bourse was so hard hit by the slump that the people of the whole country are suffering as a result. Reports come from Paris that the stockings of the French peasant are not going to be replenished this year. When a French peasant cannot add a few sous or francs to the store of his stocking, things are going very badly. The same report comes from London. Stocks there slumped over a billion and a half dollars in the crash of November 19. If anything, London has been harder hit than New York. Current values are even less than they were a year ago at this time.

If anything were needed to show how interrelated and interdependent we are, this common slump of all the stock markets of the world is ample evidence. How provincial and ignorant are those folk here in this country who still delude themselves into thinking that we can go it alone, and that no matter what happens to the rest of the world, we are beyond the reach of disaster. Whether we like it or not, whether we are willing to acknowledge it or not, what occurs in Europe, in Asia, in South America, or in Africa, has a very vital relation to us here in the United States of America. The day of isolation is past. In a supreme sense we are citizens of the United States. But in no less a degree are we citizens of the world, if not politically, then surely socially and economically.

MR. VARE DENIED SEAT

Wm. S. Vare is finally notified by the United States Senate that they will not have him as a member of that body. Mr. Vare had spent over three-quarters of a million dollars for his election.

The amount of money, however, was not so important in the minds of the Senators and the people, in all probability, as was the fact that a large number of "watchers" were hired at $10.00 or other amounts, allegedly to watch. The amount of money so expended was deemed to smack of purchase and illegitimate use of money for votes. Mr. Vare nor his attorney did not claim that this was a right thing to do, but rather that it was a common thing to do in Pennsylvania, and that he did nothing more than his opponent did.

It really became a question as to whether the standards of Pennsylvania in such matters should be considered the standards of the United States Senate, to the extent that when the resolution was before the body, the Senators would countenance it by their vote. By a vote of 58-22 the Senators went on record as being opposed to members in the Senate who were elected by such means. "Corrupt and contented" may do for Pennsylvania, but not for the United States Senate.

We believe everyone interested in good government, who desires to see the elimination of corrupt practices of every kind, and who is anxious that our public officials shall be clean from taint of holding office through money instead of merit, will be pleased over the result. There are certain members of our political bodies who will swallow anything as long as it bears the mark or brand of the political organization.

We are pleased that Senator Johnson voted to uphold the character and the traditions of the Senate by his vote in refusing the seating of Mr. Vare.

Harvard has 55,000 alumni and Yale has 35,000. Maybe that's why Yale seems to be getting along so nicely.

THIS COUNTRY IS REAL BIG

Cleveland, O., has just completed a campaign in which the largest Community Fund in its history was subscribed. The goal was $4,650,000 and the amount was oversubscribed.

Leaders of the campaign were a bit fearful that the stock market crash might have a serious effect on this year's campaign. Workers were instructed as to how to counteract this reason for not subscribing to the campaign or for decreasing previous contributions.

Much has been said about how the public was in the market and it is undoubtedly true that a large number of people lost in the crash. But possibly, the number of people who lost is much smaller than assumed. There are more than 100 million people in this country, and it is true that a large percentage of them are not familiar with buying on margin, bull markets and selling short.

The success of the Cleveland Community Fund campaign on the heels of the stock market crash seems to indicate the number of market speculators has been overestimated.

Pay-As-You-Enter For Peddlers at Door

San Bernardino Sun

That's an intriguing idea of our European neighbors to install doorbells which don't ring unless the caller drops a coin in a slot. It may jar a hospitable American at first; but the more you think about it, the more possibilities there are in it.

Here is a fine way to discourage kids from ringing the front door bell, at Halloween or any other time. It may also discourage agents and salesmen in general who make a practice of going around ringing people's doorbells. Many a harassed housewife would feel partly repaid for all the steps she takes to the door, when she emptied the coin box at the end of each month.

It may have, too, possibilities of social selection, if anyone happens to rate social preference by ability to pay.

Pay-as-you-enter is coming to be a familiar motto on street cars and busses. Why not on homes? Instead of "Welcome," just put up a sign, "Drop a Nickel in the Slot."

Divine Law Extending to the Lesser Breeds

San Francisco Chronicle

Kipling's "Recessional" has been omitted from the hymnal of the new union church in Canada, although it was included among the sacred songs of the denominations from which the new church was formed.

The omission is significant. "The Recessional" was written for Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee. It was undisguisedly a supplication to a national God. The Old Testament stateliness of the poem commended it as a hymn.

But religious thought is more critical now than then. The compilers of the Canadian hymnal found "The Recessional's" allusion to "lesser breeds without the law" a bit grating. What reflected common thought in 1897 was looked on in 1929 as setting up a religious exclusiveness out of keeping with the spirit of the age.

The "me und Gott" notion has lost a lot of ground in the last few years.

Peace and Roads

Oakland Tribune

In Honduras General So-and-So has charge of the steam-shovel detail, while General What's-His-Name leads a regiment of shovel and pick men.

The little country has gone Mexico, which decided to add no more generals to its army, one better. Honduras, to keep the military leaders occupied, has put them to work building roads.

One trouble down there has been the number of generals, all convinced they were born to command and all ready, at the faintest alarm, to spring into the saddle. As Honduras needs highways more than insurrections, and as generals may command road gangs with dignity and effect, the new program is to be recommended. General Ricardo Lardizbal is laying macadam and apparently is as happy as he would be directing gunfire from a high rock. General Francisco Valladares, sending his shovelmen into action, is aware he is rendering conspicuous service to his flag.

ESSAY ON MAN

The moon is cold and bleak and bare
There isn't anybody there.

And yet it may contain, I'm told,
Vast stores of platinum and gold.

And there are, it is rumored, signs
Of emerald and diamond mines,

While underneath its arid soil
There may be quantities of oil.

The distance to the moon to span
At present is too much for man.

The satellite moves on its way
A quarter million miles away,

But if it ever can be proved
That once its crust has been removed

There may be found a treasure, which
Will make its daring finder rich.

I'm rather sure the world's best brains
Will think about the princely gains

That wait for one who dares to fly
So great a distance toward the sky.

We'll have that treasure here, some day
For greed will always find a way.

EXTRA UPKEEP

If they keep on building skyscrapers higher they'll have to hire extra janitors to sweep the clouds off the roof each morning.

SUGGESTION

PROBLEM

Vocational Training As a Cure For Unemployment

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

A wrapping machine has been perfected which takes the place of forty hand-workers. In almost every other industry, improved machinery is enabling one man to do the work of many men.

The result is called "technological unemployment"—a high-sounding name that brings no comfort to the jobless father.

As a cure, the U. S. Commissioner of Labor Statistics advocates vocational training.

"But what," the puzzled father asks, "has that to do with getting me a job in place of the one which the new machine took away from me?"

The answer is, "Nothing at all." Nor has it anything to do with getting his son Jimmie a job when he grows up. It may fit the boy to fill a job; but it won't find a job for him to fill.

Training Jimmie to be a plumber may create initiative, industry and skill. But it doesn't create demand for plumbing.

People install bath rooms for two reasons: first, because they want them; and second, because they have the money to pay for them. Not, harsh as it may seem, because there is a newly trained plumber in the neighborhood who needs a job.

More vocational training supplies more trained workers, but it does not supply more work. Except, possibly, for teachers, and teachers are not victims of "technological unemployment."

No, we are doomed to failure in our efforts to sustain employment, unless we build on this rock-bottom fact:

The only thing that can sustain the demand for labor is adequate demand for the products of labor; and that depends mainly on the right flow of money to laborers.

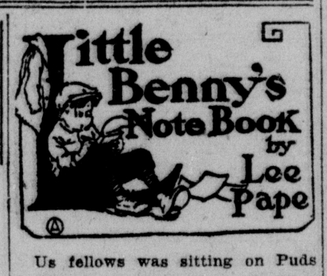
Little Benny's Note Book by Lee Pape



Us fellows was sitting on Puds Simkinses frunt steps tawking about diffrent subjects such as weather we thawt Crissmas would seem just as valuble if it came every munth, most of us thinking yes, and some man stopped going pass and started to tawk to us.

Being a little round man with rinkles and a white mustash saying, Well well, this makes me feel young agen, all you boys sitting here tawking about Crissmas in your loud merry voices. Have you all written your letters to Santa Claws yet? he sed.

Us fellows all looking at each other funny and Puds whispering, Aw, whose he think he's tawking to, a bunch of babies? and the little man sed, He's a wonderful old fellow, Santa Claws is, he was werking hard making toys and delivering them down chimneys when I was a boy like you boys, and he's still bizzily at werk on the same good old job. I sippose he hardly has time to get his wiskers trimmed, ha ha ha, he sed.

Us fellows looking at each other even funnier, and the little man sed, Now I wunt all you boys to tell me just what you sed to old Nick in your letters.

Reddy Merfy starting to say, Aw good nite, and I poked him amung the ribs, wispering, G wizz. be a sport cant you? And I sed. Well I asked him for ice skates and gum boots and a puntching bag if he felt like it.

Well wasnt that nice and considerate, if he felt like it, ha ha ha, the little man sed, and Glasses Magee sed, I told him he could buy me whatever he wunted, I told him Id trust his judgment.

Ha ha ha, good for you, Im sure your confidents wasent misplaced, the little man sed. And the other fellows started to tell him what they wrote to Santa Claws, even Reddy Merfy, and the little man sed, Well, I must go now, Im sure you boys will get everything you asked for, at least Im sure I hope so.

And he kepp on going, me saying, O well, whats a use of spoiling peeples fun, and Puds Simkins saying, Sure, the poor old man mite as well injoy himself while he can, and the other fellows saying they thawt so too.

In the Long Ago

Dec. 7, 1915

Miss K. O'Donnell, milliner, issued invitations in Santa Ana and vicinity for her formal opening in the new quarters in the Mit Phillips block, 401 West Fourth street.

According to statements made by the promoters of the California Dried Peach association, a branch of that organization will be formed in this county.

Grammar school principals of Orange county met at Tustin and perfected an organization for the purpose of securing better cooperation among the grammar schools of this county.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

SIDE-LIGHT ON THE MARKET

One of the outstanding facts of the last few years in the economic life of the United States has been the spreading of the ownership of industry.

The stocks of the basic industries of the United States have been going more and more into the strong-boxes of American workers.

More and more the worker was becoming a budding capitalist.

The conservative saw this as a happy thing, for a worker who is part owner of an industry wants high dividends and is, to that extent, less open to the appeals of the radical agitator.

The radical saw this as an unhappy thing, wor a worker who is part owner of an industry is less hospitable to the radical's appeal to class-consciousness.

There is no doubt that employee ownership of industrial stocks was a growing asset to industrial conservatism.

And now the likelihood is that the current collapse of the stock market will mean a definite setback to the worker-market for industrial stocks.

Judge Walter H. Alford of the Nash Motor interests asserts that he doubts the wisdom of the aggressive selling of stocks to employees.

"We have never had a stock-selling plan," he says. "Not that I am opposed to stock ownership by employees. But to urge them to buy is dangerous. If the stock goes up, they depposit what they have already bought to margin additional purchases at increased prices. If it goes down, they blame the company for it. The kick-back is serious.

"After what has happened in the last two weeks, I predict that it will be some time before we see again in this country the wave of stock-selling to employees that we have been witnessing."

There is the possibility of far-reaching social implications in this mild statement of business opinion.

As employees move away from stock-ownership, they move into the territory of the pleader for the class-consciousness of labor.

Does this mean good or ill for the future?

The human show is a play of complicated plot.

Will the debacle of high finance play into the hands of the enemies that great business has always fought?

TIME FOR THE CHIDREN

Somebody has to have time for the children. They cannot grow up the model citizens their parents and teachers and neighbors wish them to be unless somebody takes the time to train and teach them.

Parents are so rushed these days. Father leaves early in the day and works hard until evening. He cannot in the nature of things have much time for training the children. If he gives them a half hour of his company now and then it is all he can do.

Teachers rush from the school to the lecture room. Conferences, special programs, reports, take all their spare time. Children must enter and leave school on schedule time. There is time for only a hurried word of advice or counsel.

Mothers are supposed to have time fo rthe children, but do they? Household help is hard to get. Work done outside is rarely done well. Sewing and cooking and cleaning and mending and nursing and shoppig and visiting and minding the children make a rather full day. Time, free unclaimed time in which to live with children, is very very limited.

Yet somebody must have time for the children. Time to listen to their stories of daily happenings. Time to interpret things to them. Time to advise and caution and inspire them. Time to think over the problems of each child. Time to apply the remedy. Time to apply the remedy. Time to LIVE with children.

Strangers cannot enter fully into the life of your child. They can help but they cannot do what a mother and a father can do. It is plain and becoming plainer every day that home must find time for the rearing of its children. We cannot ask father to give up his business. We cannot ask mother to give up her work. We must ask them to so adjust their daily duties and enthusiasms as to leave some time fo rthe children and their interests.

The burden must fall heaviest on the mothers. Home-making implies caring for children. A mother's career means rearing childhen. Then it remains for us to so apportion the work of the household as to free the mother as much as possible so she can have time for her real work, the training of children.

Some mothers do not want to tie themselves down to the children. That is too bad but once the children have arrived there is nothing for a mother to do but make them her career until such time as their growth is sufficient to sustain them independently.

It is fine to be a famous person, I imagine. But if writing the book, painting the picture, acting the part, costs the child's future happiness, is the fame going to be worth it? Somehow I cannot help feeling that the world could get along with fewer famous folk, fewer careers. I cannot get by the notion that if anybody, man, woman, or child, has a great creative gift he has along with it the power to fulfill it without neglecting a clear duty such as the rearing of one's own children. I keep seeing Hariret Beecher Stowe writing Uncle Tom's Cabin with a baby under her arm. If the book had to be written the baby had to be reared along with the book. Maybe that is the answer.

But please, somebody find time for rearing the children.

THAT MAN YANKWICH—Judge Yankwich of the superior court of Los Angeles county would appear to be a fine example of American citizen and a jurist who knows his duty as citizen and judge. He recently took occasion to speak very plainly and forcibly on a matter which may well command more attention than is paid it by the people and courts of the United States.

The doctrine quite recently advocated as the attitude of the Italian government by Mussolini, the Italian dictator, which is, in effect, that Italians never cease to be citizens of Italy, was handled by Judge Yankwich without gloves.

Mussolini went even further, and declared that children born in the United States of Italian parents continued to owe allegiance to Italy and its government which, by the way, is Mussolini.

Judge Yankwich said that any such doctrine or theory is abhorrent to our institutions, and that this government would brook nothing of the kind. He said that this country had a right to expect that naturalized citizens of the United States would be true to their oath of naturalization, and that they and their children should make every possible effort to absorb American ideals and give unstinted allegiance to the country which affords them protection and an opportunity to prosper.

All of which is good sound doctrine as well as good sense.

DICKENS WOULD ENJOY THIS—Charles Dickens wrote much of interest regarding the circumlocution office of England which, as the name implies, was at all times considerably behind with its work. But, at that, it would seem to have nothing on the patent office of the good old United States. That department of the government is five to six years behind with its work. The annual report of Commissioner Robertson of the patent office, made the other day pointed out the above mentioned fact, and said that while applications for patents pending before the board were decreasing 8618 through the additions of examiners, 108,236 remained to be acted upon. The commissioner asked for 100 more examiners.

FAIR ENOUGH—At the general state election to be held in November of the coming year the taxpayers of the entire state are to be given another opportunity to vote some bonds. The amount asked this time is $10,000,000, the purpose: to develop and improve San Francisco harbor. San Francisco has a wonderful harbor, and if it needs development and improvement, as it probably does, the work should be done.

But, in the name of fairness, why ask that the expense, or any portion thereof, be borne by the taxpayers of the state as a whole? San Francisco, Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley, the entire bay region in fact, is well able to pay for that which needs to be done along harbor improvement lines in San Francisco bay.

Southern California has harbor problems of her own and is going to be keep quite busy solving them.

It does not seem at all probable that any considerable number of votes will be cast in the affirmative on this particular bonding proposition. But as the people of the Southland are, and should be, anxious to stand in with San Francisco whenever possible, how about such a compromise as this: Let us all highly resolve to vote in favor of the proposed "daylight saving" proposition which is also to appear on the November ballot.

SPEED MAY BE SAFER IN NEW TYPE OF AUTO

A new type of automobile may rule the roads ten years from now, successfully competing with airplanes that cruise far overhead and land on tops of skyscrapers with utmost security.

Behind a screen of deepest mystery, one of the great automobile manufacturers of the United States is evolving just such an automobile. It will not be ready for several years, probably, and by that time it is anticipated that roads suitable for safe speeds well in excess of 100 miles an hour will extend tne length and breadth of the countrq.

Wind pressure, which now fights against speed, will be the friendly genii that will make these great speeds safe. To this end every feature of the mystery car is being tested in the whirlwind of super wind tunnels, designed after exhaustive research by ventilataing engineers. Powerful fans provide hurricanes beyond any ever loosed by nature in her wildest moods.

Under the pressure of a wind which, if developed by the car's own motion, would represent a speed far in excess of 100 miles an hour, this mystery model hugs the ground and is held steady against all stresses and strains of the road.

As scientists know, a fast moving object acting on still air causes it to present almost the characteristics of a solid and this fact is being utilized to the utmost in the development of the car of the future. Intsead of exerting a pressure that tends to lift the car from the ground, as in the case of most present-day models, the wind pushes down, exerting tremendous pressure and making it impossible for the car to turn over while traveling at high speed.

This tends to make speeds in excess of 100 miles an hour really safer than the slower speeds and, with good roads to equal the capacity of the car, will bring a new era of fast transportation.

Some idea of how this works can be obtained by looking at the "Golden Arrow," the racing car of Major H. O. D. Seagrave, who established a record of 231.2 miles an hour on th esands of Daytona Beach, Fla.

So far this car represents the fastest advance in turning wind resistance into "wind assistance" ever seen in the United States. The scoop-like prow presents an area against which the wind forms a terrific pressure. The gently upward slope ransfers this back pressure which holds the car against the road.

WARN AGAINST GAS FUMES IN CLOSED GARAGE

Warnings of the danger attending the operation of any automobiles in a closed garage, owing to the ever-present peril of carbon monoxide poisoning, are being sent all Oldsmobile and Viking owners by Oldsmobile-Viking service officials.

"Carbon monoxide gas is formed as one of the products of combustion of fuel in an engine," said J. E. Headley, Oldsmobile-Viking dealer here. "Engines which are operated in a closed garage send out a considerable quantity of this gas through the exhaust system in a short period of time, particularly if the engine is cold. Unfortunately, this gas gives no warning whatsoever to its victim for the reason that it is colorless as well as odorless, and its presence cannot be detected by any of the senses of smell or sight. Many people, although having some knowledge of this gas, mistakenly confuse it with the blue or black smoke seen issuing from the exhaust pipe. This black smoke, in addition to being visible, has a pungent odor, producing an irritation to the threat and respiratory organs, as well as frequently causing a slight headache.

"Carbon monoxide, on the other hand, causes no such effects and due to being undetected, affects its victim without warning. The action of this gas is so rapid that it can produce complete unconsciousness within a very few seconds."

SHOWS ECONOMY

In addition to showing increased production, high producing dairy cows also show more economy in utilizing feed, the U. S. department of agriculture reports. Records taken of 100,000 dairy cows show that the cost of feed for cows producing 9000 pounds of milk a year is only 40 per cent more than for cows producing 4500 pounds.

License Plates To Be Available On December 16

Issuance of 1930 license plates over the counters of various branches of the state motor vehicle department and auto clubs authorized to put out plates, will start on Dec. 16, just one week from next Monday.

In the following 30 days, motorists must have their plates, or evidence of application, otherwise they will be subject after January 15 to a penalty, according to announcement by the state department.

Car owners are reminded that it is necessary to have only the white certificate in filing an application, unless there is change in the legal owner, or in case the white certificate has been lost or mutilated.

GAS TAX NOW COLLECTED IN EVERY STATE

Every state in the Union and the District of Columbia now collects a gas tax, it is revealed in reports of the bureau of public roads reaching the Automobile Club of Southern California. The average tax paid per gallon is 3.07 cents, and it is probable that the total gas tax collected for the United States this year will approach $400,000,000.

California, with its 3-cent tax, is nearly one cent lower than the average throughout the United States. This tax will enable the state to spend approximately $38,000,000 on its highways next year, and this huge sum for road development will be augmented by a program of approximately $50,000,000 that will be expended by the 57 counties in the state.

Although the average tax on gasoline throughout the country is nearly 4 cents, California's enormous consumption of this modern necessity is so great that adequate funds are provided for road development on the basis of 3 cents a gallon.

EACH WILLARD BATTERY MEETS OVER 60 TESTS

From raw material to finished product every Willard battery passes 69 different tests and inspections to safeguard its built-in quality, according to Earl Matthews, of the Orange County Ignition works. "Every shipment of lead oxide is tested for possible impurities," he said. "The battery solution is stored in clean lead tanks and is constantly under inspection. The active material, the plates and connections all must check closely against rigid specifications.

"In order to encourage an attitude of super-watchfulness Willard pays many of its inspectors for the flaws they detect rather than the parts they pass. Witness some of the apparently trifling causes for rejection. A tiny pin hole which could not even be seen by the ordinary eye sends an otherwise perfect insulation into the scrap heap. The slightest irregularity in the honeycombing of the grids is enough to get rejection by the inspector.

"Every finished battery is put through a long series of tests: to determine its capacity to turn over your motor at sub-zero temperatures; to determine its ability to retain voltage after a severe 'draw' of current, and so on, until the battery gets the final O. K. for shipment. It has been said that the Willard system of testing and inspection is so well established that it is far easier for Willard to make a quality battery than an inferior one."

ANNOUNCE FIGURES ON ROAD BUILDING

Complete figures for last year show that a total of 74,783 miles of highway were improved throughout the country. The various states constructed 7,814 miles of road and 47 miles of bridges in the federal aid system. Federal funds helped to pay for this improvement. With state funds alone the states improved 21,391 miles of state roads, and the counties and other local units constructed 45,531 miles of county and local roads.

These roads will be needed, according to the Automobile Club of Southern California, which has received assurances from traffic engineers that the number of automobiles using the roads will double within the next eleven years.

AIR SALUTE MARKS OPENING OF GOODRICH TIRE SERVICE STORE IN SANTA ANA TODAY

With a bombing salute by four planes from the Eddie Martin airport, four pretty young women distributing balloons, candy and souvenirs, and with courteous attendants clad in white rendering efficient service to patrons, Goodrich Silvertown, inc., today officially opened its new station to the public of Santa Ana and vicinity. The attractive plant is located on the northeast corner of Broadway and First street and is under the capable direction of Lyle (Andy) Anderson, manager, one of the best known men in Orange county.

Complete tire service is offered at the new station, in addition to servicing of batteries, greasing of cars and distribution of Texaco gasoline and lubricants. U. S. L. batteries will be handled by the station.

"Miss Silvertown," in the persons of Miss Martha Adams, and three assistants, Miss Cleo West, Ethel West and Mary Wade, greeted visitors and patrons during the afternono, and distributed to them balloons, candies and novelties, the gifts being presented as appropriate to the age of the visitor or patron.

Anderson, who has been with the company for three years, pointed out that the station here is one in a large chain which the company

CAT WASHES HEDGES

KINSTON, N. C., Dec. 7.—D. Eugene Wood had the bright idea of staging a cat washing contest. Contestants were to perform at a fair. But when the news got out numerous telegrams and letters to Wood branded the "sport" as an idea "of which he should be ashamed." "I could stand it until the ladies got to kicking," he said. "But I hate to do anything to annoy the ladies. I don't believe I can go ahead with the thing."

The average length of life of the wren is 3 years; robin, 12 years; blackbird, 12; quail, 15; piegon, 20; sparrow, 40; goose, 50; parrot, 60; crow, swan and eagle, 100.

EXCELLENT QUAIL SEASON PREDICTED

December first marked the opening of the quail season and owing to the fact that there have been no heavy rains to date in Southern California, which every nimrod knows has a tendency to cause the coveys to seek higher ground, the coveys are now ranging in their usual haunts. The year has been an ideal one for the quail, and according to reports received by the outing bureau of the National Automobile club, there have, in numerous instances, been double hatchings.

"The second brood are already full grown and on the wing. This augurs well for a splendid season in practically every part of Southern California," says the bureau. "A recent survey of the hunting districts has disclosed the fact that there are more birds than have ever been noted in any previous year. This fact is no doubt due to the short open seasons of the previous years.

LIABILITY LAW IS EXPLAINED BY BISCAILUZ

Confusion in the minds of motorists concerning the liability law passed by the last legislature is prevalent, according to the state division of motor vehicles.

"Persons owning automobiles are not required by law to carry liability insurance," said Eugene W. Biscailuz, chief of the California highway patrol.

"If they wish to do so, however, they will find themselves spared considerable trouble in case of accidents. The new law only states that if a judgment against a motorist remains unpaid he must forfeit his driver's license until settlement is made. He must also prove to the court that he will be able to pay any judgment assessed against him in the future.

The highest elevation reached by the northern transcontinental telephone line is 6359 feet where it crosses the Transcontinental Divide at McDonald Pass in Montana.

Telephone service is now available from the United States to twenty-one foreign countries.

LACK OF TAIL LIGHTS CAUSES MANY CRASHES

BY HORACE FINE
(Automobile Editor of Register)

The accident pictured happened at Wichita, Kans., recently, and three lives were lost. The incident is one of many such happenings on the highways of California—death resulting to motorists because tail lights were not lighted to warn drivers of danger. While a negligent truck driver was responsible for the mishap that sent three persons to their death, truck drivers are not the only violators of regulations requiring the display of red lights at the rear of a machine standing at the side of highway. Pleasure car drivers are just as negligent, and they have been responsible for many such catastrophes in California and other state of the Union.

There probably are few motorists who read this column who cannot recall narrow escapes from similar deaths when suddenly coming upon a parked or slow moving vehicle without a tail light in operation. It is admitted that the greatest danger from this source lies with trucks.

Most drivers of trucks that are operated by day have little occasion to check upon the tail lights, with the result that when they are caught out on the highway at night there is likelihood that the warning signals have been rendered inoperative because of excessive jarring incident to truck travel.

One of the states requires all trucks and busses to carry red reflectors in back so that should the tail light become inoperative the reflected rays of an approaching car's headlight would be sufficient to warn the driver of the danger ahead.

It seems to me that the requirement of a red reflector on all vehicles would add to the safety of the motoring public traveling at night.

Inoperative tail lamps have been the cause of a number of serious and fatal accidents in Orange county, and they will continue to be such mishaps so long as sole dependence is placed on one warning signal at the rear.

TOUGH GRADES ARE CONQUERED BY STUDEBAKER

In a series of sensational hill climbing tests in several eastern, middle-western and southern cities recently, a Studebaker President eight roadster piloted by Ralph Hepburn, racing driver, negotiated grades ranging from 18 to 32 per cent with as many as 13 passengers, according to H. D. Riley, Studebaker-Erskine dealer here. The car, incidentally, was the same President roadster which traveled 30,000 miles in 26,326 consecutive minutes at Atlantic City Speedway a year ago. The car now registers 66,000 miles on its speedometer.

"Some of the President's most spectacular climbs took place at Monessen, Pa.," Riley said. "After conquering the 18 per cent grade of Ninth street and Reed avenue, and the 25 per cent gradient of Oneida street with as many passengers as could find a place to hang on, Hepburn obtained official sanction for the removal of the chain barriers on Fourth street, a gradient of 32¾ per cent, two-tenths of a mile in length.

"With eleven men as passengers, Hepburn took his President over the top in second gear on the first attempt. After repeating this performance several times in the presence of a large crowd, Hepburn took two passengers over the top in high gear, from a flying start, crossing the summit at 23 miles per hour. Later in the day Hepburn crossed the Monongahela river at Charleroi, where he negotiated a high gear ascent of Sixth street, six city blocks long, with a gradient ranging from 22 per cent at the bottom to 31½ per cent near the top."

WHAT AN ABSENT TAIL LIGHT WILL DO

Two women and a man were burned to death when the car in which they were riding, shown in lower picture, struck the rear end of a truck in the night, causing the gasoline tank to explode and set fire to the car. One of the four occupants in the sedan escaped alive by smashing a window and climbing out. The accident happened on a highway near Wichita, Kan., when the lack of a tail light on the rear of the truck caused the driver to run into it. A steel rod projecting from the truck punctured the gas tank. The upper photo shows the truck and wrecked sedan at the scene of the crash.

VALUE OF TWIN IGNITION SEEN IN NASH MOTOR

"To the owner of a twin-ignition motored Nash the advantages of the now famous Nash twin-ignition system (with two spark plugs per cylinder firing at opposite points in the combustion chamber at precisely the same instant) are very apparent because of the great increase in power and speed, and lowered fuel consumption, over the ordinary single-ignition system," says Carl M. Ward of the Nash-Ward Motor Sales, newly appointed Nash dealer in Santa Ana territory.

"But to many motorists, however, twin-ignition is somewhat of a mystery, its real functions, and purposes, not being fully understood. They know that it is better than single-ignition, but not why it is better, except that it is more positive. And, of course, most motorists are now aware that all the great air records of the past two or three years have been made with airplanes and airships powered with motors actuated by twin-ignition.

"The explanation of twin-ignition superiority over single-ignition is quite simple, however. The chief function of twin-ignition, whether in airplane or automobile engines, is to secure more rapid and complete burning of the compressed gas in the combustion chamber, thus obtaining greater power out of a given amount of fuel, thereby raising the efficiency of the power plant.

"There is nothing mysterious or complicated about twin-ignition. Its efficiency is based on the fact that the gasoline vapor compressed in the combustion chamber by the up-stroke of the piston, when ignited, does not explode. Actually, it merely burns quite rapidly—but not rapidly enough for maximum efficiency in the automobile engines of today when ignited at only one point in the combustion chamber, as with the ordinary single-ignition system."

"HOW'S SHE HITTIN?"

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

There are many varieties of anti-freeze on the market, but the most dependable are denatured alcohol and those trade-marked products that have pure glycerine or ethylene glycol as their constituent.

Of the other patented anti-freezes, most are alkaline solutions, such as calcium chloride. The acid in them attacks the metal in the radiator and other parts of the cooling system.

If such solution is to be used, however, the acid reaction in it may be neutralized by addition of ammonia or soda ash until blue litmus paper no longer turns red when dipped in it.

Between alcohol and glycerine, the question might arise as to which to use for better results. That depends on the prevailing weather conditions. In the north, where winter remains cold for a long time and there are no sudden warm spells, there is less chance of losing alcohol by evaporation than in the southern and more varying climates. Therefore alcohol would be much cheaper and at least as effective as glycerine.

But farther south, where winter is interspersed with warm snatches, the best anti-freeze to use is glycerine. For glycerine does not evaporate, no matter how warm the weather, while alcohol does as soon as there is possibility of the solution going higher than its boiling point, which is comparatively low. Glycerine's boiling point is even much higher than that of water while its freezing point is much lower than water's freezing point.

In a consistently cold climate, as in Canada, and some of the northerly states, glycerine may have the tendency to getting thick and sluggish and so retarding the flow of the cooling solution through radiator, pump and water jacket. Before the liquid could thin down enough to flow freely and quickly and so have its intended effect, the motor might become overheated.

Alcohol, however, maintains a regular consistency from freezing to boiling, has even a lower freezing point than glycerine and therefore is more effective in real cold weather.

It should be remembered that what is wanted is an engine heated up the proper operating temperature and kept there. That's pretty close to the boiling point of water.

An anti-freeze, or too much anti-freeze, that would tend to keep this temperature down is bad for the engine.

In real cold weather which remains so evenly throughout the season, alcohol permits the engine to warm up quickly to proper operating temperature. It does this much faster than glycerine, and it keeps the engine at this operating temperature. Little if any of the alcohol evaporates at this working temperature, for the solution is still below the boiling point of alcohol.

Of course, more alcohol would have to be used in proportion to water the more northerly the climate. The same is true of glycerine. But right proportions have been worked out by engineers for various degrees of temperature, so that there may be no danger of freezing from the use of too little anti-freeze or no worry of evaporation from an overdose of the liquid.

FRANKLIN SETS NEW RECORD IN N. Y.-L. A. RUN

In the most sensational transcontinental record breaking run ever made by an automobile, a Franklin sedan clipped 4 hours and 29 minutes off the former record, which was also held by Franklin, covering the 3260 miles between New York City and Los Angeles on the Pacific Coast in 69 hours and 31 minutes, according to W. R. Townsend, Franklin agent.

This new mark beats a former record held by another car by 8 hours and 9 minutes.

"Cannon Ball Baker, chief test pilot for Franklin, was behind the wheel of the air-cooled car, which has added a new outstanding record to its already long list of major records and again proved the efficiency of air-cooling," Townsend sadi.

"In this new record run the Franklin beat the time of the fastest trains by 8 hours and 29 minutes and made a highly favorable showing with the combination train and airplane time of 48 hours.

"Baker was checked out of New York City by Western Union timers on Monday night at 8:30 and arrived in Los Angeles at 3:01 p. m. Wednesday, averaging 46.89 miles an hour for the trip. Not for an instant during the terrific grind which carried the Franklin over the greatest mountain ranges in America as well as across plains, deserts of the far west and through crowded city traffic, was the engine stopped."

There were 79,725 marriages performed in Illinois during the year 1928, as compared with 80,222 in 1927. During the same year there were 15,703 divorces granted as against 14,984 in 1927.

DE SOTO HIGH IN RANK AMONG AMERICAN CARS

Just as Hernando De Soto, that dauntless explorer and discoverer of the Mississippi river, became a leader among the pioneers of his time, so has his namesake, the De Soto Six automobile, because of its inbuilt qualities of power, stamina, performance ability and style, achieved a high ranking among American-made automobiles of this day, according to George Metcalfe, of the Wm. E. Bush company, De Soto agent here.

"When De Soto, Knight of Santiago, governor of Cuba and Adelantado of Florida, with his 600 picked Spanish and Portuguese soldiers, spent three years in cutting through the virgin forests of that territory which now consists of the states of Florida, Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana, he became the first white man recorded in the pages of history to penetrate the interior of North America for more than a few miles," Metcalfe said. "He was not only the leader of his own soldiers and the leader of the people whom he governed, but he was a leader among all explorers of his time. He was a name that was synonymous with success.

"Emulating the success of this great leader, the De Soto automobile has achieved a remarkably high ranking among automobiles in the comparatively short period of time that it has been manufacturer. Starting in August, 1928, a new car, unknown to the general public and with no sales organization to sell it, the De Soto today has reached a commanding position in the field of low-price sixes."

STAR CORNHUSKERS MEET

A great time was had by all— and then some—when the mid-west's star cornhuskers met in their anual contest at Platte City, Mo, the other day. Below is Walter Olsen of Knox county, Illinois, who was crowned champion for the second time, showing how he uses a "peg" to husk corn. WORK OF CHEMISTRY BUREAU IS OUTLINED

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 7.—The increasingy important services which the U. S. bureau of chemistry and soils performs for producers and consumers of farm products and for those who manufacture such products into artices of commerce, is discussed by Dr. Henry G. Knight, chief of the bureau, in the report of the work of the bureau for the fisca year ended June 30 which was made public today by Secretary Arthur M. Hyde of the department of agricuture.

In the year. the bureau actively prosecuted investigations and research under 122 main ines of work. These range from the soil survey, which up to now has mapped and inventoried the soil resources of more than half the agricultural land of the United States, and the closely related fields of soil chemistry, soil physics, soil microbiology, soil fertility and soil erosion, through the work of taking nitrogen—a fertiliver element—out of the air, investigations of potash and phosphate resources, crop chemistry, fruit and vegetable chemistry, the production of organic acids by fermentation methods, the utilization of farm and industrial wastes, naval stores, food microbiology, food deterioration and spoilage, prevention of dust explosions and farm fires, to improvements in the technic of producing sugars, vegetable oils, proteins, insecticides, tanning materials, and a variety of other products.

Widening of markets, better prices for various farm products, and the development of new lines of industry for manufacturers, are objectives which the bureau is striving for.

FARMERS' CONCERN IN GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—(UP)—The new Farmers' National Frain corporation has entered actively into the grain market here, it was announced today by S. J. Cottington, president. He predicted the organization eventually will be the largest factor in the U. S. grain market.

The new corporation was established in line with the plans of the Federal Farm board and Cottington said that within a short time it will be extending loans to grain growers, through their regional co-operatives, on the farm board price basis. The company will continue to operate branch offices in St. Louis, Peoria, Milwaukee and Cedar Rapids.

Cottington and other officials predicted that by 1930 the corporation will be in a position to control the market effectively.

Grower To Plant Maine Potatoes

EL CAJON, Dec. 7.—Two barrels of seed potatoes, known as the Green Mountain variety, have been received from Aroostock, Me.

The potatoes, which are standard in that state will be planted next spring. The country about Aroostock is noted for its potato crops.

WEED PESTS AT FLYING FIELDS BEING WATCHED

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 7.—In an increased effort to control the spread of weed pests that may be carried by the various types of aircraft, county agricultural commissioners are now making frequent inspections of landing fields within the state, according to a statement of the California state department of agriculture made public today.

This measure is made necessary, it is reported, by the sudden appearance and rapid spread of certain weeds in localities far removed from any sections where such pests had previously been known. Investigation disclosed the presence of some weed seeds clinging to the tires and other parts of airplanes.

Puncture vines and tumbleweeds are two weed pests very well adapted by nature to this type of transportation. Many others adapt themselves to air travel wonderfully well, so that all planes and landing fields are sources of new and dangerous weed pests. The department of agriculture is advising quarantine officers to keep up a vigilant watch at border landing fields, and quarantine officials that are now stationed at all landing fields of the transcontinental air transport companies are instructed to intercept weed seeds as well as other contraband "freight."

HONEY MEN OF STATE TO HEAR EXPERT DEC. 11

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 7.—S. S. Rogers, chief of the bureau of fruit and vegetable standardization, state department of agriculture, will discuss the value of "standardized sweetness" to all honey interests of the state at the convention of the California State Beekeepers' association, in San Diego December 11 to 13, according to Frank E .Todd, state supervisor of apiary inspection. Conferences have been arranged in which Mr. Rogers will go more into detail in explaining the possibilities and the benefits of standardization practices and its possible relation to honey marketing.

The honey men of California, who this year produced 600 car loads of the oldest sweet known to man, are ready to do something definite, Mr. Todd Says, by way of calling for legislation placing the standardization of this product under the supervision of the state department of agriculture.

Not only will the finished product of the apiary be discussed, but problems of increasing nectar flow, preservation of diastase and its relation to the health giving properties of honey and many other subjects will come in for their share of consideration, according to those in charge of arrangements.

Plant and insect quarantine laws also will be discussed at the convention and representatives from Nevada, Arizona and Idaho have expressed their intentions to be present for a discussion regarding the movement of package bees and hive bees across state lines.

40 CARS ASPARAGUS SENT FROM VALLEY

BRAWLEY, Dec. 7.—The season's shipping of asparagus has run to 40 cars, with possibly two or three more before the fall business ends. During the last 12 months 138 cars of asparagus have been shipped from Imperial valley, yielding a net return of approximately $722,196.

Until last year asparagus was cut only in the spring, but it was found that a fall cutting could be had where the ground was aided with fertilizer. The spring market, however, is so much better, as a rule, that fall cutting has been abandoned by many growers.

Fruit Inspectors Wearing Uniforms

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 7.—California's fight against the Mediterranean fruit fly is beginning to take on the outward aspects of a military affair.

Train and border inspectors are being outfitted this week with distinctive uniforms and caps, the garb being somewhat similar to that worn by the state traffic patrol.

Earl P. Driver, state inspector in charge of train crews, has completed a tour of his territory, which embraces most of the western states, for the purpose of making final arrangements for donning of the uniform. Earl Swift, inspector in charge of border guards, states that his men will be clothed in the new dress within two weeks.

DISTRIBUTE 30 TONS OF POISON IN RODENT WAR

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 7.—Thirty tons of prepared poison baits for rodents have been distributed by the California department of agriculture, co-operating with the United States biological survey and county agricultural commissioners, in a campaign of eradication against ground squirrels, gophers and rats, the combined gnawing of which causes more than $35,000,000 worth of damage to the property of California citizens each year, according to a statement by Joseph Keyes, of the United States biological survey, issued from the state capitol this morning.

Of all the rodents, says Keyes, ground squirrels are the greatest menace to property values in this state. They gnaw at roots, stems and seeds of thousands of range and forage plants as well as field and fruit crops. Losses directly attributed to this pest by Mr. Keyes amount to not less than $20,000,000 annually, Gophers work everywhere but principally in home orchards, gardens and lawns, and their maintenance costs property owners in this state well over $10,000,000 each year. Rats, the well known plague carrier of the ages, which infests homes, warehouses, fields and gardens, cause losses in excess of $5,000,000 annually.

Organized procedure is rapidly displacing individual efforts in combatting these pests, Keyes said, and local campaigns are being correlated with country wide programs. The campaigns within the state are centered in the office of the county agricultural commissioner, who is provided with trained personnel to carry out best methods and poisons in accordance with rodent control laws.

MAIZE HARVESTED IN IMPERIAL VALLEY

BRAWLEY, Dec. 7.—Milo maize, now at the peak of harvest, yielded $504,800 from 580 cars last year. There is not such a great acreage this year and the price is not so good, but with the market quotation of $29 a ton there is a margin of profit for the rancher if he has a fair stand.

Milo is the substitute for corn and has good feeding qualities. The result is that much of it is used in Imperial valley.

Pink Boll Worm Found In Cotton Fields Of Arizona

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 7.—Serious infestations of the pink boll worm in Arizona cotton fields is reported by A. C. Fleury, chief quarantine inspector in the state department of agriculture.

Fleury has returned from a trip to that state in which he visited all the infested areas.

"More than 16,000 of the 140,000 acres planted to cotton in Arizona are infested by the worm," he declared.

"It is a heavy blight, for at least 80 per cent of the 16,000 acres are alive with the pests. The federal government has started an active eradication campaign and hopes to restrict it to this area."

LETTUCE SHIPMENT MADE BY VALLEY

BRAWLEY, Dec. 7.—Imperial valley's first car of lettuce left last week.

Among the vegetable growers of Imperial valley there are two noteworthy days—the day the first car of lettuce is shipped each December and the day the first car of cantaloupes is shipped each May. A few years ago lettuce rarely left Imperial valley before December 20 to 25, but with more efficient methods and greater knowledge the growers have steadily advanced the date until now every eastern city may have a crisp head of New York or Iceberg lettuce from Imperial valley on its Christmas dinner table.

Last year the total acreage of lettuce was 23,633, which produced 12,286 cars at an estimated value of $10,252,689. This year the total acreage is 38,252, but because of poor stands from the earlier planting the yield of a half car to the acre is not likely to be maintained. It is entirely too early to predict the output, but it will be somewhere between 15,000 and 18,000 carloads, unless bad weather in the east crimps the market.

$5,085,000 PAID FOR VALLEY CATTLE

BRAWLEY, Dec. 7.—According to estimates of county officials there were 55,000 head of cattle in the last 12 months and they shipped from Imperial valley withbrought approximately $5,085,000. At present there are thousands being brought in from Idaho, Utah, Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. They will stay here about three months, many not so long, and then be shipped to market.

Because of the abundance of green feed in Imperial valley in winter, cattle men find handling "feeders" a most profitable venture if they can be bought right. Alfalfa is, of course, green throughout the winter, while barley will be ready for pasturing in another three or four weeks and the acreage will steadily increase thereafter until it is necessary to take the cattle off to allow it to head out for the May and June harvest.

Color Of Fruit Factor On Sales

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 7.—Color has been found to be the most important single quality factor in the sale of American fruit, according to F. G. Robb of the bureau of agricultural economics, U. S. department of agriculture, citing the results of 12 years of farm products inspection service by the federal bureau. Other quality factors include size, maturity and defects due to insect injury, disease, improper packing and rough handling,

Although there has been a marked improvement in recent years in the quality and condition of American fruits on domestic markets, there is still too large a quantity of poor products which have a depressing effect on the general level of fruit prices, Mr. Robb says. The poor quality and condition of this fruit is the result of inefficiency in growing, harvesting, packing and shipping, he says.

CALIFORNIA'S SNOW SURVEY STARTED SOON

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(Special to The Register)

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 7.—How much water in a snowflake?

Sounds like a foolish question, doesn't it? Yet nothing more serious has ever attempted for the farmers of California by the state—particularly in view of the recent long period of drought.

Virtually every river and stream in California, including those in Orange county, will be affected by the forthcoming snow survey, for which the 1929 legislature appropriated the sum of $30,000.

Moreover, the survey has an important bearing on the proposed $358,000,000 co-ordinated water program for California, according to Harlow M. Stafford, hydraulic engineer of the state division of water resources.

"Looking into the not distant future," said Harlow, "under plans for statewide co-ordinated use of water, a single reservoir or group of reservoirs on one stream may be required to co-ordinate as many as seven conflicting uses of water.

"These include irrigation, power, flood control, municipal, navigation, salinity control and hydraulic mining. It will be seen that the benefits to be derived from an adequate system of statewide snow surveys and runoff predictions are not confined to the immediate practical or local uses by power companies, irrigation districts, municipal districts, etc.

"The broader necessity is for such information to guids the use of water from year to year over large areas such as the entire length of the Sacramento, San Joaquin and Kings rivers."

In order to arrive at definite figures on snowfall, a number of "snow courses" are to be determined in each basin or region of the state. The snow will be measured by campling apparatus, and from this data will be determined the relation of the seasonal snow cover of thebasin to its normal. The surveyors will rely upon the fact that the large storms furnishing the bulk of winter snows are comparatively uniform in intensity over considerable areas. Therefore it is possible to select a few snow survey courses in various parts of a stream's basin and figure out the season's percentage of snow for the entire basin.

Tramping around in snowshoes, the surveyors will make their measurements in large hollow steel tubes, made up in five-foot sections. On the outside of the tube the depth is graded by inches. Slots are cut in the tube to observe the core inside. When the measurement is taken, snow and tube are weighed together.

"Plans call for one complete survey of all courses about April 1 of each year," said Harlow. "At selected stations, however, the survey will be conducted monthly."

PRODUCTION GROWS

During the past five or six years the increase in potatoe production per acre has become more noticeable. According to Dr. William Stewart, of the U. S. department of agriculture, the average potato production per acre in 1868 was about 94 bushels. In 1922 this average had increased only 4 bushels. From that year until the present, however, the acreage has increased to nearly 114 bushels an acre.

CITRUS PLANT AT CAPISTRANO RETURNS $689

Assistant Farm Advisor

The 4-H club was highly successful. A total income of $9305.95 was made by the 189 boys and four girls who successfully completed their projects. Their costs were $5532.94, which left them a total profit of $3773.01. Thirteen projects were involved, including practically every phase of agriculture of importance to Orange county, from citrus nursery to flowers and bulbs.

The market gardening project had the largest number of boys enrolled and completed, with poultry brooding a close second and rabbit raising third. Citrus nursery proved to be the most profitable project, with the dairy calf project second and vegetable gardening third.

The most successful project financially was Henry Stewart's citrus nursery at San Juan Capistrano, which brought in a profit of $869. The second best was "Bill" P. W. Rosenbaum's vegetable gardening project, also in San Juan Capistrano, which produced a profit of $578.06. The third best project was Roy Waer's calf raising, which netted him a profit of $490.28.

The girls devoted themselves to landscape gardening and flower raising. The latter was most profitable; one of the girls, Aileen Case, of San Juan Capistrano, making a profit of $25.20.

The only project showing a loss was landscape gardening. However, the great improvement in the handling of this subject during the year, and the ethical value of the work more than justifies the continuation of the project.

CALAVO GROWERS RECEIVE $50,000

Refund checks to the amount of $50,000 have been mailed by the Calavo Growers of California to members who delivered fruit to the co-operative marketing exchange during the year from Oct. 1, 1928, to Sept. 30, 1929. This is believed to be unprecedented in any co-operative organization so newly launched and having to meet the problem of marketing a relatively unknown product.

The refund was made at the rate of 40 cents per flat of approximately 13 pounds, and for those growers who were fortunate enough to have a comparatively large production the past year, the check assumed quite generous proportions. Several growers, for example, who own five-acre calavo plantings, received a refund check for about $1500 each.

Members Of Farm Board and Cotton Growers To Meet

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 7.—Representatives of the state co-operative cotton growers associations which are members of the American Cotton Growers' exchange, will meet with members of the federal farm board in Memphis, Tenn., December 10 and 11 to discuss plans for the future of co-operative marketing of cotton.

The farm board will be represented at this conference by Chairman Legge, Mr. Williams and perhaps other members.

NEW COTTON LOAN

The Georgia Cotton Grower Co-operative association of Atlanta, is the latest farm organization to be granted a loan by the federal farm board. A commodity loan was extended, supplementing one already extended by the Federal Intermediate Credit bank. The maximum of the loan is $750,000.

Air Salute Marks Goodrich Tire Service Opening

is establishing in California for rendering of special service to users of products of the Goodrich Tire and Rubber company. Two other such super-service stations are operated in the county, he pointed out, and he stated that Goodrich products are constantly gaining favor among motorists, as evidenced by the increasing quantity production of the big manufacturing concern.

Tonight, at 7:30 o'clock, there will be a free distribution of batteries, tires, tubes, radio cushions and other gifts, under a plan arranged by the management, Anderson said.

"Speed will be the spirit of the new station and an expert crew of workman equipped with the most modern devices will make it possible for us to make good on our promise to give both speedy and efficient service to patrons," the manager said. "We might properly term our place a regular department store of automotive service.

We will merchandise only the best stocks in the line we will carry. Affiliated as we are with the great Goodrich organization, we will be able to conduct our business more efficiently and economically and to pass on to the customer the economies of organized service. The Goodrich name is back of every product we sell or service.

"The time for wet weather is upon us, and it should remind motorists that tires with treads worn smooth are a danger on wet and slippery pavements. The Goodrich Silvertown de luxe—the tire that is built to outlast your car—with sharp treads is the ideal 'shoe' for automobiles at this season of the year."

Extending an invitation to the general public to join in the frolic scheduled for the new station tonight, Anderson said that in addition to other features already indicated, a program of music would be offered by the Joe Sanford orchestra between 5:30 and 8 p. m.

Friends of Anderson, commenting on the fact that Anderson has been placed at the head of the local station, pointed out that the manager came here seven years ago as th representative of the National Cash Register company. They pointed out that he did so well for his company here that it wanted to promote him to a larger field and that he resigned when the company insisted that he go to Ogden, Utah, as its representative. His three years with the Goodrich company as district representative in Orange county has culminated in his appointment to the important positoon of manager of the new station.

CADILLAC CARS LEAD WAY OVER NEWEST BRIDGE

Following the example of Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac, founder of Detroit, who more than two hundred years ago was the first white man to cross the Detroit river between what are now the United States and Canada, a fleet of forty Cadillac cars made the first official crossing between these two countries Armistice day at the dedication of the new international Ambassador Bridge at Detroit. As Cadillac, the man, served to settle this section, so Cadillac cars served to bring about the first intermingling of the people of the two great nations on the new bridge.

"The Ambassador bridge is the longest suspension bridge in the world," says Otto Haan, of the Cadillac Company Garage. "Its free span is 1850 feet long, 100 feet longer than that of the hitherto longest span in the world on the Delaware river bridge connecting Philadelphia and Camden. It is 255 feet longer than the Brooklyn bridge and 218 feet longer than the span of the Bear Mountain bridge across the Hudson."

PLATT ANNOUNCES CHRISTMAS OFFER

In co-operation with the Santa Ana business men's Christmas features of downtown decorating and gift distribution, the Platt Auto Service at Third and Bush streets today announced its annual Christmas feature for patrons of the station. Large size "steelcraft" tri-motored airplanes will be offered, the announcement said.

These airplanes, according to the announcement, will be distributed to patrons of the station and to children. They will be obtainable, starting today, until December 24. To avoid promiscuous and unqualified distribution, priviledge certificates will be issued with each purchase of merchandise or service at the station, and with the accumulation of a sufficient number of the certificates and their presentation at the station, the airplane will be given in exchange. George Platt, owner, pointed out. Sufficient airplanes have been purchased to supply all Platt Auto Service patrons, Platt said.

INDEPENDENT TIRE DEALER IS ESSENTIAL

The chain-store system, as far as it applies to the sale of commodities that should be accompanied by service, has proved to be inadequate, it is asserted by W. O'Neil, president of the General Tire and Rubber company in a signed statement just received by Jess Goodman, distributor for the company here.

President O'Neil declared that independent dealers, who can supply necessary service, are essential for the most successful merchandising of automobile tires.

"An automobile tire is a technical thing," he pointed out. "The local agent must have knowledge of engineering to do a real job.

"Varied conditions prevail over the country. The right size tire must be sold. Wheels must be aligned. There are different types of tires for different services. A tire can be given too little or too much air pressure.

"We are satisfied that we are producing the best tire but it must be treated right, put on right, and given the best chance to reveal its supremacy. The dealer should see to it that the purchaser gets the kind of tire he ought to have.

"This naturally leads to the proposition that the independent dealer is the most desirable. He has pride in his business. He exemplifies the spirit of America, the land of opportunity."

Different colors affect us differently. The red and orange end of the spectrum is decidedly the most pleasurable, and the central colors, greens and blues, are least so. Red is the pungent and stimulating color, while green is restful.

IDEAL TRUCK FEATURES ARE FOUND IN REO

Recently fourteen prominent engineers, acting as a committee for the Pacific Coast section of the Society of Automotive Engineers, agreed upon nine features most important in a modern commercial vehicle, according to Joe Finley, local dealer for the Reo Motor Car company of California.

"These recommendations, the fruit of millions upon millions of miles of experience in the scientific operation of commercial vehicles in the west, were made by men entrusted with the management of huge truck fleets, and consequently represent not mere theory but proven facts," Finley declared.

"It is interesting to note that the Reo speed wagon justifies commercial vehicles in the west, were made by men entrusted with the management of huge truck fleets, and consequently represent not mere theory but proven facts," Finley declared.

"It is interesting to note that the Reo speed wagon justifies completely its reputation as the ideal commercial vehicle, by qualifying almost point by point with the committee's specifications.

"First, they wanted more powerful brakes. Speed wagons are equipped with powerful 4-wheel internal expanding hydraulic brakes, with wide shoes and extremely large drums.

"Second, they wanted higher road speeds. Reo has been traditionally the leader in high speed and profitable commercial haulage.

"Third, they wanted pneumatic tires for rtucks. Speed Wagons were first to use pneumatics as standard equipment.

"Fourth, they wanted a deeper frame made of heat treated steel. The heat treatment of steel for frames in an engineering problem not yet satisfactorily solved, however, and carbon steel as used by Reo is claimed by frame manufacturers to be superior.

"They wanted a more accessible power plant. The Gold Crown engine leads the field in accessibility.

"They wanted a reduction in unsprung weight. Reo offers fewer pounds of unsprung weight per pound of pay load than any other truck.

"They wanted a magazine oiling system. Reo was the first to adopt the Meyers system, automatic in action, replenished with a gun.

"They wanted full pressure lubrication to all working parts. The Gold Crown engine lubricating system is probably superior to anything else on the commercial vehicle market.

RADIO WILL BE EQUIPMENT ON CHRYSLER CARS

Walter P. Chrysler has announced the completion of plans, after months of extensive tests and research, for installation of radio receiving equipment in Chrysler cars, according to O. A. Haley, distributor.

"Designed and engineered as an integral part of the car itself, the installation will provide radio receiving facilities at the owner's option on closed models of the Chrysler 77 and 70 lines," Haley said.

"According to Mr. Chrysler, the decision to include radio equipment as an integral unit in automobile manufacturing came as a result of a nation-wide survey, instituted months ago, that led conclusively to the fact that radio has so entrenched itself as a necessity of modern life that it can no longer be ignored as a factor of desirability in motor car equipment.

CHEVROLET IS PRIZE WINNER IN 1930 SHOW

Tribute to its leadership as an automobile producer is again paid the Chevrolet Motor company in the announcement by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, that Chevrolet has again been awarded first place as the 1930 national automobile shows, it was announced here today by B. J. MacMullen, dealer.

"The award is given annually to the member company doing the largest annual volume of business, and is one of the most coveted honors that the automobile industry can bestow on an individual automobile manufacturer," MacMullen said.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 7.—Color has been found to be the most important single quality factor in the sale of American fruit, according to F. G. Robb of the bureau of agricultural economics, U. S. department of agriculture, citing the results of 12 years of farm products inspection service by the federal bureau. Other quality factors include size, maturity and defects due to insect injury, disease, improper packing and rough handling.

Although there has been a marked improvement in recent years in the quality and condition of American fruits on domestic markets, there is still too large a quantity of poor products which have a depressing effect on the general level of fruit prices, Mr. Robb says. The poor quality and condition of this fruit is the result of inefficiency in growing, harvesting, packing and shipping, he says.

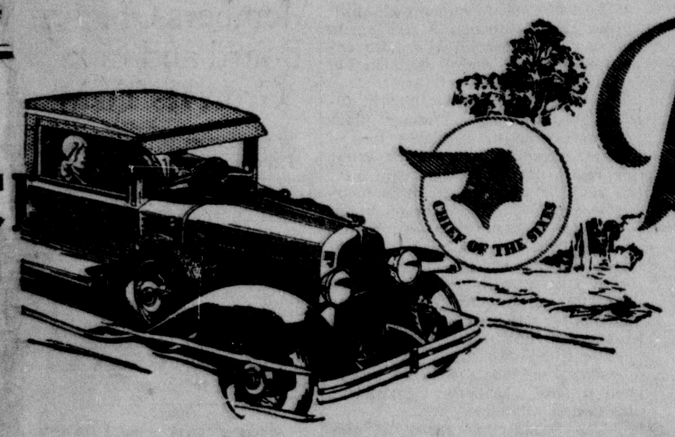
The one automobile under $1000 with all these Big Car ADVANTAGES



PROMISE yourself now that you will see the Pontiac Big Six and investigate its innumerable big car advantages before buying any automobile within its price range. For the Pontiac Big Six is the only car in the world, selling for less than $1000, which combines all these advantages. They are derived from a multitude of advanced design features—some of which are listed at the right. Good reading, indeed, for every car owner—but only inspection and demonstration can disclose their true significance—and reveal to you how much extra motoring satisfaction they give you and what they mean in terms of—

Big Car Power Sixty brake horsepower developed at 3000 r.p.m.—the highest power to be found in any low-priced six—produced at moderate engine speed which means longer life.

Big Car Speed The highest top speed to be found in any six so low in price—proved by the "fifth wheel," most accurate of all speed measuring devices.

Big Car Safety In its non-squeak, dirt-and-weather-proof internal-expanding four-wheel service brakes—its hardwood and steel body construction—its full tread axles, front and rear.

Many other big car advantages are provided by the Pontiac Big Six. Come in and let us tell you what they are. Bring your present car for appraisal, too, and hear about our liberal plan of purchase. You will be amazed when you learn how small are the monthly payments required to buy the Pontiac Big Six.

No car listing for less than $1000 offers advancements to compare with these

2. The Harmonic Balancer.
3. The G-M-R cylinder head.
4. The cross-flow radiator.
5. Automatic temperature control.
6. Fully counter-weighted crankshaft.
7. Airplane type interchangeable bronze-backed main bearings.
8. A 1¼-inch carburetor including an internal economizer and an accelerating pump.
9. A gasoline pump.
10. Expansion-type piston pins.
11. Full-pressure lubrication.
12. Crankcase ventilating system.
13. Internal-expanding four-wheel service brakes of the most efficient type.
14. Special moulded, non-squeak brake bands.
15. Specially designed bodies by Fisher.
16. Flaring fenders—70 inches across.
17. Unusually high radiator of distinctive design.
18. A variety of popular colors.

NEW QUARTERS PLANNED FOR ORANGE ELKS

ORANGE, Dec. 7.—Improvements which are expected to total about $3,000 will be made on the K. E. Watson building, the second floor of which is to be remodeled for quarters for the Elks lodge.

Members of the lodge have taken a five-year lease on the second floor of the building, having outgrown the present clubrooms in the Smith building on South Glassell street.

G. Newton Richards, of Santa Ana, has submitted tentative plans to the lodge for the remodeling program. By these plans, a 35 by 64 foot lodge room, a card room, reading rooms, billiard and concession rooms will be established. It is planned to lay a hardwood floor in the lodge room so that it may be used for dancing.

There will be about 5,260 feet of floor space in the new clubrooms. It is expected that the new quarters will be ready by the first of February.

The lodge was organized six years ago with 50 members. It now has 208 members.

Stanley Mansur is chairman of the committee in charge of the remodeling program and acting with him are A. R. Todhunter and Ed Bula.

Highway Cafe In Spanish Village Being Remodeled

SAN CLEMENTE, Dec. 7.—The Blue Lantern cafe, located on the state highway one block south of Del Mar, is being remodeled at a cost of $6,000. A. H. Neale is proprietor.

Four windows have been cut into the building. A fountain costing $3,000 is being installed. New lighting fixtures are being added to the interior.

In the kitchen a new ice machine system costing $1,000 has been installed. Everything in the kitchen except the stove will be new. Neale states he will have on of the most up-to-date cafes in Southern California.

Anaheim Enjoys Gain In Building

ANAHEIM, Dec. 7.—According to R. Nyboe, inspector, Anaheim has experienced an increase in building of $28,456 to date over the amount on the corresponding date last year.

The eleven-month total stands at $412,050, while last year it was $383,594.

The total valuation of $33,245 for November, 1929, included permits for seven residences as well as many small buildings, alterations and additions.

St. Paul's Cathedral, London, is said to have been built without an oath being uttered.

TALBERT, Dec. 7.—The former Goldsmith holdings have been purchased by Allen and Ernest Gisler, who paid $69,750 for the 155 acres of land, or at the rate of $450 per acre. The deal was made with a Los Angeles corporation, which reserved five acres for water rights.

The ranch has been leased by them the past three years and this year they raised a fine lima bean crop on it.

The land is located near the Santa Ana river. The buildings on the ranch are being moved by the new owners from their present location in the fields onto the road and Ernest Gisler will reside on the place.

L. A. REALTOR WILL SPEAK IN PHOENIX

Thomas D. Campbell, realtor of Los Angeles and Hardin, Mont., will address delegates to the annual business meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, to be held in Phoenix, Ariz. January 22 to 24, on "Industrial Opportunities in Agriculture." Mr. Campbell was recently appointed a member of the executive committee of the American Engineering council, an organization with representatives from all engineering fields—civil, mechanical, mining, agriculture, and consulting—of which Herbert Hoover was president in 1921. Mr. Campbell has just been asked by the Russian government to superintend certain agricultural experiments which it proposes to undertake.

The Tucson, Ariz., Real Estate board has voted to co-operate with the Phoenix Real Estate board in any way in which the Tucson realtors can be helpful in furthering the work of the Phoenix Real Estate board in preparation for the National association's meeting.

NEW WELL SLATED IN FIELD AT H. B.

Oil field operations reported to State Oil and Gas Supervisor R. D. Bhus during the week show 17 new wells started, as compared with 15 during the previous week. Of the 17 notices to drill filed, there was one each in the Huntington Beach, Long Beach and Santa Fe Springs fields; two in Ventura county, one in the Elwood field, one in the Moody Gulch field, one in the Summerland field, three in Santa Barbara county and six in the fields of Kern county. The total new wells this year is 1198, as compared with 1124 at the same date last year. The new Huntington Beach well is the Standard Oil company's Thompson No. 11.

Abandonments numbered nine, as compared with five during the previous week. The total to date this year is 468; total to same date last year, 516.

Color Harmony Booklet Issued

People are much more color conscious than they used to be according to Miss Betty Holmes, director home beautiful department, Bass-Hueter paint company. And while she thinks this true, Miss Holmes qualifies it by saying, "But though they are color conscious, it isn't so easy to be color wise—which you will admit is very different."

There is, however, a way to be sure that color performs its proper function. "It's all a matter of knowing a few simple rules of color harmony," says Miss Holmes. "Many rooms full of color, yet lack charm and comfort. Other rooms equally alive with color are restful, inviting, homelike, altogether charming."

Very often women are afraid to use color in the wholesale way that is the present vogue.

"Don't be afraid," she says, "Not only to choose vivid color and to use it splashingly, but don't be afraid to take a paint can and brush in your hand and 'go to it' yourself.

"It is great fun to create, especially when the effect achieved is in loveliess all out of proportion to the effort."

Miss Holmes has written a booklet, "The Key to Color Harmony," published by the Bass-Hueter Paint company—which will show how to harmonize your color schemes unfailingly.

$20,000 Saved By Fruit Group By Erection of Pre-Cooling Plant

The pre-cooling plant of the Anaheim Co-operative Orange association is the latest unit to be added to that Mutual Orange Distributors' organization. In its first season, according to H. W. Pierce, manager of the Anaheim house, the pre-cooler showed a saving of at least $20,000 to the affiliated growers.

The plant has a capacity of 60 carloads of fruit. It was built by Hamm, Grant & Bruner, architects and engineers, and cost $73,000, completely equipped.

Seven hundred carloads of fruit were pre-cooled in it during the first season, with a consequent saving, according to Pierce, of $40 the carload.

Investigation Of Realty Promises Association Plan

Promise of resale, high pressure tactics, promise of building program and putting in improvements and overselling by signing up an individual for more than he can pay for, were classified as major evils to be combatted at a meeting of the special committee on sales methods appointed by the California Real Estate association upon motion of its annual convention.

A statewide survey will be made, according to W. T. B. Campbell, prominent California realtor and former state treasurer of the association, who is chairman of the committee. Real estate boards and the state real estate department will be asked to furnish reports to aid the committee in its research.

LICENSE HELD NECESSARY FOR BUILDERS HERE

A legal opinion vitally affecting all general building contractors and sub-contractors in Santa Ana has been rendered by U. S. Webb, attorney general of California, in interpreting the contractors' license law passed by the last general assembly. The opinion stipulates that contractors operating without license have no status in court in claiming benefits of the mechanic's lien law.

The Orange County Builders' exchange is in receipt of a copy of the opinion, with the request that the information be broadcast as a part of the exchange in policing the contractors' license law.

Contractors desiring to procure licenses or information concerning the law can do so through the secretary of the exchange, whose offices are in the Builders' exchange building in Santa Ana.

4TH BIRTHDAY IS OBSERVED BY SAN CLEMENTE

SAN CLEMENTE, Dec. 7.—Citizens of San Clemente yesterday celebrated the fourth birthday of this Spanish village. Four years ago Ole Hanson and his sales force waited in the rain at the head of Del Mar and the state highway for prospective purchasers. And they came from all over Southern California.

Today San Clemente is a city of 1700 people with a city government, electric lights and a municipal water system. A sewer system is near completion as is the distributing system of the Southern Counties Gas Co. Where four years ago there was nothing but a mental picture of Ole Hanson's dream city, today there is a thriving community, one of the fastest, if not the fastest growing in Southern California.

San Clemente has an up-to-date business section, modern hospital, three hotels, apartment houses, social club, beach club, municipal pier and beaches. San Clemente has paved streets, bridle paths, trees and shrubbery. From rolling hills to ocean residences dot the landscape. Here the architectural plan of the city which finds all buildings white walled and roofed with red tile has left a picture that none who pass through the Spanish village ever forget.

USE WINTER FUMIGATION

RED Scale on the wood...hidden away in the obscure and protected places, unnoticed except by the most careful observer. This is a dangerous condition.

These are the individual insects that defeat any control program which does not include fumigation. Superficial examination of leaves and fruit are not fair indications of scale infestation or results of a treatment, because of the scale on the wood. A very small number is sure to mean a serious infestation within a few months if climatic conditions are favorable, because the rate of reproduction of this insect is so great.

Trained Entomologists, Officials and other unbiased observers agree that fumigation provides the only control method which gives assurance of results. When fumigating there are no protected or hidden places on the tree, because the gas penetrates everywhere under the tent.

The damage caused by Red Scale is too serious a matter to neglect because it not only reduces the grade of the fruit, but when plentiful will seriously affect the vigor and producing ability of the tree itself.

If you have failed to control Red Scale you can still do so because winter fumigation is practical and economical. Ask your fumigator to handle this problem at the proper time.

THE TINYMITES

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

On o'er the ice the Tinies sped, all clinging to the little sled. The elf was still up in the lead, his wings both flapping fast. It was a pleasant sight to see the Tinies bubbling o'er with glee. They liked the ride and wondered just how long 'twas going to last."

Then to the elf wee Scouty cried, "Please tell us more about this ride. You say we're bound for Santa's land. How far is that from here? And will there be much ice and snow away up where we're going to go? I hope that everything is safe and we have naught to fear."

"Don't worry," said the little elf. "If I am game to go myself you surely ought to be as brave and gladly go along. Naught but the best of things you'll find, so chase the fretting from your mind. I promise you quite faithfully that nothing will go wrong."

They shortly left the frozen stream. The trip was almost like a dream. Up o'er some banks of snow they went. Said Coppy, "This is great. It feels like real far north to me. I'll bet some wondrous things we'll see. Imagine meeting Santa Claus. Why, I can hardly wait."

Then Clowny cried out, "Hip, hurray! I see a great big entrance way. Some sign is spread across it! Whee! Our trip is not in vain. The sign says 'Santa's Toyland.' See? I'm just as happy as can be." And, sure enough, the sign was there. It stood out very plain.

The next thing that the Tinies knew some little elfs came running through the entranceway. They shouted loudly, "Welcome, Tinymites!" Then one exclaimed: "Hang on! Don't fall!" They picked the bunch up, sled and all, and started into Toyland which was filled with wondrous sights.

RULES

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't: TEE-TIN-PIE-PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.

2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.

3. The order of the letters cannot be changed.

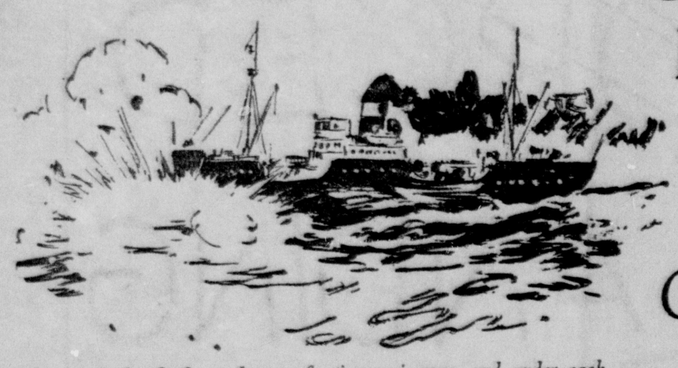
The Sea-Devil's Tales Of the Secret Service

Count Felix Von Luckner, "By-Joe," Hero of the German Mystery Ship And Commerce Raider "Seeadler" Spins Some Exciting New Yarns Of Dirty Work by the War Spies



We made hundreds of dummy floating periscopes, and under each one was a big mine. . . . "By Joe," we thought, "that will make the English skippers nervous about ramming submarines."

"Then one day she brought my lunch in a special pail. . . . It contained a powerful time bomb. . . . We could eat lunch in the ship's hold as usual, and the bomb could be put between the cargo and the side of the ship."

WHEN the war came on, then was the time for tricks, dirty tricks, by Joe. Everybody was trying to think of some clever way to do damage to the enemy.

There was plenty of straight open fighting and campaigning in the war, but there was also plenty of secret plotting, ruses and conspiracies to strike at the enemy somewhere, the place where he would least suspect, far behind the lines maybe, at home or in some neutral country.

I did some secret service for Germany, because I knew Norwegian like a native, and Norway was one of the most important neutral countries, where all kinds of spy work and underhand work was going on.

There was a small war on the side between the secret service forces of both parties, and it was a mean, bad war, by Joe. In the neutral countries of Scandinavia and Holland one important thing was this—we got from them many supplies that we absolutely had to have, most of which were transshipped by them from other countries, the United States, for instance; the British were trying their best to stop these streams of goods that were being diverted to us, and they did it by finding out what firms were buying supplies supposedly for themselves and then sending the material on to us.

Such firms were put on the black list, and thereafter all cargoes for them were stopped and held. The neutral people that were dealing with us were as secret as they could be, they did not want to get onto the black list. The British spy system had an army of agents who turned in information for filling up the black list.

These agents were doing a lot to stop necessary materials from reaching us. Our own spy system put out agents to fight the British agents, and so it was war between the two secret service forces in the neutral countries north of Germany. It was war to the knife, because one of the best ways to stop a secret agent's work is to kill him.

SUPPOSE the German agent finds a British agent getting important information for the black list. Well, one mealtime the British agent is in a restaurant. His overcoat is hanging on a rack. The German agent comes in and hangs his overcoat beside that of the British agent. While doing this he manages to slip a fountain pen in the pocket of the British agent's overcoat.

After a while, maybe that night or the next day, the British agent finds the fountain pen. He looks at it. By Joe, that is a splendid pen, the best make. He opens it and at that moment there is a tremendous explosion—and the British agent has been removed.

The Russians had terrible tricks. They sent Bibles, wonderful German Testaments, into Germany to the Russian prisoners in the prison camps. The prisoners succeeded in passing the Bibles on to Russian secret service men outside.

They were beautiful books with soft leather covers, and inside there were pages, not of paper, but of guncotton. Each had a harmless-looking bookmark, but in reality it was connected with a mechanism in the binding, and when the string was pulled the intricate and delicate mechanism was set going and in half an hour it exploded the guncotton.

The Russian secret service men would get one of these Bibles into the possession of a man they wanted to kill. A Bible is the most innocent-appearing thing in the world, and you will take one without suspicion. The secret service men would have the string pulled and the mechanism working, and half an hour later, when the German had the book under his arm or in his pocket—bang, and he was blown to pieces.

"After a while he finds the fountain pen in his pocket. . . . He looks at it . . . opens it, at that moment there is an explosion. . . . The British agent has been removed."

In that way they killed one of our greatest war-time scientists, the man who invented the long-range gun that bombarded Paris. He was blown to pieces, and it is believed that he accepted one of those Bibles from a Russian agent and put it in his pocket.

I HAD a secret agent's assignment in Norway. I know the Norwegian language well enough to pass for a native. The British were short of ammunition, explosives. They needed saltpeter for the manufacture of gunpowder.

Our laboratory wizards had devised a way of taking nitrogen from the air and of manufacturing saltpeter. Somehow the British got that formula. In Norway there is much water power, a good place to put up factories for taking nitrogen out of the air. So the British had much of their saltpeter manufactured in Norway.

Shiploads went constantly to England. This was bad for us, because every shipload meant thousands of men killed. We of the secret service were ordered to do what damage we could do to this saltpeter trade. We got jobs in the dockyards where they were loading the saltpeter ships. I worked for weeks as a longshoreman, working hard, getting stuff aboard and stowing it in the holds of ships.

The Norwegians knew the Germans would try some tricks with those ships, and they were very careful. Every man was closely searched before he went to the docks. He was allowed to come in contact with nobody outside during the day, so that nothing dangerous could be passed to him.

Only his wife was allowed to see him, when she brought him his lunch, and then they were careful to see that she passed him nothing. But, by Joe, we found a way to get around that. I had with me in Norway a German girl who could pass for a Norwegian, and she was supposed to be my wife, and every day she brought me my lunch in the usual kind of a dinner pail that workingmen use.

Then one day she would bring my lunch in a special pail, which looked exactly like the other pail, but was a little different. The bottom of it was a flat disk that could be unscrewed, and this disk was a powerful time bomb.

We could eat our lunch in the hold of the ship in the usual way, and while the other men were eating or taking a nap I would unscrew the bomb, set it, and put it somewhere between the cargo and the side of the ship.

Pretty soon the ship would put to sea, and when she was well off the coast—bang! That bomb would blow a big hole in her side and she would begin to sink. The men would take to the boats and row to shore. Another ship gone, and the Norwegians and British would think she had been torpedoed by a submarine or had struck a mine. Nobody would guess that there had been any bomb trickery at the dock.

I HAD a secret agent's job in Sweden, and that was a cunning trick. I was near the Russian border, where they shipped supplies across into Russia. Among the supplies was much necessary lubricating oil for the Russian railroads.

We had devised in Germany a most tremendous kind of corrosive acid. It was so good for terrible tricks that after the war we destroyed all we had. I was one of the men ordered to get this stuff into the lubricating oil before it reached the Russian railroads.

There on the Finnish border the barrels were lined for loading on the Russian trains. At night I would go from one to another of these barrels. I had a drill that would make a very fine hole, too fine for the thick oil to leak through; too fine to be seen.

Through this I would inject a shot of this powerful corrosive. It was so strong that not very much was needed for a barrel of oil. Fine. The oil goes its way and soon is used to lubricate Russian cars and locomotives. By Joe, what's the matter, what's wrong? The cars and locomotives are out of business. The corrosive has eaten the metal axles and machinery, and ruined things completely. The Russian railway service carrying troops and ammunition to the front—well, it never was too well organized and now it is worse off than ever.

These were things I did or saw or heard about in the secret service, and they point out the fact that the wars are not merely fought in trenches and between fighting ships at sea. Much of the World War was fought in diabolical fashion behind the lines—dangerous, secret tricks behind the lines.

SOME of the trickiest things of the war took place in the campaigns of the submarines. There were all kinds of dodges on both sides. And that reminds me of the King of England's solid gold watches.

At the beginning of the war, when submarines were first becoming active, the British admiralty staff gave an order: "If a steamer sights a submarine it will immediately make full speed ram. The skipper of any merchant ship that rams a submarine will get a gold watch from the King."

Germany's Count Felix von Luckner . . . smooth, gentlemanly actor in a drama of rough stuff. . . . "It was war to the knife, because one of the best ways to stop a secret agent's work is to kill him."

Every sailor loves a gold watch, and the prospect of a fine gold watch from the King is enough to make almost any stout-hearted British sailor go full speed ahead and ram a dreadnaught or even a munition ship.

With us this gold watch business was different, or at any rate, it was for our submarines. It is an awful feeling for a submarine to get rammed. We thought, "By Joe, we will give those old steamship skippers something to make them happy." So we got up an awful trick. We made hundreds of dummy floating periscopes and under each one was a big mine.

"By Joe," we thought, "these will be something for those skippers to ram. They will be fine to take the place of those gold watches from the King. It will do us good. It will make the skippers nervous about ramming."

Submarines took the dummy periscopes and turned them loose in the North Sea. Now you see the old skipper on his bridge—a fat skipper with his red face and his cap pulled down over one eye. He is thinking, "By Joe, if I could only see a submarine and could have a chance to ram it and get a gold watch from the King."

Then, "By Joe, there's a periscope. Full speed ahead. I hope she doesn't dive before we ram her." And full speed ahead he goes.

"What a stupid submarine! He is not diving. We have him. He can't escape. We will surely ram him." And so the steamer rams—bang! The mine blows up and tears away the fore part of the ship. She begins to sink. The crew take to the boats. "Pull sailor, pull, pull for the shore."

The old skipper is happy. By Joe, he is happy. He lost his ship all right, but he still will get a gold watch from the King. Because he thinks he really has sunk a submarine. He thinks he hit a torpedo just as it was coming out of the tube, and that was what blew him up.

When they land they are heroes. Every man of the crew gets his share of the prize money and a good dinner. And the skipper gets a solid gold watch from the King. By Joe, he is happy.

NOW that business of sinking submarines and getting blown up at the same time kept on happening. One day five heroes came in, five skippers that had rammed submarines and been blown up. They called the King out of bed—five solid gold watches for five heroes.

The British navy men thought it was funny. They were no fools. They suspected something was wrong, and pretty soon discovered the trick.

And now it was known that those heroic skippers had rammed not submarines, but mines. But the skippers didn't believe it. They swore they had sunk submarines. And they kept the King of England's solid gold watches and were happy.

After that the British Admiralty gave the order that no steamer should ram a periscope until they saw that the periscope was diving. When we learned this then we thought, "By Joe, we'll let those skippers get some more gold watches." And we got up another awful trick.

We made a dummy that looked just like a periscope and conning tower when floating in the water. They had big mines on them too. We put these on decks of submarines, one to a U-boat, so that the submarines could turn them loose. And now the skipper is sailing along. "By Joe, there is a periscope, and, what the hell? He doesn't see us. He is coming to the surface. His conning tower is coming up. This time we will get a gold watch from the King."

The steamer rams—bang! The real submarine ran away from the vicinity after loosing the dummy conning tower, and there is nothing to ram but the mine.

By the time this happened a couple of times the British got tired of this ramming, getting blown up, gold watch business. They ordered the skippers to keep a close watch and not try any ramming unless they were perfectly sure. Also the King wasn't going to give any more gold watches. The skippers themselves were getting tired of this ramming, and after that the merchant steamers turned the other way when they saw a periscope, and left the ramming to the destroyers.

THE British had two buoys at the entrance of the Thames with lights to guide the passage of ships. They were hollow, and at intervals a man went to them, got into them and fixed the lights and replaced batteries.

We had an idea that we would like to have a lookout post at the mouth of the Thomas—a very convenient place, by Joe. So we fixed up a scheme. A submarine went at night to one of the buoys, opened it, and put a young officer in with a supply of provisions and with pillows on which to sleep.

Then the submarine laid a light cable back of our base at Zeebrugge, in Belgium. The officer in the buoy kept watch and reported everything by telephone. We had mine-laying submarines, and the British had to keep a mine-sweeping force busy all the time.

A convoy of ships would put out of the Thames. Mine sweepers would go out first and sweep for mines, and when the sweeping was over they would signal "All clear." The officer in the buoy would wait till the mine sweeping was completed and then he would signal to a mine-laying submarine which was lying in readiness. The submarine would go in and, while submerged, let loose a lot more mines in the water that had been swept.

Now the big convoy comes down—bang! One ship hits a mine and starts to sink. Instantly the signal is given, "Stop! Mines!" The squadron goes back. The commander of the mine sweepers gets hell, by Joe, and is told to go back and do a good job. And he goes back and sweeps and sweeps. Not a mine can possibly be there.

When he is through he reports that the passage is positively clear. Meanwhile, the officer in the buoy is signaling for more mines to be laid in the waters that had been so thoroughly swept. More mines are laid. The convoy comes down again—bang! And another ship is lost.

That kind of business went on until the British naval men, at first greatly puzzled, managed to figure out what had happened.

THE British fleet lay safely in harbor at Scapa Flow. The entrance was well protected, and our submarines would not get in to take torpedo shots at the big ships. But, by Joe, we cooked up an idea for getting some mines in.

Floating mines, you know, will drift with the tide, and if our submarines laid mines at the entrance, they would go drifting in. The only trouble was that they would drift a short distance and then would drift out. If the tide had always just continued going in, it would have been all right. However, we built some mines that had a good deal of intelligence.

They had clockwork mechanisms that made them work this way: they were set and dropped in at full low tide, and when the tide began to rise the mines drifted in. Six hours later the tide turned and began to run out. At this point the clockwork in the mines caused them to sink and lie at the bottom, where they would not drift. After six hours more, when the tide was beginning to rise again, the mines rose, too, and drifted in some more. In that way they worked their way into the great harbor where the British grand fleet lay at anchor.

One night—bang!—and a patrol boat hit a mine. How could mines be in the harbor? They thought it must be a submarine that had torpedoed the craft. Submarine in the harbor, by Joe. And the destroyers came charging, chasing all over the water for the supposed U-boat. Bang and then another bang, and a couple of destroyers were blown up. Then they began to suspect mines.

It was thus that the great British battleship Bulwark was blown up. We had expected to get a battleship or two, although the great craft were lying at anchor. You know how a ship swings at anchor with the tide. We hoped that some of our mines that sneaked their way in would cross the path of one of the British giants as she swung with the tide. And so the Bulwark went.

Aye, they played plenty of tricks during the war. These that I have described are not generally known. Some of them are not in the official accounts and are merely told in naval circles in Germany. But gradually now they are becoming a part of the rumor and legend of the Great War.

Science Follows the Ponies

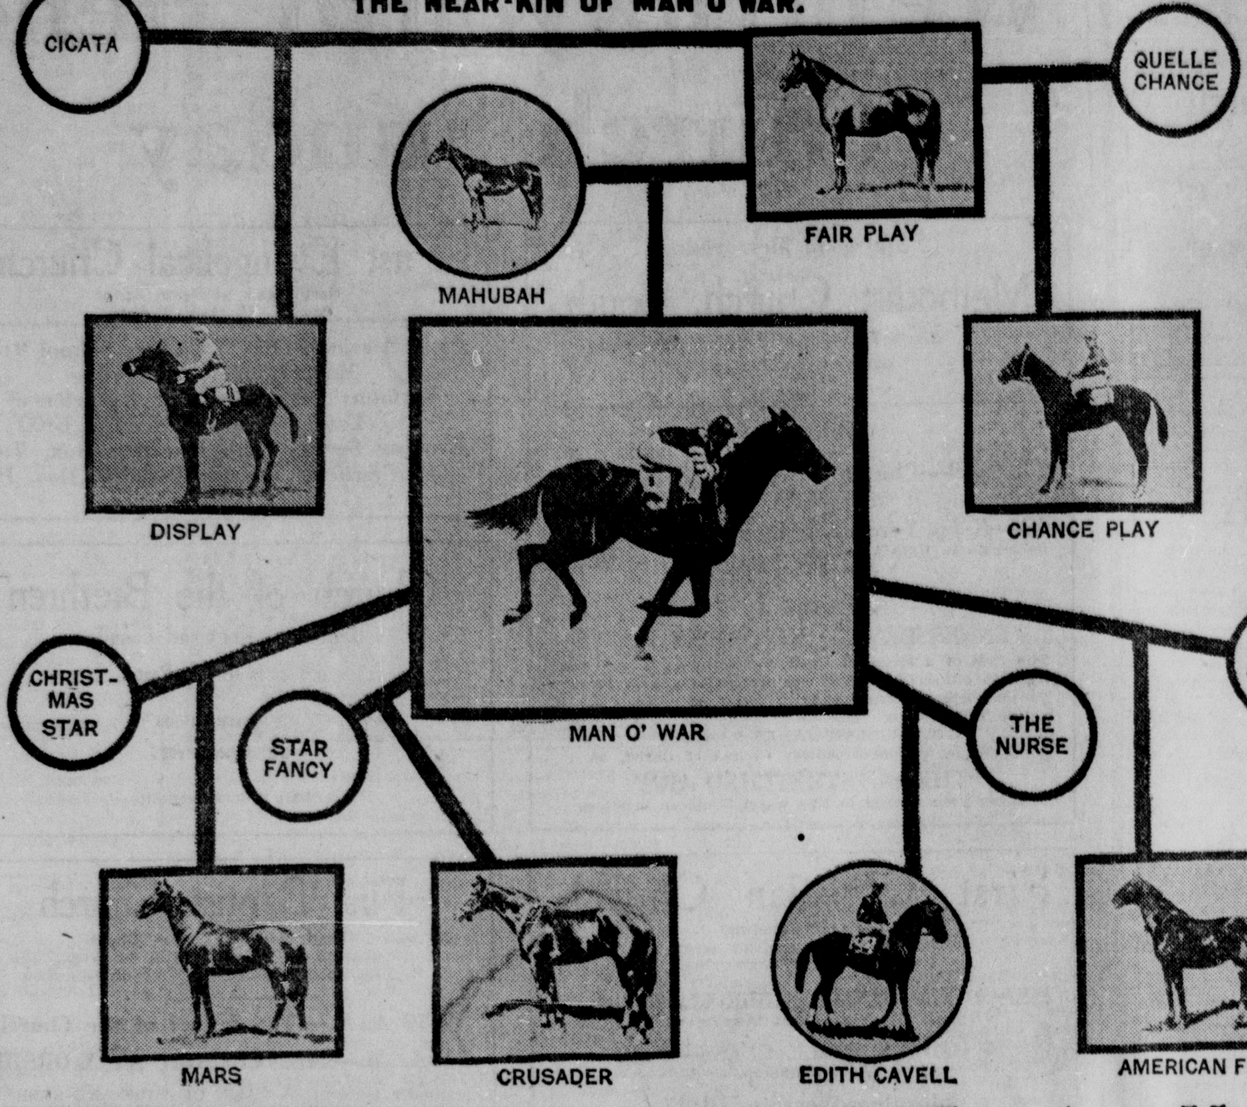
AN EXAMPLE OF THE INHERITANCE OF SUPERIOR RACING CAPACITY. THE NEAR-KIN OF MAN O'WAR.



The rectangles indicate stallions; the circles, mares . . . to show that Man o' War and his two half-brothers, sired by Fair Play, were all great racehorses . . . and that Man o' War sired four great colts out of four different mares. . . . The chart is striking proof of how superior racing capacity is inherited.

Surprising New Facts About Heredity And the Future of the Human Race Are Being Discovered From the Study Of How and Why Better and Faster Thoroughbred Racehorses Get That Way

By HELEN M. DAVIS

IN a quiet cove of the Long Island countryside, a group of scientists are following the races. Neither bookmakers nor horses are to be seen there, but form books there are in abundance, and no professional "bookie" pores over the results of the races with more absorbed interest than these learned men.

Not a cent is made—or wagered—in bets, for not the outcome of tomorrow's race, but the future of the human race accounts for their scientific interest in the performances of thoroughbreds.

Thanks to racing and the careful breeding of racehorses for decades, much more is known about the heredity of horses than of any other living thing on earth. This accounts for the fact that Dr. H. H. Laughlin and a group of associates have turned to the study of horses to help them solve the riddle of inherited traits—human as well as equine.

A racehorse's aim in life is simple. But the number of factors which go to make him a success may be nearly as great as in the case of a man. Dr. Laughlin and his corps of statisticians wants to know what these factors are and by what laws they are inherited.

The same laws will throw light on many puzzles of human life—why some win the race and some lose—why some need a special handicap and some are mud-larks, thriving on adversity. In the case of human beings, no one can evaluate his fellowman's achievements and failures. But in the case of the horse, all are agreed as to just what the race consists of, and the factors can be measured in the numerical form of pounds, seconds and furlongs.

DR. LAUGHLIN began in 1923 to study these questions:

Have the best stallions been consistently bred with the best mares, or have fashion and reputation played an undue part?

Has the type of inbreeding practiced been a definite factor in speed production?

What influence has the age of the sire, the age of the dam, the order of birth, and the interval between births played in speed production?

Can a near-kin index for speed be worked out, by which the probable sped of an animal may be predicted from the records of his relatives?

Files have been compiled on generations of racehorses which show up soundness, speed and endurance, and their opposites, inherited in all their combinations. The English thoroughbred horse and its descendants and relatives in Kentucky have furnished the answers to the questions the scientists asked, with the result that breeders thoroughly acquainted with the family records can count on a definite grade of performance from a hypothetical offspring of a given sire and dam.

OF course, practical horsemen have long claimed to be able to do this, but it is one thing to make a claim based on mixture of hunch and affection—and suffer frequent disappointments—and quite another to work out by mathematical equations that a certain unborn colt, on a definite type of track, will run so many furlongs in so many seconds, and find that, when he grows up, such is indeed his average speed.

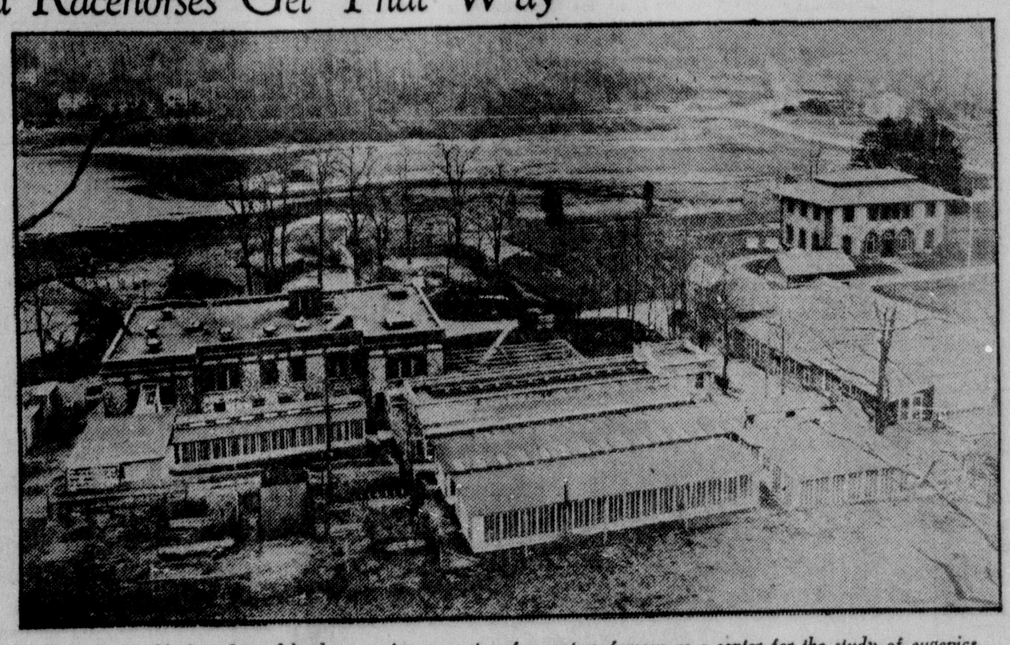
The "Q. P." or quality of performance for a given race by a given individual regardless of age, sex or condition is a valuable measure.

The Futurity Index and its relation to the Near-kin Index and the Breeding Index give the key to the new generation of racers. The distance-going ability, the weight-carrying ability, the ability in relation to age, the mud-running ability and the energy consumed in relation to speed are being studied and charted on elaborate graphs.

Professional horse breeders are naturally interested in the problem of breeding better and faster racehorses, regardless of the general biological problems involved, and the co-operation of Walter J. Salmon, well-known horseman, has made possible this program of research with the double goal of improving the American racehorse and extending the world's store of knowledge about the laws of heredity.

The alliance between the horse breeder and the research scientist is closer and of longer standing than the casual follower of the ponies might think. Stanford University this year celebrated the golden anniversary of a program of research inaugurated by its founder which has had much wider results than were expected to develop at the time.

Fifty years ago, the picturesque sportsman and philanthropist, Senator Leland Stanford, in his California home was encouraging a bewhiskered individual who rejoiced in the name of Eadweard Muybridge. At Stanford's suggestion, Mr. Muybridge was trying to use photography, a discouragingly messy process then, with its wet collodion plates, to settle the moot question as to the horse's best gait.



Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island . . . for a quarter of a century famous as a center for the study of eugenics and heredity. . . . Here Drs. Laughlin and Davenport are studying horses.

THE result of these photographic researches in 1872 was one of the early forms of the thing which finally evolved into the "movies." For Muybridge combined his pictures with a projection device to prove to the world that horses do not gallop in the way artists had imagined they did.

Of course, neither Muybridge's process nor the many others that were being experimented with, had much in common with the moving pictures of today. Photographic methods at that time were much too crude to suggest the possibilities of today's compact apparatus.

Muybridge in his "Descriptive Zoopraxography or the Science of Animal Locomotion," 20 years later described his entry into the field of horse photography.

"In the year 1872, while the author was engaged in his official duties as photographer of the United States government for the Pacific coast, there arose in the city of San Francisco one of those controversies upon Animal Locomotion, which has engaged the attention of mankind from the dawn of symbolical design, to the present era of reformation in the artistic expression of animal movements.

"The subject of this particular dispute was the possibility of a horse having all of his feet free of contact with the ground at the same instant, while trotting, even at a high rate of speed, and the disputants were Frederick MacCrellish and Leland Stanford.

"The attention of the author was directed to this controversy and he immediately sought the means for its settlement.

"AT this time the rapid dry plate had not yet been evolved from the laboratory of the chemist, and the problem was to develop a sufficiently intense and contrasted image upon a wet collodion plate, after an exposure of so brief a duration that a horse's foot moving with a velocity of more than 100 lineal feet in a second of time, should be photographed practically 'sharp.'

"A few days' experimenting and about a dozen negatives, with a celebrated fast trotter—'Occident'—as a model, while trotting at the rate of a mile in 2 minutes and 16 seconds, laterally in front of the camera, decided the argument for once and for all time in favor of those disputants who held the opinion that a horse while trotting was for a portion of his stride entirely free from contact with the ground. With a knowledge of the fact that some horses while trotting will make a stride of 20 feet or more in length, it is difficult to understand why there should ever have been any difference of opinion on the subject.

"THUS far the photographs had been made with a single camera, requiring a separate trotting for each exposure. The horse being of a dark color and the background white, the pictures were little better than silhouettes, and it was difficult to distinguish, except by inference, the right feet from the left.

"It then occurred to the author that if a number of cameras were placed in a line, and exposures effected successively in each, with regulated intervals of time or of distance, an analysis of one single step or stride could be obtained which would be of value both to the scientist and the artist.

"The practical application of this system of photographing required considerable time for its development, and much experimenting with chemicals and apparatus."

Muybridge's photographic apparatus bore little resemblance to the modern movie camera. It consisted of a battery of 24 cameras side by side. Strings stretching across the track were attached to the shutters and a picture was obtained each time a string was broken by the horse in passing. The strips of pictures at the top and bottom of this page are reproduced from originals secured by Muybridge in this way.

Having secured his pictures, Muybridge next devised the "Zoopraxiscope" to lend the illusion of movement to his series of "stills." As a "movie machine" it was very imperfect, but the press of the world rang with praise.

Much has happened to the horse in the years that have passed, but again the sport of kings has started Science on a new path of investigation, perhaps, a great deal more important than the one taken 50 years ago.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The Modern Good Samaritan: Who Is He?

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for December 8. The Modern Good Samaritan; Who Is He?—Matt. 25:31-46.

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist

The title of our lesson suggests the importance of reading in connection with it the story of the Good Samaritan, found in the tenth chapter of Luke.

It was the great characteristic of Jesus as a teacher that, while perhaps more than any other he laid the profound stress upon deep principles of action, enunciating and dominating motive of the good life, he put the emphasis at the same time supremely upon actual conduct, even bringing this emphasis into the realm of concrete deeds. He has set for the world a great example in the way in which he combined teaching with practice.

If one wishes to realize the importance of this, he need only contrast with it what has happening in the environment in which Jesus lived and what has happened in most instances in the world even in realms where the importance of teaching has been emphasized. The devout Jew of the age in which Jesus lived had over 600 categorical rules governing his life, and his religion was very largely a matter of intricate distinctions and speculations at the very opposite pole both in theory and in practice from the enunciation of the simple principle of love and the suggestion that this

A Much-Needed Lesson

Surely it is a lesson that the world of modern educators needs very much to learn. In our own age we see very largely a divorce of education from morality and goodness. The fact that a great college or university exists in a community is no guarantee of the purity and nobility of the community's life. The fact that a man is an alumnus of a college does not guarantee that he is a useful and profitable member of society. A man may know a great deal and yet be a very mean and selfish individual. He may in fact, make his knowledge chiefly a means of self-aggrandizement, and the learning that makes him a superman may make him a superrascal.

Jesus was speaking in our lesson to those who did not make profession of religion. They thought of themselves as the chosen of God. They were proud of their religious privlege and situation. Jesus challenged this pride. He asked them plainly what their religion meant. What was the use of religion that professed devotion to God but allowed people to go naked and hungry, unhoused and desolate? In the great figure that he presents of the King coming in judgment, the judgments are pronounced not in relation to what people professed but in relation to their actual needs.

There is, however, a phase of this emphasis of Jesus upon practical conduct which needs, also, to be grasped very clearly. No one was more subject to the scorn and reprobation of Jesus than those who made their acts of professed charity an occasion of pride and self-satisfaction. There is a type of man whose professed benevolence is very largely a form of self-gratification and of pride. The good deed in the conception of Jesus is determined not only by its outward quality and aspect but by the spirit in which it is done.

Those whom Jesus commended for their care of the needy revealed the inner quality of their characters in their surprise that the King should have found them worthy. They were conscious of having done nothing more than they ought to have done; in fact, there was in them the appalling sense that they had done so little to meet the great needs of their fellow men. It is only where the true spirit goes with the deed that goodness comes to its full fruition and expression.

Most readers will recognize the passage in our lesson as largely in the nature of a figure or parable, but this parabolic form need not lead to less emphasis upon the fact that human destiny is associated with these characters and acts of good or evil. The way of life is the way of service and helpfulness. The way of death is the way of selfishness and pride. We can see how true this is in the life of mankind. It is the deeds of mercy and of unselfishness that conserve and upbuild society. It is the lives of thoughtlessness and selfishness and disregard for the deeds of one's fellow men that destroy and break down society; and what is true of society is true, also, of the individual. We cannot see all these destinies always so clearly marked. We see the wicked prospering and "spreading himself like a green bay tree," but to the eye that looks deeper the destinies are none the less marked. We choose our way in life with goals that lead inevitably to heaven or to hell, and no matter what the changed form or conception of heaven or hell may be they still represent for all thoughtful men goals and destinies of glory and triumph or of defeat, degradation, and despair.

Permanent and secure peace must rest upon a foundation of understanding and friendly relationships. Such a foundation can only be built by the gradual process of education.

One significant gathering held in England last summer should have a far reaching influence for the cause of peace. Fifty thousand Boy Scouts from nearly fifty countries participated in a world jamboree. When these 50,000 boys were getting ready to break camp, their chief spoke the following words:

"From now on the Scout symbol of peace is a golden arrow. From the northlands, southlands, eastlands and westlands you came at the call of my horn to this gathering. Today I send you back as my ambassadors of peace to the nations of the world."

Helping Neighbors in Need, Matthew 25:31-46 for Sunday, December 8.

1. How reconcile the punishment of the wicked with God's love?
2. What evidences are there that God's judgment is now operative?
3. What effect has the consciousness of one's goodness on the real merit of character?
4. What will be the principle of separation in the day of judgment?
5. How can we be good neighbors?
6. What modern inventions have multiplied our neighbors and what is their effect on moral obligations to others?

Lesson prayer. "Help us realize the fact and meaning of the great judgment day where we shall appear with our real record and our true self as it was lived on earth."

"HOME, SWEET HOME"

Just back of the cottage in which John Howard Payne wrote that immortal song, stands a church. Though just a coincidence, how very fitting that this should be true. The kindred ideals as nourished in church and home are truly the source of our national greatness.

May we be of service to you in planning that "home, sweet home" of your own?

Eleven years after the guns stopped booming a world-traveler told me the other day which country, in his opinion, won the world conflict. Those of us who were engaged in that struggle eleven years ago were not certain then which nation was victorious and many of us are less certain today. Indeed there is a growing feeling that the war was not won by any of the fighting units, no matter what the treaty of Versailles set forth in written declaration. Millions of careful and thoughtful people are convinced that the whole dreadful affair was a horrible shamble and a total loss.

The years just past have done much to cover the scars in Flanders fields. In that time many terrible hurt bodies have been partially restored or have found cessation of pain in death. Some far-reaching adjustments have been made among peoples but social, economic and spiritual wounds heal slowly and not without great pain.

With the signing of the armistice the struggle shifted from muddy fields, murky skies and unfathomed deeps to the eternal plans of mind and heart. We have been trying to convert brute forces into spiritual powers and that is exceedingly difficult. The world cannot think for years in hateful terms, work feverishly on engines of destruction, train men to kill, and then overnight regain a calm composure and prayer meeting attitude.

The greatest cost of our last war was not in lives lost, property destroyed, heads uncrowned or great social and economic disasters. The price we are paying and will pay for centuries is found in the loss of human potentialities. We lost property, immeasurable treasure was trampled in the dust. That was bad. We lost men by the millions. That was worse. We created hatred, resentment and misunderstandings that will curse us for generations. That is an awful aftermath. But our greatest price which we must pay is the loss to the world in constructive, progressive and beneficent life which our dead might have made had they lived. Every nation is paying for that loss and while they must so pay it is doubtful if they have won anything.

MUSIC-LITERATURE-ART

HENRY PURCELL

By RUTH ANDREWS

With the strains of early English folk music still echoing in the memories of many local music lovers, following scheduled appearance of the noted English Singers sextette here last evening, it is both timely and appropriate to briefly touch upon events coloring the life of Henry Purcell, one of England's most lustrous composers of the early days, and upon whom the title of "Father of English Music" has deservedly been bestowed.

Born in London in 1658, Henry Purcell came of musical ancestry, his father a gentleman of the Chapel Royal, whose death unfortunately occurred before the lad had reached his sixth year. Soon after little Henry was admitted as a chorister to the Chapel Royal, and here became acquainted with Dr. John Blow, choral director, who took a great fancy to him.

While very young, Henry gave striking evidence of musical genius and began to compose little anthems, being encouraged heartily by Blow, who gave him his first training in composition.

Later, again through the influence of his friend Blow, young Purcell received an appointment as copyist at Westminster Abbey when but 18. When Blow resigned as organist at the Abbey four years later, Purcell was so fortunate as to succeed him in this important capacity, and thus at 22, was well started upon a successful musical career.

Purcell's youthful enthusiasm found expression now in prolific composition of anthems, songs and sonatas, and when but 24, he completed his opera "Dido and Aeneas," first performed privately. This was an eventful year for the young English composer, for he was also married at this time.

During the succeeding 15 years, Purcell's great activity brought forth many widely varied works which fall readily into three classifications, his church music, his theater music and his instrumental works.

Purcell's church music was developed in a newer style than that which had preceded it, and adhered to what is known as the Restoration type, with abundant passages for solos, duets and trios, while choral work is minimized. Many odes composed in honor of state and private celebrations are also credited to this versatile young artist.

Purcell seemed especially fitted for dramtic music, and some of his best works in this form include his well-known music to "The Tempest" (1690), "Dioclesian" (1690), the only opera printed during his lifetime, and "King Arthur" (1691), founded on a poem of Dryden and considered by many authorities to be Purcell's finest work.

However, it is perhaps due to his instrumental music that Purcell is best known today. In this form, his genius burns more uniformly, more evenly than in his other work, which in spite of moments of exaltation, often betrays weakness and lack of proportion. Although founded on Italian models, Purcell's string sonatas have a thoroughly English flavor and are still lauded highly.

During the latter part of his too-brief career, Purcell acted as conductor at the theater at Dorset Garden. His health had ever been frail and weakened by continual illness, late hours, and lack of rest, his death occurred November 21, 1695, at the early age of 37. He was later buried in Westminster Abbey, where today remains a tablet dedicated to his memory and talent.

Extremely modest in self-estimation of his own ability, Purcell's happy, spirited nature and serenity of character won for him countless friends throughout his lifetime. He was genial and gayety-loving, energetic and full of optimism.

As a composer, despite a marvelous inventive power, and a wealth of excellent ideas, Purcell was handicapped by his inability to express them properly. He lacked a correct sense of proportion and this, together with the fact that he had no definite musical standards to follow as well as that he lacked the proper artistic environment for more satisfactory development made it more than difficult for him to accomplish even what he did. Through his compositions run a lack of unity, an inequality, many rough places, but to balance this lack we find a wealth of melody thoroughly English, a charming and spontaneous freshness.

Purcell was highly esteemed by his fellow musicians during his lifetime, even though he was not appreciated by the general public to the extent which his genius deserved. Authorities now deem him to have been a far greater man than any of his contemporaries, and far ahead of his age.

Much of Purcell's work suggests what has since been developed and elaborated upon by later composers, and it is safe to say that his influence upon the development of English music would have been even greater had there been any successor to carry on his work after his death.

FOREIGN MUSIC NOTES

Invent Jazz Piano

A jazz-piano has recently been invented by a Hungarian organist, Franz Szekeres. This interesting instrument is played as a regular piano, and can be used instead of a small jazz orchestra, according to the Hungarian press.

Music In Japan

A Japanese opera, "The Angel," is to be produced this month at the Kabukiza Theater of Tokio, the leading theater in Japan devoted to production of native art.

This new opera will employ a chorus of 200 mixed voices, the singers having been trained in Western methods, and most of them graduates of the Imperial Conservatory.

The composer of the opera, Kosaku Yamada, was formerly active in New York musical circles, and received his musical training in Europe.

Opera at Monte Carlo

One of the most brilliant musical seasons ever enjoyed at Monte Carlo is now in progress. During the winter seven festivals have been outlined for presentation, also twenty classical symphony concerts with visiting orchestras from Paris and other centers, six modern concerts, fourteen concerts devoted to chamber music and fifteen recitals to be presented by internationally celebrated singers and instrumental soloists.

The opera orchestra and chorus number 180 members, while the list of patrons and box holders includes many internationally famous names as well as a generous sprinkling of royalty.

Goldmark Centenary

Many of Europe's leading cities are planning a Goldmark centenary for the 1929-30 season.

London Opera Festival

The London Opera Festival, planned for presentation from December 30, 1929 to January 19, 1930, will revive many of the older operas, thus tracing the development of the opera from the time of Monteverdi to Weber.

The repertory of revivals will include Monteverdi's "Orpheus," Purcell's "Dido and Aenas," Locke and Gibbon's "Cupid and Death," Handel's "Julius Caesar," Mozart's "La Finta Giardiniera," Gluck's "Alcestis" and Weber's "Der Freischutz."

The casts for the various operas will be composed mainly of English singers, with the texts to be sung in English.

FILM SCENES TAKEN IN BEACH DISTRICT

SEAL BEACH, Dec. 7.—Paramount pictures is taking scenes for "Sarah and Son" in this vicinity. Ruth Chatterton is "Sarah" and Phillip De Lacey is "Son." Dorothy Arxiner, only woman director employed at Paramount, is directing.

The Paramount outfit moved to the Bolsa Chico Gun club grounds yesterday and took a number of scenes about the beautiful clubhouse and grounds. This portion of "Sarah and Son" will be finished up in the Seal Beach-Sunset Beach section today. About 15 cars of movie people with some 40 to 50 actors are taking part.

State Realtors Back Cut In Tax

With regard to the income tax cut, J. Bradley Clayton, president of the California Real Estate association, sent the following wire to Senator Samuel M. Shortridge at Washington:

"California realtors heartily approve one per cent income tax cut recommended by President Hoover but strongly urge that same reduction shall be made in tax on capital gains thus facilitating sale of property and improving activity in real estate."

The state association consists of over 4,000 members in more than 200 cities of the state.

A total reduction of nearly two billion dollars in the taxes of the nation since 1921 will be accomplished if Congress adopts Secretary Mellon's recommendation that the rates on incomes for 1929 be lower by 1 per cent. The tax reductions have benefited every citizen, property owner and home owner in the nation, it was said, from the man of small means to the man of wealth, and at the same time have increased revenue, for, as Mellon points out, funds that were held in investment became active because the surtax and income tax were not so heavy.

BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

IT'S A GREAT WAR by Mary Lee, published by Houghton, Mifflin, Co. "It's a Great War" is one of the great books written about the Great War. For accuracy, cleverness, horror and humor, it is on a par with "All Quiet on the Western Front," "The Case of Sergeant Grischa," "An Artillery Man's Record" by L. V.Jacobc, Scanlon's "God Have Mercy on Us," or "I Saw It Myself" by Barbusse. And like all of those mentioned, it deals principally with war as seen from the position of the writer. It has the advantage of accuracy and the limitation of a restricted view; but in no sense is the viewpoint narrow, or harsh, though there is a touch of bitterness in the realization that the war failed in its great objective to make the world safe for democracy and in preventing future wars.

Mary Lee had the unusual opportunity of seeing war first as a civilian in Bordeaux and Paris, and later as a Y. M. C. A. girl in the zone of advance, near the active front, and still later as a "Y" girl in Germany.

She realizes that civilization is a kind of nerve that soon wears off when men are herded about; when they never have a moment of privacy; when all the comforts of home and the association of friends are things that may never be enjoyed again.

Men quartered in poor barracks, or living in unused or partly used barns, sheds or homes of the French, with few if any modern conveniences, with no entertainment but their own, no books, no newspapers, no magazines, no time to read if they had them, no light to read by if they had opportunity; such men far from home, without women of their own kind eventually seek others or perhaps otersh seek them, at least they meet.

Soldiers generally drink a little if there is anything available, more if there is more, more yet if there is nothing else to do. Soldiers with money shoot craps, play poker, or study human nature among the people with whom they're quartered; friend or foe, it makes but little difference. War is not personal.

Soldiers individually or collectively may appear "hard-boiled"—they may swear and drink, but in no one case did Mary Lee fail to win her way among them. One of the strangest things for civilians to realize is that our soldiers would frequently walk five to ten miles apparently to get a cup of cocoa, or a little pack of cookies but more often just to speak to an American girl whom they set upon a pedestal far above the French and German girls. Hundreds of men would gather for a dance just for the slight chance of a dance with an American girl. Humorously enough many a good souled spinster, who hadn't been hugged since she was a baby became a fairy princess and a bit choicy as to rank of those she cared to associate with.

No one has written a better description of the male part of the foreign Y; of those good men; many of whom prayed as though God directed individual killings or neglected to use his influence if he saw fit. Too many of them were superior, thought they were entitled to attention and consideration.

Apparently without intending it Mary Lee has written a magnificent tribute to the American girl who served overseas. Their very presence was ennobling. Men quit the saloons and wine shops just to be near them, and while the book reveals many lamentable social conditions in connection with foreign armies, on the whole it is more of a laudation of the inherent fine qualities of the American manhood that went to war. No war library is complete without this masterpiece of realism. Returned overseas soldiers will enjoy its simple, graphic descriptions. This Y girls meets the soldiers on their own level.

The book divided the $25,000 prize offered by the American Legion for the best book on the war, with "God Have Mercy On Us!"

The situation of "Sincerity" is not quite so improbable that it prohibits speculation as to its remote possibility. It does, however, give rise to several amusing episodes and opportunity for much discourse on the quality of sincerity.

Winthrop Beauvel and his wife Isobel living in Fairfax are contented and happily married until Isobel, who is an authoress, becomes restless and questions their happiness. Their very contentment, she feels, is a deteriorating force in their lives, which has pulled them down to a dead level where they no longer realize happiness. They should face life sincerely and analyze their relationship. She writes an article embodying her views and sends it, anonymously, to a leading magazine, after consultation with her friend Mary.

In the course of this conversation, Mary who does not agree with Isobel's views makes an amusing remark to Isobel who has postponed children because of her work: "I dare say," says Mary, "children are nature's means of keeping us from going dead. If you had a child, you'd have to have some new ideas from time to time."

The gist of the situation is that Winthrop agrees with Isobel and is drawn to Mary whom he believes wrote the article. When Isobel, who has induced Mary to masquerade as the author of the article, learns of their interest in each other, she takes advantage of it to justify her leaving Winthrop for further investigation of life. Mary, by a series of circumstances, is drawn into a marital relationship with Winthrop, though Isobel remains his wife, absent however for ten years in Europe. Mary does not love Winthrop but she makes the best of the situation to gain experience for herself while Isobel is seeking it elsewhere. She does not, however, write a thing during the ten years she lives with Winthrop. It may be that fact is the author's commentary on the effect of married life on inspiration.

Toward the close of the ten years Isobel returns to visit Mary and Winthrop and discover how they have enjoyed life. The visit ends with the abandonment of the experiment with sincerity. Mary leaves Winthrop very promptly and Isobel takes her place at Winthrop's side somewhat against the latter's will.

Sincerity is not a simple virtue. One doesn't always know when one is being sincere and when one is being foolish. Isobel was temperamentally the antithesis of sincerity, to Mary sincerity was comprehensible, as a method of activity as well as a belief, but she gets herself into an awful tangle.

"The novel studies the tragedy and the comedy of resolute behavior," say the publishers, "based upon a too simple philosophy and the difficulty of being sincere at all in a world which for practical purposes prefers good nature, comfort and compromise."

A Girl in Soviet Russia, by Andree Viollis, published by Thomas Y. Crowell Co.

"I love it (Russia) in spite of its errors," says this author in the closing paragraph of her book on Russia. It is that spirit combined with a seeing eye and an able intelligence which makes Mlle. Viollis' book well worth reading.

Those parts of it which I compared with Oswald Garrison Villard's articles on "Russia from a Car Window" which have been running in The Nation and are now published in book form, reveal a similar freedom from prejudice and desire to paint an accurate picture of the most mysterious, the most baffling and defiant government in power today in the two writers.

From the first pages one is impressed with the literary charm of "A Girl in Soviet Russia" though as one progresses further one is inclined to forget the style of writing in the facts and experiences related. Her three months journey takes the author to Moscow, Nijni-Novgorod, Leningrad, Kazan on the Volga, Baku on the Caspian Sea, Tiflis, Erivan and Batum on the Black Sea. From the similarity between the points visited by Mr. Villard under the auspieces of the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce one would be led to believe that both writers traveled along a route proscribed by the Russian government for tourists. In fact one of them says that while his route was not confined, it was made easy for him to see the things the Russian authorities wanted them to see.

However, the writings of both Mr. Villard and Mlle. Viollis have the advantage that both individuals discerned the limitations of their observations and play up those things, obscure, extra-routine matters, and the answers to apt questions which are most likely to be revealing.

Because of the vastness of Russia; because of the cataclysmic changes which have taken place there; because of the stupendous extent of the various experiments, those who are at all desirous of being informed about Russia must read a great deal from the pen of the gifted and clear-sighted writers who are remounting their impressions of the country. There is some justice in criticisms that three months or six months is completely inadequate for a proper understanding of the country but on the other hand six or seven accounts by as many discerning people, who had only a brief time each in the country might be even more reliable than an account of the conditions and progress in Russia written by one man who had spent the past ten years in the country.

"A Girl in Soviet Russia" deserves careful consideration in studying Russia. It is readable. It takes up the five year industrial program now in operation, the Communist party, the status of the individual, education, youth, marriage and divorce, Soviet justice, life in the villages, the theater, the opera, the Russian temperament. The author fills in the facts in the book and her own experiences with pictures of individuals, of their struggles, their naivete, their hope, their ambition, their consecration to the Communist party, the animation of the eye when they talk of the future until one cannot fail to be moved by their zeal, and their faith even though one pity them for their errors and faith.

"Our Changing Civilization" is a book of considerable depth. In its treatment of modern tendencies and influences in social and individual life it is more factual and historical than philosophic. The author traces the tendencies of various influences which have been manifest in civilizations of the past, in doing so revealing the antiquity of many of the ideas which are today being challenged.

At the same time he shows how ideas in the past have similarly met the challenge of evolvement, and what happened and what emerged from the challenge to again be challenged by the new order of the modern age of science and machinery.

Numbers of books have been written recently on the changes in civilization which have been brought about by the present age of machinery and science. "Whither Mankind," a compilation by Charles Beard and "Recent Gains in American Civilization" one by Kirby Page, "The Treason of the Intellectuals" by Julien Benda, "Our Economic Morality" by Harry F. Ward, "Beliefs That Matter," by William Brown, "The Nature of the Physical World," "A Preface to Morals" by Walter Lippman and "Do the Churches Dare," are a few of the popular and varied books which have been inspired by the complexity of the adjustments in our civilization. One of this list Dr. Eddington's book, "The Nature of the Physical World" approaches the matter from the scientific angle, other books have approached the change from the standpoint of church leadership in the changing order.

"Our Changing Civilization" is a comprehensive introduction to the history of civilization presenting a fine approach to the "conflicts of civilization" which are presented in the final chapter. "We need an ethics of achievement and mastery; we have only an ethics of consolation," says the author at one place. And at another place he makes a statement which may inspire investigation into this whole subject of the tenets of the past in opposition to new influences on the part of someone who has not yet given the problem a thought:

"The truth is that these moral leaders of the past were individualists, taking no thought for the larger problems of social relationships. Their wisdom was offered for the simple farming community, at most for men suffering under a hopeless oppression. Leaving to Caesar the things that were Caesar's they spoke to the consciences troubled with the problems of a narrow personal life. Such moral sustenance has strengthened millions. It has bred the loving father, the tender wife, the compassionate neighbor; but it has given Caesar full sway over trade and manufacturing, politics and international affairs."

Lower Insurance Rates For Beach

SEAL BEACH, Dec. 6.—Representatives of the Pacific Board of Fire Underwriters were in Seal Beach two days this week and were shown over the fire protection system of Seal Beach by Fire Chief Reece and Councilman C. O. Wheat. The underwriters will shortly announce a substantial reduction in fire rates for Seal Beach.

The rate reductions were brought about by improvements to water mains and fire plugs and the installation of the departmetn in new quarters in the new city hall, with a fireman stationed at the fire hall 24 hours of each day.

L. T. L. Secretary To Speak Dec. 13

PLACENTIA, Dec. 7.—The Rev. J. Raymond Janeway, leader of the Mexican branch of the Placentia L. T. L., announces that Miss Mary Johnson, state secretary of L. T. L., will speak at the Americanization school on Santa Fe avenue at 7:30 o'clock on the evening of December 13.

Miss Johnson will give her lecture on "Fire Eaters" in which she tells of the results from the use of alcohol and tobacco.

The Rev. Mr. Janeway talked at the Orange Baptist church Wednesday evening. The subject on which he spoke was "The Mexicans in Our Midst and Our Responsibility Toward Them."

The Rev. Mr. Janeway was accompanied by Zenaida Corona, Ruby and Lenore Perez, of Placentia, and Miss May Chapman and Mrs. McDaniels, of Yorba Linda.

Women of the mission have formed a Dorcas society which meets every Monday for an all way meeting. In the morning there is a Bible study class and in the afternoon Mrs. Knowlton teaches a class in English. The women sew for persons in need.

La Habra Masons Elect Officers

LA HABRA, Dec. 7.—Henry C. Dorhman was elected master of the Masonic lodge at the regular meeting of the Masons this week. He succeeds Claude Ridgeway.

Other officers elected were Harlan Hodges, senior warden; William Weaver, junior warden; A. J. Young, secretary, and Gordon Cameron, treasurer.

Installation of the officers will be held December 30 at the temple. A banquet will be served.

DUNCAN SISTERS AT FOX-BROADWAY MONDAY

"Hallelujah" Begins Three Day Run Here

COLORED CAST IN VIDOR'S 1ST TALKING FILM

One of the most unusual scenes ever recorded for a moving picture, a processional march of hundreds of Negroes to baptismal services, is among the unique details of "Hallelujah," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's all-talking picture, which plays at the Fox West Coast theater for three days starting Monday.

The new picture, directed by King Vidor, who made "The Big Parade," is a vivid drama of the lives of the Negroes of the south.

The great baptismal procession scenes were filmed on Church street, Memphis, Tennessee, one of the most renowned colored settlements in America. The huge parade, an exact replica of those held at the famous wholesale baptisms there, was climaxed by the baptism, when the converts entered the river while the preachers exhorted the "flock."

All the known varieties of horse-drawn conveyances were used in the parade through the quaint old wooden buildings. Three two-horse Victorias, three six-horse surreys, four cotton wagons and dozens of horses and buggies flocked to Memphis from nearby plantations, loaded with colored extras for the parade. Vidor advertised for horse-drawn vehicles and found that, though the automobile had driven may of them out of California, in the South there were still a great many. Every possible antique contraption showed up in response to his ad.

The new picture, an original by Vidor, is an intimate story of the lives and loves of the Negroes of the South, filmed largely in the Southern cotton plantations. The exteriors and the sequences, in which the old negro spirituals and "Blues" were sung by the famous Dixie Jubille Singers, were filmed at the studios in California.

FORGETS BEADS

COST OF SOUND FILM HANDICAP TO EDUCATION

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Dec. 7—(UP).—The present cost of sound-reproducing apparatus is about the biggest drawback to turning the "little red school" house into a movie theater in the opinion of many leaders of the Hollywood photoplay industry.

Jesse L. Lasky, first vice president and chief of production at Paramount Famous Lasky, is one of those who thinks that educational films have a big future.

"The problem that faces the public schools and universities today is the cost of reproducing apartus," Lasky said. "I believe that when this element is done away with—as it will be—talking picture films will sell about as readily as text books."

DANCER LEAVES BEADS BEHIND; HOLDS UP SHOW

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Dec. 7.—Ten thousand dollars for a few glass beads! Doesn't sound quite right does it? But that's what those beads cost the First National studio.

Here's the way it all happened—and we know it is no press agent yarn because we hapened to be on the set at the time. Director Alan Crosland needed an exceptionally good dancer for a scene in "Song of the Flame," so he sent for Janina Smolinska, Polish dancer who recently came to Hollywood to make her way in the fickle movies.

The beautiful Janina arrived on the set all ready for the dance. After the cameras, microphones and lights were arranged, the girl discarded her silk robe and stood waiting for the command "camera," which in Hollywood language means go into action.

Then Crosland—and everyone else on the set—discovered with quite a shock that she wasn't wearing nearly enough to satisfy American censors. In fact, her garb made the usual dancing costume resemble an Eskimo's winter outfit.

There was nothing to do but hold up the shooting on the scene while Janina was sent back to the wardrobe to have her costume augmented by quite a few more beads in very necessary spots. This delayed production for two full hours while expenses ran merrily on—at the rate of $5,000 an hour.

Black Crows Making New A. E. F. Film

Moran and Mack, the Two Black Crows, are about to start their second talking comedy for Paramount, entitled "Two Black Crows in the A. E. F." Plans for this production were made following theater reports from all parts of the country emphasizing the public approval given to their initial dialogue vehicle, "Why Bring That Up?"

"Two Black Crows in the A. E. F." is based on the story of the same name by Charles E. Mack, lazy voiced member of the team, which is now ranked as a best seller. It details the military activities of two dusky residents of Buford, Tennessee, Moran portraying the best colored gambler in town and Mack depicting the local dog catcher.

While the two comedians appeared in both whiteface and burnt cork in their first film, their new one will present them entirely in blackface, marking a return to their favorite phonograph, radio and vaudeville characterizations of Amos and Willie Crow.

Direction will be in the hands of Richard Wallace, responsible for "MacFadden's Flats," "Innocents of Paris" and the newly completed starring vehicle for Gary Cooper, "Medals." Lloyd Corrigan, co-author of "Sweetie," and Walter Weems, veteran playwright who wrote "Hearts in Dixie," have been preparing the screen treatment.

FAY AS CHORUS GIRL

FLAGG, QUIRT PICTURE HERE BROKE RECORDS

"The Cock Eyed World," famous William Fox film which has just finished a week's engagement in Santa Ana at the Fox West Coast theater, smashed all attendance records for a single engagement of any picture, Manager John Rantz, of the Fox theaters announced today.

Because of the immense crowds that attended, it was necessary to show the picture continuously on week days as well as on Sundays.

Asked why a picture of this type should attract such crowds, Rantz hesitated in answering. "I suppose it was because there is that something in the picture that appeals to the human side of people. Surely it was not a picture for the highbrows. No one likes to be called a lowbrow, but just the same I'm no highbrow and I liked the picture like the other 14,000 who saw it," Rantz said.

Incidentally, Rantz announced that a new story had been written for the fighting marines, Sergeants Flagg and Quirt and would be made into a talkie probably sometime this winter.

SCHWAB, MANDEL TO MAKE PICTURES

By the terms of an agreement just reached, the theatrical firm of Schwab and Mandel of New York city, producers of such musical comedy hits as "Good News," "The New Moon" and "Follow Thru," will produce at least two all-talking-and-singing screen productions for Paramount each year.

Jean Arthur And Buddy Rogers To Be Starred Again

Jean Arthur is to be leading woman for Charles "Buddy" Rogers again. She is to play opposite Rogers in "Young Eagles," an aviation picture in which the young Paramount players will go still higher in the air than they went in their previous picture, "Half Way to Heaven," the recently completed talking film in which they played aerial trapeze performers. "Young Eagles" is to be directed by William Wellman, who guided Rogers through his first aviation picture, "Wings."

MADE SCREEN HISTORY

HEGGIE PLAYS KING

BANCROFT IN TRENCHES

One of the early sequences of George Bancroft's new Paramount starring picture, "The Mighty," takes place in the front line trenches in France during the war.

OAKIE DANCE MAN

"One Night of Love."
"See You In Jail."

"Song of the West" will be pictured in natural color with Vivienne Segal, a coloratura soprano, its prima donna.

It is that; for the possible reason we see it "Through Different Eyes."

For "Double Feature" Day

"Other Women's Husbands."
"Catch As Catch Can."

More Or Less Important

"Gotterdammerung" is an opera music lovers swear by.

"The Patent Leather Kid" has taken a shine to the screen.

Irene Bordoni is one of seventy-seven stars in Warner Bros. "Show of Shows."

George Arliss, in "Disraeli," is the only British Prime Minister remaining in America.

LASKY SELECTS POWELL'S FIRST TALKING FILM

William Powell's first vehicle as a full-fledged star for Paramount, according to an announcement today by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice president, will be a story depicting the highlights in the dramatic career of "Natural" Davis, bred-in-the-blood metropolitan gambler, a whimsical and sinister figure typical of New York.

The suave Powell, elevated to stellar rank as a result of "The Canary Murder Case," "The Greene Murder Case" and other successes, will play the role of John Marsden, alias "Natural" Davis, against a background of gambling life that emphasizes the code which compels the winner always to give the loser a chance and apportions death to a cheater.

Kay Francis, who has lately appeared in "Dangerous Curves," "Behind the Makeup," and "The Marriage Playground," has been assigned the role of Alma Marsden, neglected wife of the debonair rogue of the card tables. Direction will be in the hands of John Cromwell, who has just completed "The Mighty," George Bancroft's newest starring production, following his co-direction of "Close Harmony" and "The Dance of Life."

The story is from an original by Oliver H. P. Garrett, formerly on the staff of the New York World, who has done the script work on many recent Bancroft vehicles.

HAVE SAME BACKGROUND

Beryl Mercer, Temple Pigott, Daisy Belmore and Frank Terry who have supporting roles to Gary Cooper in the Paramount production, "Medals," all made their stage debut in the Drury Lane theater, London.

SERIALS' FATHER DIRECTS

Louis Gasnier, director of "Darkened Rooms," Paramount all-talker starring Evelyn Brent, originated the motion picture serial. He produced "The Perils of Pauline," "The Clutching Hand," and other episodic screen thrillers.

Do You Know

That Harry Green, who has just finished the leading role in Paramount's "The Kibitzer," became a vaudeville performer when he appeared as a monologist for eleven performances a day in a small New York theater so he could attend law college in the mornings and support himself and his mother?

That in 1918, he went to London to fill a five weeks' engagement in "Welcome, Stranger" and remained there in various plays for five years?

That he is owner of the Lyric theater in London?

That he toured South Africa in "The Music Master," "Give and Take" and "Is Zat So?" and has the distinction of being the only player besides David Warfield to portray the title role in "The Music Master?"

That his big hit in vaudeville was in his act as "George Washington Cohen?"

That he was born on April Fools' Day?

PROFESSOR OF FUTURE TO BE PICTURE REEL

The college professor of the future will be a reel of sound motion picture film.

"There is no limit to the future of the educational picture," he declared. "I can visualize the practicability of text reels and lectures, given by world authorities on all subjects, for public schools and colleges. When you have voice illustrations, the possibilities are boundless.

"Talking picture prints of this sort will some day sell like textbooks and they will not pass out after one performance.

"Sound on celluloid will prove a boon to salesmen. The modern traveling drummer will carry pictures of his samples and his selling talk will be enhanced by careful preparation and recording on his reels."

According to Lasky, the problem that faces the public schools and universities today is the cost of reproducing apparatus. When this cost is reduced, talking picture textbooks will be a fact, he said.

RAILWAY TRAIN USED

SEENA OWEN IN TALKIE

Seena Owen, former D. W. Griffith star, has her first sound role in Paramount's "The Marriage Playground" with Mary Brian and Fredric March.

"IT'S A GREAT LIFE" FEATURES STAR'S VOICES

Because of their acknowledged success at putting over new songs and making them hits overnight, much interest is being shown in the sizable bunch of new numbers which the Duncan Sisters will introduce in "It's a Great Life," their first Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer all-talking, singing and dancing picture, filmed in technicolor, which comes to the Fox-Broadway theater Monday for four days.

Seven brand new songs are warbled in the production by the two well known harmony blues singers. The songs were written specially for them by Ballard Macdonald and Dave Dreyer, a song-writing team of the highest reputation. Macdonald has done scores of big hits, but "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" alone would entitle him to immortality in the world of popular songs. Likewise Dreyer has received thousands of dollars in royalties from "Me and My Shadow" and "Rainbow 'Round My Shoulder."

"Following You" is a blues number of great effectiveness. It is "played straight" and with splendid feeling by the two stars. It is one of those numbers that will have everybody humming as they leave the theatre. As a foil to it, "Tell Me, Dirty Maiden" is a very comical burlesque on the "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden" of the Floradora Sextette, with clownish Rosetta attired in an over-size tuxedo, and handle-bar whiskers. "Sailing on a Sunbeam" is another very lyrical number. Then comes another "for laughs only" selection, "It's an Old Spanish Custom," where Rosetta opines that the exceptionally florid love-making of a certain Castilian gentleman must be just part of the manners of the country. "Smile, Smile, Smile, with Mandelbaum and Weil" is the "rouse 'em up' song of the department store for which the girls work in the first sequences of the plot. Because Rosetta clowns this number she and her sister get "canned," and with Lawrence Gray form a vaudeville act. "The Hoosier Hop" is something new in dance numbers, and "Won't You Be My Lady Love?" is a final lyrical blues number, put over as only the Duncans can.

GIFT SEEKERS SHOP EARLY AT WESTERN AUTO

The usual "Do your shopping early" is being taken seriously this season, acording to the Western Auto Supply company, and many wise gift seekers are looking over the stocks of automotive merchants and making their selections.

"Our window displays are designed this year to bring to the attention of the shopper the giving of practical gifts and to mail their purchases early," says G. K. Rogers, local Western Auto manager.

"Most of the larger accessory companies are relieving the Christmas shopper of mailing troubles by correctly preparing the gift purchases for mailing.

"Automotive accessory gifts are especially suited for mailing to friends as few car owners have all the conveniences that they would like to have for their cars. The gift exchange card which has been used so sucessfully for the past two years by the Western Auto Supply company, will be used again this Christmas. With this card included in the package, it is not necessary for the buyer to know the make or model of the car for which it is intended as the merchandise selected can be exchanged by the recipient at any of the more than 150 Western Auto stores.

"This is an exclusive feature with the Western Auto Supply company as no other concern has so wide a distribution of automobile cacessory stores."

Santa Ana, Calif.,
Dec. 5, 1929.

Editor Register:—

Among electoral reform measures must be classed the initiative, the referendum and the recall. The initiative is a device to override indifferent legislatures; the referendum refers to the people for their approval certain measures, such as the issuance of bonds; the recall is an emergency device to end the term of office of a recreant official, its failure at the polls constituting to an extent a possible endorsement of his policies and actions. Any one who recalls the agitation of the proponents of these measures knows they were intended for use in emergencies, not in routine government. Used other than in emergency they may be dangerous weapons in the hands of the people. In some states, including California, all three of these measures are coming to be used entirely too much, sometimes unwisely.

Mr. Iverson, in your issue today, is quoted as saying: "A recall election in Santa Ana will be nothing less than a public calamity, which should be averted if that is within the range of possibility." I quite agree with him, but would respectfully suggest that one way to avert it is a reconsideration by all involved, including council, of the controversy over the proposed new highway. In an honest disagreement such as this one the use of the Recall is not justified provided both sides are willing to concede a little. The cost o fa recall election, it is well to remember, is great; and, on the other hand, there is no emergency demanding immediate construction of the new highway. Then why not take time to think things over?

Some years ago in California necessary public improvements were sometimes held up almost indefinitely by very small minorities of property owners, the then laws permitting such aggravating obstruction. To mend that situation certain legislation conferred unusual powers upon councils and other officials; but the laws enacted were designed for use in emergencies, not to give to councils the right of eminent domain to further what they deemed wise improvements and without review by courts or referendums to the electorate. Gradually these laws have became dangerous weapons in the hands of councils, just like the recall has been in the hands of the people. The whole situation, as regards both the people and the officials, is un-American and tends only to community discord.

If we are to retain these laws, keping their employment within their proper province as emergency measures, it is necessary to determine judicially when the emergency justifying their use has actually arisen, and this should be determined without prejudice to either side. The only recourse is the courts. If the judges of our superior court were to sit in a hearing on thepresent tangle, their decision would compose the whole unfortunate situation.

It is well to member that the intent of the lawmaker must be considered as well as the mere letter of the law. Every enactment is designed to accomplish certain things, and its employment outside that certainrange is open to question. This question of intent is commonly forgotten; but it applies just as much as does the intent of the violator of the law. Intent is not the only factor, but it is one very vital one. Therefore, what was the intent of the legislature when they enacted the law above discussed, and are councils and people using these laws as they were designed to be used?

Respectfully,
THOS. S. BLAIR.

LIONS

True Stories of the Ferocity of the African Lion
By Martin Johnson Author of "Safari"

CHAPTER 8.

Probably we were a little tired. Loss of sleep in the night blinds had made us out of sorts. Osa felt it as much as I. Life was nothing but one solid round of lions. Momentarily I felt as if I never wanted to see another lion as long as I lived.

This morning of which I write we drearily climbed into the car and set forth with no destination whatsoever. Bukari and our guns accompanied us, only for the reason we never went anywhere without them—and the cameras.

In ten minutes we were among the game herds. I feel that I must keep reminding the reader that I'm not exaggerating when I say that is was nothing to find from five to ten thousand head of game around our camp. We did find some interest in one pretty group of about six hundred eland, and followed them for a ways taking a few pictures.

As usual, there were more zebras than anything else. Twice we had to stop the car to let hundreds of them, closely packed, race past. In so doing they kicked up a cloud of dust that nearly choked us.

Whenever we came close to ostriches they would race beside us for a mile or two, getting as good a look as possible; then in a burst of speed they would cross ahead.

This idea of crossing ahead of the car seemed to be an obsession with the game. It reminded me of the Chinese custom of campans trying to cross the bow of a steamer so that the faster vessel will cut off any evil spirits that may be trailing them. Once it had got by the herd stood perfectly still and watched us pass. They were satisfied that they had shown that they could run faster than we if they wanted to.

On the other side of the main herds and among some shallow dongas we came upon the four lions that we saw the very first day we had come into camp. We had seen them so often that we now knew them by sight. I guess they knew us too, for they paid not the slightest heed to the chugging of our motor, other than to look the other way as if they didn't see us, a special lion trick.

Today they were lying right in the trail at the only spot where we could safely cross the small rocky donga that wound down to this point. Apparently they had been dining, as all four were licking their chops and acted as if their bellies were full to repletion.

I stopped the car and yelled at them to get out of the way. But they only blinked and refused to stir. I ran up closer and yelled again. Again no action. I ran closer, and finally touched one of them with my front wheel. He let out a growl but did not try to fight back. With a loud grunt of annoyance he pulled himself to his feet and waddled a few feet further on and lay down again.

"You old fat lunatics!" screamed Osa, "haven't you sense enough to move on when you see a car coming!"

Finally, in disgust I picked up the stiff leather pillow that Osa had been sitting on and hurled it at the nearest lion. It hit him on the nose. He didn't like it a bit and told us so by hopping to his feet and swearing at us lion-fashion, away down in his throat. They rose to their feet and began to amble off.

"Come on, Martin!" exclaimed Osa. "We'd better put the fear of man into them some way. If we don't, the first shooting safari that comes down here will shoot them all."

I hated to make them lose confidence in us after all the fine posing they had done for me; but Osa was right. And this was the only way we could repay them. As we drove on we decided that the next time we fell in with them we would toot the horn, shoot into the ground and make all the horrible noises of which we were capable, in order to make them nervous when a man was around. But, strange to say, we never had the chance. Next day they had left for good and we never saw them again.

"They couldn't forgive you, Martin," explained Osa, "for having hit the old fellow with the pillow. It was rude of you!"

Further on we ran into eleven lionesses and a wonderful big lion. I suppose it was his harem, and he was the Sultan of Serengeti. But he must have had his troubles if he had to feed the family; for there were at least a dozen cubs of all ages and they looked as if they would keep the old man killing all night to feed them.

Before noon we took a short run back to the camp for lunch. The day wasn't going so badly after all. We both felt much cheered. The weather was perfect and our animal friends seemed unusually friendly.

Perhaps it was a trace of my morning's ill-humor that made me think of the trick; but suddenly I conceived the most superb idea—at least, Osa said it was—for getting some pictures of a lion with various kinds of expressions on his face. We had seen the lions show all sorts of moods in the way they wrinkled their noses and brows; but when they knew we were photographing them they were inclined to put on such poker faces that they all looked more or less alike.

Telling Bukari what I planned, we went back to the Sultan and killed a kongoni. I picked out one that I was sure he would bring down that night in any event Then I had Bukari cut open the stomach and sprinkle in a whole can of red pepper.

When the nearest lioness saw that he had stepped aside from the kongoni she started for it. But the big lion promptly sprang out and grabbed her by the neck and wouldn't let her eat. Perhaps she had offended His Royal Highness and was being punished. After this had happened several times she waited until he dozed off and then make a quick spring. Before he could stop her she had reached the body.

The big lion now walked over to her, growling and scolding, and finally lay down with his back to the meal. He must have been so full of meat that the very sight of food made him sick. The lioness was not very hungry, for she ate daintily and slowly. All the time we waited anxiously for the pepper to take effect, but she had not reached the right spot.

After about an hour, during which our patience became nearly exhausted, the Sultan himself walked ponderously up to the body, warned his wife to beat it and lay down for a few bites. He stuck his nose squarely into the spot where Bukari had sprinkled the pepper and began to gnaw. We could scarcely wait to see what would happen.

Suddenly he stood up on all four legs, his whole body seemed to stiffen; and he made the most horrible face I have ever seen on any animal. I glanced around at Osa and her face was all screwed up in sympathy with the poor fellow. I could even feel my own nose curl.

He wrinkled up his nose and shut his eyes. His ears laid back and his shoulders hunched. He shook his head. He took one paw and scratched his nose so hard that it must have hurt. Then he lay down again and used both paws to scratch his nose, keeping his eyes tight shut all the time.

Then all at once he sprang to his feet again and let out a sneeze that literally shook the earth. Really I should have thought they would have heard that roar clear back at camp. The whole harem sprang to their feet in alarm. Even the cubs sat up and stared to see what had happened that Papa should make such a frightful noise.

Osa and I laughed until our eyes were streaming like the lion's. No Broadway show could beat this one. The fool expression on that old lion's face, and the series of prodigious roars that he emmitted in the shape of sneezes once and for all drove our day's ennui away.

The old lion didn't pay the slightest attention to us though we were only a few feet away. He was game, too. For when he had calmed down somewhat, and got his nose under control he opened his dripping eyes and went at the kongoni again!

And again he got a snoutful of pepper. And again the entire harem. the nursery, the whole wide Serengeti Plains resounded with his roaring sneezes. He seemed to have no idea where the pepper was coming from. And the more he got of it the more determined he was to finish his meal. I suppose some people will think it a cruel trick. But for a tough old lion it was a pretty tame joke, I am sure; though it certainly put a terrible dent in his dignity.

This silly performance went on for more than two hours. Osa and I were really weak from laughing. Our eyes and our jaws both ached. I think the ladies in the harem got so disgusted with the way their Master was behaving that they finally wouldn't even look at him when he was going through his paroxysms. The cubs simply ignored nim; all except one cub that trotted down and took a great delight in watching Papa perform. Once when Papa was roaring his old head off, eyes tight shut of course, the little cub cocked him ears first on one side and then on the other, and timidly put up one paw as if to find out if this were some new kind of game Papa invented. But just then the old man let out a blast that nearly blew the youngster into the air; at which he ran whimpering to his mother's side. She comforted him, probably saying:

"Now just leave your father alone. You're too young to understand these things."

Weak and bleary eyed, Osa and I left the scene and returned to camp. Our dispositions had received just the medicine they needed. And while the day held no hair-raising events, it seemed full of adventure nevertheless.

I think it was on the Fourth of July that Osa and I suddenly came on a big herd of giraffe. By working to windward and using some brush for cover I got my camera up and cranked out a few hundred feet of film.

The giraffe were sauntering slowly down to the edge of the scummy water. Despite their long legs and towering necks they were a graceful lot. At the first whir-r-r of the machine they paused. Their legs stiffened and their small heads waved anxiously to and fro.

"What is it?" the leader seemed to say. He was an old bull giraffe of unusual size.

"Oh, let's run!" his poor wife probably whimpered as she took a few nervous steps back in the direction in which she had come. But the next instant her mother's instinct asserted itself and she moved swiftly to the side of a gangling baby giraffe with legs so long and fragile that they seemed to bend under the little fellow's weight.

The tall old leader of the herd stood his ground. I noted him particularly because he was so beautifully marked. He had courage, too. For while he had no idea what made the queer noise that had startled him, he dared wait to see what it was. Yet he knew his deadly enemy the lion might be about. If so, he had no means of defense; indeed, being a giraffe he could not even cry out, for the giraffe can make no sound.

I stopped cranking. The herd listened a few moments longer then came down and drank. I cranked again. This time the noise was not new and only the leader rose up and listened. But he soon respread his legs and dropped his long neck to the water.

After drinking, the herd moved away and we forgot them while zebra and wildebeeste wandered down in crowds, interspersed with kongoni, Grant's gazelle and other thirsty denizens of the sun-scorched plains. But we had not seen the last of the brave giraffe leader.

Among certain Eskimos bad temper is considered a sign of being possessed by a devil, lying is a crime punished by death, and marriage is compulsory.

OSA AND HER PET

One of our boys found this new-born waterbuck at the waterhole where they got their camp water, and brought it to Osa. She worried over how the mother must feel when she returned and found the baby gone; so she took it back and left it where the boys had found it.. Later she had the satisfaction of seeing the mother return and take her baby away to a safer place.
